Steinem to Women: "The second wave has just begun"

By Kary Andrews
Features Editor

Establishing reproductive freedom, redefining work and reevaluating work, accepting different types of families and aiming for equality in everyday areas of life, were the themes Gloria Steinem addressed to the audience of 900 on Sept. 27.

In spite of biology, God, and Freud...women can do whatever men can do," Steinem said in her opening remarks. "We are a country that has changed its hopes and dreams but votes its fears."

Steinem advocated reproductive freedom as a basic human right.

"If we can't control our lives from the skin out," Steinem said. Included as issues within her definition of reproductive freedom were: the basic human right not to have children, to have children, safe child birth, to control the birth of children with contraception, to have or not have abortions, and to not be coerced into sterilization.

Much of Steinem's speech covered the history of the woman's movement and the consciousness raising it has accomplished over the years.

It took 150 years to achieve legal identity as human beings and the goal now is to achieve legal and social equality," she said.

Explaining her theme about work, Steinem said:

"Work should be paid according to its value for the community and not the sex of the person doing it. Work is now paid according to the sex or race of who does it."

Steinem also called for a redefinition of work to include work in the home. She also said that when an occupation gets to be about one third integrated with women, the pay drops. "We (women) are going to buy everything, including the White House."

Remembering her days in the classroom, Steinem said she was taught that the family was a product of society. She then asked the audience, "If this is true then how is it possible to have a democratic state.

A young woman right now has more power than she will when she's 50, Steinem told the audience.

Water heater problem gives them cold showers

By Michele Baccarella
Managing Editor

A water heater in the 303 quad of the Flats at Almeida did not blow up. What did happen was that the relief valve on the water heater blew out to release the pressure that had built up within the heater, said Matt White, director of the Physical Plant.

The incident started about 6 pm on Saturday, Sept. 23, when residents of the 303 quad of the Flats found they had no hot water.

Adrian Wargo, a junior, said he called the Physical Plant at about 8:30 pm that night. "They told me to wait until tomorrow that they were not going to call anyone that night," Wargo said.

White, said that on weekends, unless it's an emergency, they wait until someone comes in the next day. He also said that no maintenance request had been filed on Saturday night and that for some reason there was no record of Wargo's call.

Wargo said he did not follow the regular procedure of going through his R.A. because his R.A. was not home at the time.

"I then called Sunday at 1:30 pm," Wargo said. "I called again at 4:15 pm. I then asked my neighbor across the hall to call so that maybe if more than one person complained...

Changes at the Snackbar

By Isaac Alpert
Staff Writer

The snack bar is an escape from the prison or even worse, school style meals. Pick up what you want to eat at the snack bar, leave what they want and new items have been added, while older items have been improved, said Michelle Panarello, snack bar supervisor.

The prices are occasionally adjusted, and they had not changed in a while, leading to what some perceive as a steep increase," Panarello said.

New and improved equipment has also been added. Among the additions are a new grill and new equipment like knives. New casing has been added so that you can see the specialty items better and there is a new refrigerator for the juices which will be installed soon, she said.

A toaster and microwave have also been added so that the snack bar cooks can concentrate more on making sandwiches...instead of...
STEINEM FROM PAGE 1
"Men are rebellious in youth and become more conservative. Women always get more radical with age." Steinem is perhaps most widely known for co-founding Ms., a magazine devoted to raising the consciousness among women in America. She also has written several books, including Outrageous Acts and Everyday Rebellion, Marilyn (a biography of Marilyn Monroe), and The Beach Book. She mentioned the book she is now writing entitled, The Bedside Book of Self Esteem.

About the problem of battered women and displaced homemakers, Steinem said, "We go to the river to rescue them from drowning, but we haven't yet gone to the head of the river to keep them from going in."

Steinem cautioned against the idea of being Superwomen, balancing career, family, and household perfectly, as an answer to women's feeling of inequality. She said this is no solution because it only feeds the high expectations society has for women.

One of the everyday areas of life Steinem said we had to work on concerns the idea of religion. She asked why God is always considered a white male. This, she said, rejects women from a very important aspect of everyday life.

Steinem asked each person in the audience do something outrageous, whether it was telling a spouse to "pick it up himself," or something more drastic. "If you do this one outrageous thing, she told the audience, by Friday the world will be a better place."

She left the audience with three solid pieces of advice. "One, give 10 percent of what you make for social justice. Two, write three letters a week praising or criticizing something and three, go to one demonstration a month to keep your blood boiling."

Steinem's lecture, co-sponsored by the Contemporary Forums Committee, Career Services, and the Minority Affairs Committee, was held in the dining hall of the student union.

The room was filled to capacity 40 minutes before the lecture was scheduled to begin.

A wide screen television airing the speech as it took place was provided for the overflow audience in "That Place" downstairs in the Student Union, but that too, according to J.P. Couture, a student watching from "That Place", was filled to capacity and beyond with people even standing on desks to see Steinem speak.

STEINEM FROM PAGE 1
"They'd do something." Bob Bunker, the Physical Plant's maintenance man, fixed the water heater around 6:30 pm on Sunday.

Later that night the hall lights never came on causing Wargo to conclude that the electricity in the hallway had been accidentally shut off.

At 5 am the fire alarm went off for all the halls and the stairway leading to the lower hall. The building's staff make up the fire alarm.

The relief pressure valve had blown up, Wargo said. "The emergency lights didn't come on and even though the police were here in minutes, it could have been a really dangerous situation."

According to White, director of the Physical Plant, there was never any danger of a fire. "The relief valve is a built-in safety feature. It blows to release built-up pressure and lets the excess water out so the heater doesn't blow up and cause a fire," he said.

The pressure relief valve had blown up, Wargo said. "The emergency lights didn't come on and even though the police were here in minutes, it could have been a really dangerous situation."

According to White, director of the Physical Plant, there was never any danger of a fire. "The relief valve is a built-in safety feature. It blows to release built-up pressure and lets the excess water out so the heater doesn't blow up and cause a fire," he said.

"When it does this, it produces steam which is what set off the fire alarm," White said.

White said that the cause reset button on the water heater kicked out which is why the students had no hot water.

"The maintenance man reset it and it started working. The circuit breaker which operates the lights tripped. It could have been caused by a lot of people using the washing machines or something like that. It would have had nothing to do with the water heater."

As a result, the water soaked John's hallway carpets of the two downstairs apartments of the 303 quad.

Heater FROM PAGE 1
"If you do this one outrageous thing, she told the audience, by Friday the world will be a better place."

She left the audience with three solid pieces of advice. "One, give 10 percent of what you make for social justice. Two, write three letters a week praising or criticizing something and three, go to one demonstration a month to keep your blood boiling."

Steinem's lecture, co-sponsored by the Contemporary Forums Committee, Career Services, and the Minority Affairs Committee, was held in the dining hall of the student union.

The room was filled to capacity 40 minutes before the lecture was scheduled to begin.

A wide screen television airing the speech as it took place was provided for the overflow audience in "That Place" downstairs in the Student Union, but that too, according to J.P. Couture, a student watching from "That Place", was filled to capacity and beyond with people even standing on desks to see Steinem speak.

STEINEM FROM PAGE 1
"They'd do something." Bob Bunker, the Physical Plant's maintenance man, fixed the water heater around 6:30 pm on Sunday.

Later that night the hall lights never came on causing Wargo to conclude that the electricity in the hallway had been accidentally shut off.

At 5 am the fire alarm went off for all the halls and the stairway leading to the lower hall. The building's staff make up the fire alarm.

The relief pressure valve had blown up, Wargo said. "The emergency lights didn't come on and even though the police were here in minutes, it could have been a really dangerous situation."

According to White, director of the Physical Plant, there was never any danger of a fire. "The relief valve is a built-in safety feature. It blows to release built-up pressure and lets the excess water out so the heater doesn't blow up and cause a fire," he said.

The pressure relief valve had blown up, Wargo said. "The emergency lights didn't come on and even though the police were here in minutes, it could have been a really dangerous situation."

According to White, director of the Physical Plant, there was never any danger of a fire. "The relief valve is a built-in safety feature. It blows to release built-up pressure and lets the excess water out so the heater doesn't blow up and cause a fire," he said.

"When it does this, it produces steam which is what set off the fire alarm," White said.

White said that the cause reset button on the water heater kicked out which is why the students had no hot water.

"The maintenance man reset it and it started working. The circuit breaker which operates the lights tripped. It could have been caused by a lot of people using the washing machines or something like that. It would have had nothing to do with the water heater."

As a result, the water soaked John's hallway carpets of the two downstairs apartments of the 303 quad.

New tables and chairs are some of the recent improvements made at the Snackbar, which is going to be totally renovated this summer.

New tables and chairs are some of the recent improvements made at the Snackbar, which is going to be totally renovated this summer.

New tables and chairs are some of the recent improvements made at the Snackbar, which is going to be totally renovated this summer.

New tables and chairs are some of the recent improvements made at the Snackbar, which is going to be totally renovated this summer.

New tables and chairs are some of the recent improvements made at the Snackbar, which is going to be totally renovated this summer.

New tables and chairs are some of the recent improvements made at the Snackbar, which is going to be totally renovated this summer.
CARE is ready to celebrate National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week

By Michele Baccarella
Managing Editor

A live band and free mocktails, a lecture by a recovering alcoholic and a day of athletic events are just some of the activities Chemical Abuse Related Education (CARE) has in store this year to celebrate National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week, Oct. 15 through 21.

CARE, which has been approved and has been put under the charge of the Dean of Student's Office, is being run by six administrators, five students and four faculty members.

The Chemical Abuse Related Education CARE was just recently approved by the Rhode Island Safety Commission, who usually provides the crash simulator, is supporting RWC's week by providing the dummies you see in commercials as well as literature on drinking and driving, she said.

On Tuesday, members of the Bristol Police Department will show students how a breathalyzer works in front of the Student Center between 11:30 am and 1:30 pm. Later that evening, Jim Martin, a recovering alcoholic, returns to RWC again this year to talk about his experiences. The lecture will be held at 7 pm in the Dorm III Rec Room.

Following the lecture a live band from Somerville, Mass. will perform in "That Place" for Music Connection and free mocktails will be provided by Eliza's in Bristol which will supply two bartenders and all the ingredients for the drinks.

"Sex and Alcohol," a workshop that will be given by the F.E.R.S. and the Health Educator, will be held at 7 pm in the Dorm III Rec Room.

Thursday's activities include: an Octoberfest with a German Oompah band and rootbeer floats sponsored by the Daytime Programming Committee.

"Let's C.A.R.E. about each other," a lecture given by Wes Cable, coordinator of the residential arm of the CARE program, will be held at 7 pm in the Dorm III Rec Room.

A day of athletic events tentatively including: a foot race, a bike race and a scavenger hunt will be held Saturday at 8 am to 1:30 pm in the lobby of the Student Center.

All events and locations are tentative and subject to change for flyers with more information as the week gets closer.

"We got off to a late start this year," Bazinet said. "But we have some motivated people."

Including Eliza's and the BPD, the Rhode Island Safety Commission, who usually provide the crash simulator, the Rhode Island Safety Commission, who usually provide the crash simulator, and the dummies you see in commercials as well as literature on drinking and driving. They will be held at 7 pm in the Dorm III Rec Room.

By Susan E. Cicchino
Staff Writer

The increasing role of women in society and government was the topic of a discussion of "Women In Government," featuring members of the Rhode Island Democratic Party, including Elizabeth Morancy, and Victoria Lederberg.

Career Services sponsored the Sept. 29 discussion which was held in That Place.

Morancy, a Representative in Congress since 1980, described her first experiences running for congress. She had no name recognition and no budget. A group of her friends raised money and put her name on the ballot. After winning one state, she was able gain 48 percent of the people's vote.

Schneider raised $575,000, most of those contributions were from men, for her second campaign. This time, she won.

Women didn't make political contributions because they weren't used to it," Schneider said.

Women not only need financial backing, Schneider said, but also the self-confidence to run for political office. According to the Census Bureau, while half of the U.S. population is female, and women represent 48 percent of the work force, only four percent of all federal and local government positions are held by females. With 26 women in the House of Representatives, and two women in the Senate, the Soviet Union has more female government officials, Schneider said.

"By the year 2000, seven out of ten persons entering the work force will be female," said Schneider. She would like to see more of these women in the government.

"The purpose of men and women are the same," Schneider said, "women have to make their contributions."

Morancy, R.I. State Representative from 1978 to 1988, said she decided to get involved in politics after years as a member of the Sisters of Mercy. She became a political leader of the Rhode Island Democratic Party, she said.
Editorial

College Crusades

Curiouser and curiouser. We have been both amused and appalled at the content of some recent academic movements born on American colleges and universities, and still breathing in desperate breaths. The one common feature that defines them all is an abhorrence of Western civilization. This is rather ironic, considering that the values of Western civilization are what allow for these movements to exist unfettered. Consider three examples.

One movement, made famous by Stanford University, has been shrinking the so-called "Eurocentric perspective" of Western culture. The problem, according to this movement, is that the thinkers that defined Western values, like Aristotle, Edmund Burke, John Locke, and the American Founders—were all white males. Therefore, the argument goes, Western civilization is racist, sexist, and oppressive. According to the most extreme views of this movement, we must replace works of such racist dogs from school curriculum, and replace them with virtually unknown works of minorities, women, and diverse cultures.

Now, it is one thing to promote diversity in study, but it's quite another to trash the works of great thinkers simply because they were white males. Even if Western ideas and values had been penned by Martians, that still would not detract from the greatness of the works. Unfortunately, this movement appears to be spreading. The New York State Education Department recently issued a report arguing against "Eurocentrism" in their curriculum.

A smaller movement appeared last spring at the University of Massachusetts, led by Terisa Turner. Ms. Turner teaches a seminar on Marxist political and social theories. She led student protests of Pentagon-financed research on campus, and apparently used the protests as a backdrop for study of such topics as "Eurocentrism" and "resistance and revolution." According to the New York Times, Turner calls herself a "radical" and "helps the socialist society that now exists to be born." No further explanation seems necessary.

Finally, consider a third anti-Western movement based at Harvard Law School called Critical Legal Studies. According to Dean of the Law School Robert Clark, who is against this movement, Critical Legal Studies involves a non-hierarchical, "communitarian" society where the distinction between public and private life is blurry. Proponents of this theory believe that, since there are no impartial legal standards, the purpose of law has really become to serve the masses. Accordingly, Western legal practices simply mollify citizens into accepting the status quo, and the law's order.

In all of these academic movements, and in many other collegiate crusades, the implied message is: Take everything you've learned. Take up the mantle of Man, take science and technology, take business and industry, take our government institutions and human progress—and throw it all away. In reply, we paraphrase Socrates. There is only one evil: ignorance.

In Response to Beauty

Letter to the Editor

Pageants...

In the last issue of The Messenger, students were asked their opinions of the Miss America pageant. While I was pleased to see such a timely issue being addressed, I must say that I was disappointed with the responses.

The Miss America pageant received a good deal of press this year, undoubtably due to its claim that it is no longer just a beauty contest, as well as the fact that many contestants have undergone plastic surgery. Though I have always been against such competitions, I found these issues interesting and decided to read the article on the pageant in the September issue of Cosmopolitan. I thought perhaps some new information might change my mind. No such luck.

Current pageant officials insist that the Miss America competition is a scholarship pageant and not just a beauty contest. It is true that the contestants are no longer required to be virtuous (i.e. virginal) airheads of past pageants, and they do go through a thorough personal interview (untelevised, of course) to determine intelligence; so then, why the swimsuit competition? Those who support the swimsuit portion of the pageant claim its purpose is to convey to young girls that as well as being intelligent and talented women must be healthy and fit. This is all well and good, but is it really healthy to have a rib removed to create a smaller waist (as one woman in the article did) or take laxatives and wrap yourself in Saran wrap (I'm not kidding) to lose excess pounds? These women are supposed to be role models—what a frightening thought.

And while I'm on the subject, who decided that girls need this type of role model? Where are the role models for boys? Where are the就行了ide images of men. I'm not kidding. Is it enough that our society be made up of ugly, fat women singing opera? I guess that about sums up our society's pathetic values.

Society's values aside, I would rather have my daughter influenced by an intelligent and insightful girl than a girl with a smaller waist (as one woman said, "The general public does not want to see an ugly, fat woman singing opera." I guess that about sums up our society's pathetic values.

Jessica Langlois Student

The Messenger is a bi-monthly publication by Roger Williams College students for the college community.

A member of the New England Collegiate Newspaper Association.

Address all correspondence to:
The Messenger, Roger Williams College, Bristol, R.I. 02809

Get your ad in by October 23rd for publication in next issue.
Commentary

Are You a Real College Student?

By Kim Staff
Assignment Editor

The Human Life Amendment (which is backed by both the current Bush administration and the former Reagan administration) if passed, would outlaw safe and legal abortions in the United States if made under specific conditions. Most RWC students may already be aware of this, but feel they will be "careful" enough not to ever need an abortion, or have any other reason to not be taking an active stance against the possible passage of this amendment.

However, how many students are aware that this amendment, if passed, would also outlaw certain forms of birth control, such as the IUD, and the Pill? What many students failed to learn about when I attended a meeting for the National Organization for Women (NOW).

A goal I set for myself was to make this my final year in college, one where I was more involved and more aware. I wanted to be more of a "college student" and less of a procurator. I'd always been concerned about women's issues, and with Gloria Steinem, discussing legal abortion law, a NOW meeting seemed like the perfect opportunity to become more involved.

When I arrived at the meeting, held at the school, I was impressed to find that the president of East Bay NOW, and the president of the National NOW, told me her name, that I was from RWC, and had decided to attend the quarter-century anniversary of a flyer I'd seen on campus, and that I wanted to find out more about NOW.

Often, the only time NOW is mentioned in the media is when the abortion issue is discussed. So many people probably associate NOW only with abortion issues only. Unfortunately, Luckel said, "Choice is the biggest issue."

Luckel also mentioned that child care and pay equity were concerns for NOW, and in a pamphlet that I picked up at the meeting, issues such as gay rights, racism, violence against women and education about discrimination are added to the list of concerns the organization has.

Before Luckel began the meeting, I asked the question "if I knew of any other RWC students who may attend this meeting, I shook my head and I am apologetically, I think she had hoped for a larger turnout, but I was the only RWC student at the meeting. Luckel invited the guest speakers to discuss the abortion issue, and quickly put a videotape of the "March on Washington," held earlier this year, in the room. The tape, entitled "Abortion for Survival," contained some very enlightening information.

For instance, the tape covered the previously mentioned information regarding the Human Life Amendment. Some states have already followed this legislation regarding abortion. In Iowa, the tape showed, any child having an abortion could face a mandatory one to five year prison sentence. In addition, the tape covered the United States' policy regarding family planning in underdeveloped countries. If an underdeveloped country does not outlaw abortion, they will receive no aid for family planning.

"Abortion for Survival," which also contained interviews with different doctors and feminists on the subject of abortion, not only made me aware of the possible consequences that could occur should women's reproductive rights be restricted, but it also made me realize how extremely unaware I'd been of very important current issues.

Following the first video was a second tape, recounting the "March on Washington," held earlier this year. Over half a million women came to Washington, D.C. to march for reproductive rights. Before ending the meeting, Luckel made a few announcements and upcoming events and gave some tips on which politicians to write about certain issues.

As I got up to leave, a woman, Toby, in her early 30's, turned to me. She attended RWC last year, and was the one who put up the flyers around campus. I sensed that she too was a procurator, but I was the only one from the college who showed up.

"Did I know what the problem was with this bill, it is?" she asked. "The problem is," she said, "when you look at the students at University of San Francisco, or U.C. Berkeley, they are "college students," they are involved with issues. RWC students don't know how to be "college students.""

I was later to be offended by her statement, but I understood what I thought she was trying to say. It is hard, though, to be motivated to get involved, with issues when there are other, easier, and more enjoyable ways to spend the precious free time we have. After all, that was the first time I'd ever attended a NOW meeting. It was in my last year of college. But I'm glad I went, and learned about abortion, and hopes for the future.

Student page 15

The Bigger Picture: On Education

By John Painter
Editorial Writer

Those of our generation who do well, pay heed to the current debate on education, since reforms that now wip it (or will not) come to fruition, when our future children enter the school system.

President Bush and our nation's governors recently met, to discuss school reform, focusing partly on national goals for our nation's schools. Many of the governors said aloud, that national goals were fine, but they needed, and expected federal support to help achieve those goals. We all know that increased federal spending will only translate into new or bigger bureaucracies. The more that things change, the more they stay the same.

Two improvements the President and his governors would do better to focus on are increased parental choice and decreased bureaucracy.

Many states are already following Minnesota's lead in implementation of parental choice plans. Results in Minnesota have been excellent, and other parental choice plans are being discussed or implemented in New Jersey, Massachusetts, New York, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Michigan, and Washington. Milton Friedman pointed out the obvious advantages of school choice over a government-imposed system. Among the benefits are increased competition and therefore, improved efficiency. More than this, though, parental choice plans force parents to become involved in their child's education and they promote the idea that parents, not educators, have the primary responsibility for a child's education.

Unfortunately, many parents today believe that their job is over when the child enters school. This is in large part due to educators themselves, who for many decades have encouraged the notion that they are the experts, and hence they should be left alone to do their job. However, part of the bond between parent and child is a moral obligation on the part of the parent to direct his or her child's growth to maturity. Furthermore, all evidence points to the fact that a superior education requires direct parental involvement-- from the moment that our parents and child, emotional support for the adolescent, in high school. Many parents today simply don't understand that they have an important role in their children's education.

One recent study showed that most parents communicate no more than 15 minutes a week to their children. Many children are in daycare and school from seven to seven at night. This is a travesty. Parental choice plans can help make the parent and the family structure relevant again. Another focus of school reform must be the many bureaucracies and unneeded regulations on federal, state, and local levels, which are handicapping our teachers and educators. One teacher in New Jersey recently related to me that state regulations even go so far as to dictate to him how he is to store classroom materials. Teachers in her school are now spending many valuable hours each week memorizing the "right" answers, to questions from state monitors who will be inspecting the school. Teachers must also have massive amounts of papers on literally each minute of the school day. Incidentally, this school is part of a school district in many other districts, and in many other states, as well, so our bureaucracies are even more encompassing.

If we are to truly reform our educational system, we must go beyond superficial changes. We need to hold off on intrusive government, bureaucracy, and other obstacles to the unions on our children's fragile necks. Mary Futrell, President of the National Education Association, and Albert Shanker, President of the American Federation of Teachers have both stated that union leadership and strategies are essential in any real school reform for our nation's classrooms. Mr. Futrell and Mr. Shanker both have apparently forgotten the purpose of education. They are not to provide work force preparation and leadership or, and union leaders, but to educate our young. Somewhere along the line, the distinction has been lost. It can be if we can control their work, if we can again make the aim of our school system the education of young.
Hello, Is anybody out there?

By Susan E. Cecchino
Staff Writer

For two weeks I was paying for a phone number no one could call.

"Phone installations cost $55 an hour," regarded the AT&T operator. "And that will be after the strike is over."

I have to pay $55 more than the $5,000 room and board fee I already pay if I want to have a phone. What next? Charging $2.50 per sheet of toilet tissue?

When I returned to RWC this year my new room did not have a phone jack. I immediately informed my R.A. who assured me that a maintenance form would be filled out and issued by the morning.

Two weeks passed and I became rather annoyed. A phone number was issued to me by AT&T and the phone line had been turned on. I was now paying for a phone number no one could call. I visited the dean's office in order to get some help. One of the secretaries contacted a housing official.

"The school doesn't provide phone jacks," the housing official said. What about all the money I'm paying to go here? Aren't phone jacks included? I asked. She answered again. "The school does not provide phone jacks. Their are a luxury. You'll have to make arrangements with AT&T."

I was unaware of this fact, as were several students and R.A.'s I later spoke with about it.

When I applied for AT&T, the representative never asked if I had a phone jack in my room. She too assumed they were provided.

A few questions came to my mind.

Where did everyone else's phone jack come from? I was the only person I knew with this problem. Why didn't my R.A. know that phone jacks are not provided by the school? Why are some students charged for room damage if the phone jack is destroyed? Why isn't the phone jack replaced using that money? Where is that money going?

Instead of trying to answer those questions I made a trip to Benny's Appliance Store and purchased a phone jack for $7.99. With the help of a fellow student, it was successfully installed.

Problem solved.

My suggestion is if RWC is not going to provide students with phone jacks, they should at least make that policy clear. The Student Handbook reads, "Arrange for a phone are made between the telephone company and the student. A representative from the telephone company will be on campus the first week of school to receive applications for telephones."

Nothing about phone jacks is mentioned. Perhaps RWC should rewrite this section for incoming students who just might wonder, as I did, where their phone jack is?

She's no longer in the dark

By Heather Zapanta
Arts & Entertainment Editor

Moving onto campus is one of the best things I've ever done. The convenience plus social setting makes my situation ideal. The first day I moved into my dorm I was overjoyed. Despite a few minor repairs, my room was fine. I brought in my bags started unpacking but low and behold when I reached for that light switch—nothing happened. Trying each light I found there were three fixtures I had, only one light bulb in my room worked. Any of you in dorms are aware of how little light one bulb produces. It's hardly enough to see by.

Still, I saw no major problem. I asked my R.A. the wattage so I could buy my own. With over $12,000 for room, board and tuition I might have thought I'd need the modernized towels and valet parking would be available, but if it was B.Y.O.B. (bring your own bulb) then so be it. (I put in a little pink lamp I bought). But my R.A. said they were specialty shaped bulbs and the college would get them to me in one to two days. O.K. I said pleasantly, what is two days?

I still more time passed, still no bulbs. I asked my R.A. again what was causing the bulb to go out. He said they were bulbs for you. Then my R.A., the beginning and end of this vicious circle, would tell me they were requisitioned. The modern equivalent of the check is in the mail.

After a time I tired of my never ending quest for light. A certain latitude settled over me. I started convincing myself I really didn't need bulbs after all. I'd ask myself things like: So, is it really that dark in here? Is it really that much of an inconvenience to have to go out to the hall just to replace one screwing in the light bulb was not in but they could leave a message. Better yet, Student Life would say, talk to your R.A., he'll get those bulbs for you. Then my R.A., the beginning and end of this vicious circle, would tell me they were requisitioned. The modern equivalent of the check is in the mail.

After a time I tired of my never ending quest for light. A certain latitude settled over me. I started convincing myself I really didn't need bulbs after all. I'd ask myself things like: So, is it really that dark in here? Is it really that much of an inconvenience to have to go out to the hall just to replace one light bulb?

The next day after classes, I went into my room and to my amaze ment found light. All the struggle and strife had paid off. My light had finally come.

When I look back on that dark past, I often entertain thoughts of how difficult it must have been to actually put those bulbs in. I wonder was there a just one specialist in the field of screwing in light bulbs?

BULB

PAGE 15

The Ultimate Laundry

One mile north of Almeida on Melacorn Avenue
at the new Bellflower Plaza 253-2770

This is no ordinary laundry... this is

The Ultimate Laundry

This SUDS FOR YOU, ROGER WILLIAMS

Let us do the dirty work. You drop it off, we'll wash it up. Complete wash, dry, fold and dry cleaning services.

This is no ordinary laundry... this is

PJ's Tan & Tone
Gooding Plaza, Gooding Ave., Bristol, Rl 02809
(401)253-7378
Owned and operated by Paul & Jane Ray

PJ's NOW HAS:

#1 Tanning $4.00 per visit
6 visits for $22.00
10 visits for $35.00

#2 Exercising with passive exercise equipment.

#3 Body wraps: Lose 4 to 15 inches in one hour.

#4 Beauty creams and natural capsules to help you look and feel wonderful.

#5 Jumbo cookies that are 21-50 calories per cookie - To help you lose weight!

Call for details!
You Said It

Should Craig Price, accused of the Warwick murders among others, be tried as an adult or a child? Why or why not?

Beth Galvin, Senior
Braintree, Mass.

"He should be tried as an adult. He committed the acts thinking as an adult and he should be tried as one. He will have no chance for reformation, either, because he'll be in prison and learn from others."

Kristen Sutcliffe, Freshman
Wrentham, Mass.

"He killed four people and I think he knew what he was doing. He shouldn't be allowed to get off (being tried) as a kid."

Leslie Rosenberg, Junior
Poughkeepsie, NY

"He should be tried as an adult. If someone commits a violent crime like rape, premeditated murder, etc. they should be committed."

Traci Goldstein, Sophomore
Montclair, NJ

"He committed four murders as an adult, so of course he should be tried as one."

Kevin Uniacke, Senior
Walpole, Mass.

"He should be tried as an adult. People shouldn't get away with multiple homicide no matter how old they are."

---

YOU SAID IT is the WE ask a question and YOU tell us your answer in every issue of The Messenger.

Our roving reporter and photographer may just come up to you and ask the question of the week.

And who knows, you and your picture might just end up in YOU SAID IT.

Create a dynamic first impression with a professional resume by

FIRST IMPRESSION RESUMES

10% Student Discount

346 Wood Street, Bristol
253-8970

Complete service, from development to printing. Cover letters. Follow-up letters. Typing.

Hours: Mon., Tues., Wed., Fri. - 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Thurs. - 12-8 p.m.; Sat. By appointment

Full Service - 14.99

Oil Lube Filter Special - 11.99

Full Service Includes:

- Change oil
- Change filter
- Check tires
- Check battery
- Check tire pressure
- Check brake fluid
- Check window washer
- Check air filter

Open: M-F 9-6
Sat. 8-3
No lift/Drive Thru

GREAT MONKEY
across from Valueland
600 Metacom Ave.
Warren, RI
245-5320

First Impression Resume by YOU SAID IT.
Entertainment

New Kids on the Block. Does a song and a dance equal success?

By Tim McCarnen
Staff Writer

Apparently, in the music world, all it takes to sell your product is a little song and dance, and these days, it doesn't even have to be your own song. This is certainly the case with a 'music group' like The New Kids on the Block, who, for some odd reason, are currently one of the hottest acts in popular music.

The New Kids are the brain-child of Boston-based record producer Maurice Starr, who formerly managed the New Edition. When his relationship with the New Edition ended, Starr sought to create a group that would appeal to a young audience, especially young females, who account for almost half of today's record sales.

What he basically came up with is a suburban answer to the Jackson Five -- five white teen-aged boys who, though their collective talent may be questionable, are undeniably pure pin-up material, which was more important to Starr. He was ready to supply his songs and instrumentation to the group's records, merely needed frontmen who would attract an audience. Under Starr's guidance all the New Kids would have to do was carry a tune, learn a few dance steps, and smile for the teen magazines.

The plan certainly worked. The Kids have generated teen fan adulation similar to that of the Beatles and their album 'Hanging Tough' has gone double-platinum, but the whole operation says a lot about the current music scene.

No matter how much popular music matures, there will apparently always be a need for teen idols. Admittedly, they tend to burn out quickly, but for the brief moments that they do shine, they can generate a great deal of cash. Between album and ticket sales, the New Kids have generated almost $100 million this year alone. Not bad for five teenagers who neither write their own songs nor play any instruments on their albums.

Sadly, Starr has proven that anyone can be a rock and roll star, but this practice is hardly new. In 1967, Don Kirshner saw popular music as 'maturing,' and leaving behind a valuable market -- the teenagers. In collaboration with television producers Bert Schneider and Bob Rafelson, he created the Monkees, a 'rock group' who appeared on a weekly television series and sold over twenty million records in 1968. The Monkees were created with one sole purpose-to make money. Surprisingly, they became an overnight sensation, but they were also branded as the scouge of the music world for the fact that they didn't play their own instruments. It is quite interesting to see how today, it is very common to see singers who are strictly performers, and have no voice in the creative process behind their music. It is also quite common to see a group or singer lip-sync their music in concert. How would this idea have gone over in the sixties?

For what it's worth, when the New Kids began their summer tour, they were the opening act for last year's teen queen Tiffany. By mid-summer, as the New Kids' album soared up the charts, Tiffany began opening for them, which just goes to show that whereas teen stars may burn brightly, in the eyes of the public they usually burn half as long.

And whether we like it or not, next year there will no doubt be new kids to replace the 'New Kids'.

"Arms and the Man"

George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" will mark the opening of the fall 1989 Performing Arts Center Season. The play will run this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The performances begin at 8 pm, with the exception of the Sunday matinee on Oct. 15 which begins at 2:30 pm. Tickets are $4 for students and general admission.

The all student cast includes: Deborah Coconis as "Raina," Christine Ile as "Catherine," Valerie Gamon as "Louka" and Clark Smith as "Bluntschli."

Also Tyrone King Jr., Rebecca Schneider and Bob Rafelson, he created the Monkees, a 'rock group' who appeared on a weekly television series and sold over twenty million records in 1968. The Monkees were created with one sole purpose-to make money. Surprisingly, they became an overnight sensation, but they were also branded as the scouge of the music world for the fact that they didn't play their own instruments. It is quite interesting to see how today, it is very common to see singers who are strictly performers, and have no voice in the creative process behind their music. It is also quite common to see a group or singer lip-sync their music in concert. How would this idea have gone over in the sixties?

For what it's worth, when the New Kids began their summer tour, they were the opening act for last year's teen queen Tiffany. By mid-summer, as the New Kids' album soared up the charts, Tiffany began opening for them, which just goes to show that whereas teen stars may burn brightly, in the eyes of the public they usually burn half as long.

And whether we like it or not, next year there will no doubt be new kids to replace the 'New Kids'.

"Arms and the Man"

George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" will mark the opening of the fall 1989 Performing Arts Center Season. The play will run this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The performances begin at 8 pm, with the exception of the Sunday matinee on Oct. 15 which begins at 2:30 pm. Tickets are $4 for students and general admission.

The all student cast includes: Deborah Coconis as "Raina," Christine Ile as "Catherine," Valerie Gamon as "Louka" and Clark Smith as "Bluntschli."

Also Tyrone King Jr., Rebecca Schneider and Bob Rafelson, he created the Monkees, a 'rock group' who appeared on a weekly television series and sold over twenty million records in 1968. The Monkees were created with one sole purpose-to make money. Surprisingly, they became an overnight sensation, but they were also branded as the scouge of the music world for the fact that they didn't play their own instruments. It is quite interesting to see how today, it is very common to see singers who are strictly performers, and have no voice in the creative process behind their music. It is also quite common to see a group or singer lip-sync their music in concert. How would this idea have gone over in the sixties?

For what it's worth, when the New Kids began their summer tour, they were the opening act for last year's teen queen Tiffany. By mid-summer, as the New Kids' album soared up the charts, Tiffany began opening for them, which just goes to show that whereas teen stars may burn brightly, in the eyes of the public they usually burn half as long.

And whether we like it or not, next year there will no doubt be new kids to replace the 'New Kids'.

"Arms and the Man"

George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" will mark the opening of the fall 1989 Performing Arts Center Season. The play will run this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The performances begin at 8 pm, with the exception of the Sunday matinee on Oct. 15 which begins at 2:30 pm. Tickets are $4 for students and general admission.

The all student cast includes: Deborah Coconis as "Raina," Christine Ile as "Catherine," Valerie Gamon as "Louka" and Clark Smith as "Bluntschli."

Also Tyrone King Jr., Rebecca Schneider and Bob Rafelson, he created the Monkees, a 'rock group' who appeared on a weekly television series and sold over twenty million records in 1968. The Monkees were created with one sole purpose-to make money. Surprisingly, they became an overnight sensation, but they were also branded as the scouge of the music world for the fact that they didn't play their own instruments. It is quite interesting to see how today, it is very common to see singers who are strictly performers, and have no voice in the creative process behind their music. It is also quite common to see a group or singer lip-sync their music in concert. How would this idea have gone over in the sixties?

For what it's worth, when the New Kids began their summer tour, they were the opening act for last year's teen queen Tiffany. By mid-summer, as the New Kids' album soared up the charts, Tiffany began opening for them, which just goes to show that whereas teen stars may burn brightly, in the eyes of the public they usually burn half as long.

And whether we like it or not, next year there will no doubt be new kids to replace the 'New Kids'.

"Arms and the Man"

George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" will mark the opening of the fall 1989 Performing Arts Center Season. The play will run this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The performances begin at 8 pm, with the exception of the Sunday matinee on Oct. 15 which begins at 2:30 pm. Tickets are $4 for students and general admission.

The all student cast includes: Deborah Coconis as "Raina," Christine Ile as "Catherine," Valerie Gamon as "Louka" and Clark Smith as "Bluntschli."

Also Tyrone King Jr., Rebecca Schneider and Bob Rafelson, he created the Monkees, a 'rock group' who appeared on a weekly television series and sold over twenty million records in 1968. The Monkees were created with one sole purpose-to make money. Surprisingly, they became an overnight sensation, but they were also branded as the scouge of the music world for the fact that they didn't play their own instruments. It is quite interesting to see how today, it is very common to see singers who are strictly performers, and have no voice in the creative process behind their music. It is also quite common to see a group or singer lip-sync their music in concert. How would this idea have gone over in the sixties?
Entertainment

Carlin on Campus

By Melissa Juliano
Staff Writer

"Welcome to Neil Diamond College!" "Boooooo00000000000," the audience replied as George Carlin took center stage at RWC on Sept. 29.

Opening for Carlin was comedian Dennis Blair. Blair, a musical comedian, who parodied every rock star from Bob Dylan to Bruce Springsteen to Mick Jagger, was successfully humourous despite the horrible acoustics throughout both his and Carlin's routines. Some of the audience in the middle and back of the auditorium would have had to have been able to read lips to hear what he was saying.

Carlin opened by insulting the school. "Welcome to Neil Diamond College!" That done he proceeded with a list of what he would not talk about which included every yuppyfied cliche and hackneyed phrase of the '80s. "We're not going to spend any quality time," he told us. You can say that again, George.

Then, Carlin gave some helpful hints on how to deal with life's most embarrassing incidents, most of which were vulgar and of poor taste. Carlin could not complete one whole sentence without swearing. Surprise, surprise. This was not a fault of the routine however, since most people who came to see it had some idea that Carlin is not exactly the type of comedian you take the kids to see.

Carlin made several jokes about the handicapped which many people did not find the least bit funny. And to the people who were laughing, you had to wonder how in the world they could find a joke about a person with one hand funny. He also blasted other groups including blacks. Again, most of these jokes missed since they were offensive.

Carlin opened by insulting the school. "Welcome to Neil Diamond College!" That done he proceeded with a list of what he would not talk about which included every yuppyfied cliche and hackneyed phrase of the '80s. "We're not going to spend any quality time," he told us. You can say that again, George.

Then, Carlin gave some helpful hints on how to deal with life's most embarrassing incidents, most of which were vulgar and of poor taste. Carlin could not complete one whole sentence without swearing. Surprise, surprise. This was not a fault of the routine however, since most people who came to see it had some idea that Carlin is not exactly the type of comedian you take the kids to see.

Carlin made several jokes about the handicapped which many people did not find the least bit funny. And to the people who were laughing, you had to wonder how in the world they could find a joke about a person with one hand funny. He also blasted other groups including blacks. Again, most of these jokes missed since they were offensive.

Not even the animal world escaped Carlin's wrath. "Cats are fur-covered vacuum cleaner bags." He did seem to like dogs mainly because they are gullible.

Carlin then expounded on generally stupid jokes about the handicapped which many people did not find the least bit funny. And to the people who were laughing, you had to wonder how in the world they could find a joke about a person with one hand funny. He also blasted other groups including blacks. Again, most of these jokes missed since they were offensive.

Health was another topic. He undauntedly sipped our Rhode Island water on stage saying he had no fear because a little bit of cancer wouldn't hurt anyone as long as they ate plenty of broccoli and cauliflower.

Carlin then expounded on generally stupid jokes about the handicapped which many people did not find the least bit funny. And to the people who were laughing, you had to wonder how in the world they could find a joke about a person with one hand funny. He also blasted other groups including blacks. Again, most of these jokes missed since they were offensive.

Carlin then expounded on generally stupid jokes about the handicapped which many people did not find the least bit funny. And to the people who were laughing, you had to wonder how in the world they could find a joke about a person with one hand funny. He also blasted other groups including blacks. Again, most of these jokes missed since they were offensive.

That was a prelude to his political jokes. These, vice president Dan Quayle and their spouses, Barbara and Marilyn.

"I find that I have difficulty with entertaining college audiences because it is difficult for them to have an opinion," he said. "We're not going to spend any quality time," he told us. You can say that again, George.

Then, Carlin gave some helpful hints on how to deal with life's most embarrassing incidents, most of which were vulgar and of poor taste. Carlin could not complete one whole sentence without swearing. "Welcome to Neil Diamond College!" That done he proceeded with a list of what he would not talk about which included every yuppyfied cliche and hackneyed phrase of the '80s. "We're not going to spend any quality time," he told us. You can say that again, George.

Then, Carlin gave some helpful hints on how to deal with life's most embarrassing incidents, most of which were vulgar and of poor taste. Carlin could not complete one whole sentence without swearing. "Welcome to Neil Diamond College!" That done he proceeded with a list of what he would not talk about which included every yuppyfied cliche and hackneyed phrase of the '80s. "We're not going to spend any quality time," he told us. You can say that again, George.

Then, Carlin gave some helpful hints on how to deal with life's most embarrassing incidents, most of which were vulgar and of poor taste. Carlin could not complete one whole sentence without swearing. "Welcome to Neil Diamond College!" That done he proceeded with a list of what he would not talk about which included every yuppyfied cliche and hackneyed phrase of the '80s. "We're not going to spend any quality time," he told us. You can say that again, George.
Sports

A Mass. Maritime rugby player has the ball but not for long. RWC took control to win the game by a score of 15-12.

Ramsey Poston wrestles the ball away from the opponent. RWC beat Mass. Maritime in front of 200 fans at Fort Adams Park, Newport.

RWC Hawks beat Mass. Maritime

By Mike Turner
Special to The Messenger

Late in the second half with two starters sidelined with injuries the RWC rugby team opened the scoring in the first half and led 6-0. But soon after the Hawks came back. Sari Patel faked and slashed his way up the side line and was stopped one meter out of the try zone when they passed the ball to Phil Zerofski who then dove in for the try. John Connor's kick was good for three points.

Mass Maritime opened up the scoring in the first half and led 6-0. But soon after the Hawks came back. Sari Patel faked and slashed his way up the side line and was stopped one meter out of the try zone when they passed the ball to Phil Zerofski who then dove in for the try. John Connor's kick was good for three points.

For three points a piece.

Slowly but surely the hawks were able to physically wear down the opponent. The pack was doing a great job of crashing down on Mass. Maritime every time they had the ball. It was this kind of play which led the Hawks to its second try.

The ball came out of the scrum on the opponent's side but Rick Kelleher, Keith Engstrom, Dave Lamme and Jamie Shyer destroyed Mass Maritime's scrum half and the ball was loose. Engstrom picked up the loose ball and galloped down the side line but was tackled short of the try zone and the ball was loose. The loose ball got kicked into the try zone and Shyer dove on the ball for the try. Chris Ferace (who had come in for Connor who was injured during the game) converted the try. The game was deadlocked at 6 all.

With a close game and tensions running high a fight broke out and then the crowd really got into the game. The Hawks were awarded a penalty kick from about 25 meters out. Ferace came on and nailed it for the go ahead and winning points. The hawks won 15-12 and are 2-0 in their division.

RWC defeats Bridgewater State

By Mike Turner
Special to The Messenger

On Sept. 23 the RWC rugby team travelled to Bridgewater. State College and defeated the home team 7-6 during its Homecoming.

The Hawks took control early in the game but had difficulty getting into the try zone. RWC won nearly every scrum down due to a massive surge by the pack and excellent hooking by Auggie Roma. However, Bridgewater finally crashed into the try zone for four points and after the conversion was good led 6-0. But the Hawks didn't let up and minutes later Chris Ferace broke away on the right side line and 65 meters later drove into the try zone for a score! John Connor's attempt to convert the try was slightly right of the post. The Hawks were now trailing 6-4.

At halftime the Hawks regrouped and now had the wind advantage. They moved the ball well but again found trouble getting into the try zone. This even looked to be remedied when Tim Good touched the ball down but was called back on account of a forward pass.

Then with about 15 minutes left, Connor booted a 35 meter penalty kick from a difficult angle for three points. The Hawks then took the lead by a score of 7-6 and held on to the end for the victory. Connor and Ferace were named "Players of the Week" for their efforts.

The Hawks (1-0) are in the running to win its division which includes Providence College, US Coast Guard Academy, Bryant College, Bridgewater College and Mass Maritime Academy. The B team also showed promise by ending up in a tie with Bridgewater's B team.

B Team vs. Mass Maritime

In the B game the Hawks won more convincingly with the final score 30-0. Points were scored by Ed Whalen, Ben Arons, Jeff Rosenstein, Paul Flyn, Rich Guilliano and two by Rich Peters. Peters was also named the B team's player of the week.
Profile: Gene "Gino" Kennedy

By Michele Baccarella and Steven Dwyer

Gene "Gino Capelli" Kennedy started playing youth soccer where he grew up in Duxbury, Mass. and stuck with it. He continued to play: at Duxbury High School and at Bridgton Academy Prep School in Maine where he spent a year before coming to Roger Williams.

"I loved it (soccer) when I started and even if we lose, I still love it," said Kennedy, one of this year's tri-captains and a member of the Men's Soccer Team since 1986.

Kennedy, a senior majoring in psychology and a minor in construction, also plays soccer with the Cornell team of the Sportsmen Soccer League out of Boston. He said he plans to play again with that league whose season starts up in the spring and runs into the summer. Kennedy who plays center, which he feels is his best position, has also played as a striker and outside midfielder.

Soccer is Kennedy's favorite sport even though he has played others including hockey and track in high school. He said he likes the running and aggressive nature of soccer.

He said he feels he plays better when the team plays a better team like Salem State but that it's frustrating to lose. "Right now we're (the team) unorganized and morale is low," Kennedy said. RWC, a division III team has a 2-10 record so far in the season which ends in November.

Right now soccer practice and games keep Kennedy busy but after the season, he said, he has a lot of time on his hands. To fill up some of that time, Kennedy is a volunteer with the Bristol Fire Department. He said he also enjoys working on and driving old cars.

After graduation he plans to work for his father's construction company out of Boston. Kennedy said it was an opportunity to open to me."

Kennedy said he and some of the other players who are graduating, are working with their coach, Marcus Jannitto, to schedule opponents who are more of the same caliber as RWC for next season. This will mean dropping some teams that are soundly beating us, Kennedy said, and picking up some schools such as Nichols college which are more on our level.

Men's Soccer

The Men's Soccer team had their first victory Tuesday Sept. 19 against Framingham State. They beat Framingham 4-1. Sophomore Jim Wrightson had two goals to lead the Hawks while Matt Carroll and Peter Klay each scored 1 goal a piece. Senior Bjorn Dragbeck scored 1 goal as well. Sophomore goalie Jim Tavarozi had 6 saves. The Hawks lost to Bryant 5-1 at Bryant Sept. 21.

Women's Tennis

The Women's Tennis team opened their season defeating Mitchell Junior College 6-3 at Mitchell Junior College Sept. 21. At Salve Regina during the RIAAW tournament on Saturday, Sept. 23, RWC placed third with a 2-1 record. RWC defeated SMU 6-3 at SMU Sept. 25, Bridgewater State 6-2 at Bridgewater Sept. 27 and they defeated Wentworth Institute 9-0 Sept. 28 at RWC.

Women's Volleyball

The Women's Volleyball team lost to SMU (15-11, 15-8) and to Bridgewater State (15-7, 15-9, 15-8) at Bridgewater Sept. 21. They also lost to the U.S. Coast Guard Academy (15-12, 16-14, 11-15, and 15-8) at the Coast Guard Academy and to Bryant College (15-3, 15-7, 15-9) at Bryant Sept. 27.

Volleyball Stats

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Wins</th>
<th>Losses</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>SMU</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bridgewater State</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.S. Coast Guard Academy</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bryant College</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Women's Volleyball Stats

- Tracey Roll: 4 ace serves against Coast Guard, 4 kills and 8 defensive saves. Attack Error Percentage 9%
- Maureen Gradley: 4 kills against Coast Guard, 11 saves on defense. A tack Error Percentage 6.6%

R&R Sports Inc.

490 Metacom Ave.
Bristol, RI
(401)253-3883

Institutional- Wholesale- Retail

Welcomes RWC-
Student discount w/ID card.

Specializing in Custom Embroidery & Screen Print Jackets - Sweatclothing - Athletic Apparel - Team Jerseys - Hats - Full Line of Adidas Shoes - Baden Basketballs - Soccerballs - Footballs

"October Special"
Royal Sweat Shirt w/RWC print in gold
$9.95

Open 9:00am-7:00pm Mon-Fri. Sat. 10-5pm

MC/Visa
ANTI-APARTHEID
RALLY
SAT. OCT. 14
8:30 pm - 12:30 pm
in the
Student Union
FREE ADMISSION
Free munchies FREE movies
Raffle T-shirts
Jewelry & Clothes for Sale
Free ice cream Posters & Pins for sale
LIVE REGGAE BAND
MYSTIC JAMMERS
Presented by: Andrea Montalbano, Bill O'Connell, Tony Ferreira
Freshmen Lose Visitation Rights

(CPS)-In what may be the strictest version of a nationwide trend toward limiting how students may use their dorm rooms, Kentucky State University freshmen have been told they can no longer have friends of the opposite sex visit them in their dorm rooms at any time.

KSU decided to stop all opposite sex visits this fall as a way of helping freshmen acclimate themselves to college life, said KSU spokesman, Joseph Burgess.

Students can be expelled if they violate dorm rules which forbid unauthorized residence entry after visiting hours and rape or sexual intercourse in a residence hall room.

Trim the Fat to Keep Tuition Down

(CPS)-Tuition would not go up as fast if colleges were run more like businesses, a panel of 19 "education specialists" reported in mid-September.

The panel, headed by Robert Zemsky, director of the Higher Education Research Program, said efficiency probably dictates closing some college facilities, but others to drop certain programs.

Zemsky's group, for example, suggested closing campuses that have low enrollment, which was likened to "outmoded military installation, both a drag on the general economy and a nuisance of scarce public funds."

Number of Professors Decreasing

(CPS)-Campuses will suffer a shortage of at least 6,000 professors by the end of the century unless they start hiring more students into grad schools now, a new Princeton University Press report predicts.

Princeton says the new report is the first statistical confirmation of the trend.

"We need to increase overall production of new Ph.D.s by two-thirds," said William G. Bowen, one of the report's authors. "In the humanities and social sciences, we need to double the current numbers."

He suggested shortening the time required to earn a Ph.D., increasing the number of fellowships offered and improving the amount of money they pay to grad students to something closer to a living wage.

In Search of A Macho Mascot

(CPS)-Student government members at the University of Central Florida are pushing to replace their "wimpy" school mascot with a macho one.

The current mascot, Mac the Knight, isn't tough enough, said Jeff Laing, student government staffer.

So student leaders, along with the Enterprise Club, have come up with their own macho mascot: Machktastalker, a big burly character who has spines protruding from his shoulders and carries a big club.

Knightstalkers will be前沿 of the student section at the football games, while alumni and other fans will settle for the official mascot, who, students say, is too much like the McDonald's character who sings syrupy songs on television commercials.

"For football, you need a mean guy," Laing said.

Freshmen Lose Visitation Rights

(CPS)-In what may be the strictest version of a nationwide trend toward limiting how students may use their dorm rooms, Kentucky State University freshmen have been told they can no longer have friends of the opposite sex visit them in their dorm rooms at any time.

KSU decided to stop all opposite sex visits this fall as a way of helping freshmen acclimate themselves to college life, said KSU spokesman, Joseph Burgess.

Students can be expelled if they violate dorm rules which forbid unauthorized residence entry after visiting hours and rape or sexual intercourse in a residence hall room.

Trim the Fat to Keep Tuition Down

(CPS)-Tuition would not go up as fast if colleges were run more like businesses, a panel of 19 "education specialists" reported in mid-September.

The panel, headed by Robert Zemsky, director of the Higher Education Research Program, said efficiency probably dictates closing some college facilities, but others to drop certain programs.

Zemsky's group, for example, suggested closing campuses that have low enrollment, which was likened to "outmoded military installation, both a drag on the general economy and a nuisance of scarce public funds."

Number of Professors Decreasing

(CPS)-Campuses will suffer a shortage of at least 6,000 professors by the end of the century unless they start hiring more students into grad schools now, a new Princeton University Press report predicts.

Princeton says the new report is the first statistical confirmation of the trend.

"We need to increase overall production of new Ph.D.s by two-thirds," said William G. Bowen, one of the report's authors. "In the humanities and social sciences, we need to double the current numbers."

He suggested shortening the time required to earn a Ph.D., increasing the number of fellowships offered and improving the amount of money they pay to grad students to something closer to a living wage.

In Search of A Macho Mascot

(CPS)-Student government members at the University of Central Florida are pushing to replace their "wimpy" school mascot with a macho one.

The current mascot, Mac the Knight, isn't tough enough, said Jeff Laing, student government staffer.

So student leaders, along with the Enterprise Club, have come up with their own macho mascot: Machktastalker, a big burly character who has spines protruding from his shoulders and carries a big club.

Knightstalkers will be前沿 of the student section at the football games, while alumni and other fans will settle for the official mascot, who, students say, is too much like the McDonald's character who sings syrupy songs on television commercials.

"For football, you need a mean guy," Laing said.

Some Things Never Change

In the Quill 20 years ago:

Music, music, music

Music is here to stay and in today's society there is a multitude of inventions by which to listen to music.

One such invention is the tape recorder. In the world today it has become a tape deck. The deck is available in three types. Leading the list in popularity as determined by the variety of tapes available, is the eight track deck. The next is the four track deck followed in by the least tape race with the cassette deck.

The Top Ten Popular tapes of Oct. 14, 1969 are:

1. This is Tom Jones
2. Crosby, Stills, and Nash
3. Hair - Original Cast
4. Nashville Skyline - Bob Dylan
5. Blood, Sweat and Tears
6. Galveston - Glen Campbell
7. Age of Aquarius - Fifth Dimension
8. Let the Sunshine Inside Ross and the Supremes
9. Cloud Nine - Temptations
10.Hawaii Five-O Ventures

Give peace a chance

Here at Roger Williams we will devote the day to discussing and protesting the war in Vietnam. In the spirit of making school relevant and meaningful for each student there will be a Teach-In, small group discussions, petitions, canvassing and conditions permitting a parade.

The Teach-In will begin at noon on the library steps. Mr. Ronald Davis from the History Department will outline our involvement in Vietnam and present some cultural and historical insight into the Vietnamese people. Mr Bruce Johnson, a veteran recently returned from Vietnam, will speak on his personal participation and observations while serving there. Other speakers will comment on other phases of the war. After the speakers will be around for questions and the rap sessions will resume. The speakers will provide new information and ideas to be rapped about.

IAE Billboard

On behalf of the brotherhood of Phi ALPHA Epsilon Fraternity, I would like to welcome all freshmen and new students to our college community both here in Bristol and in Providence.

In this column it is my contention to acquaint the students with the external life and to let the student body know that IAE is very much alive and working for the betterment of the school.

It is now that I tell you about the "biggee" of the social calendar, sweet friends and earthy Romans. It's at the Venus de Milo, Route 6, Swansea, Oct. 31. If you bring your witch "ugh" girl you better bring $2.50 or maybe have her pay half. If you can't find a "caldron cleaning cutie" then it's $1.50 (twice the bargain at half the price).

You'll be listening to the howling sounds of the Wolf Pack as you're howling yourself at the open bar. I'll be there, the one howling loudest.

Some prices at the Newport Creamery 20 years ago.

$1.25 for char-broiled 6 oz. Delmonico steak (mushrooms $2.25 extra)
$1.25 for deep fried clams with tartar sauce
$1.45 for deep fried chicken

INTER
OFFICE MEMO

Discussion groups of the RWC Women's Center will be held on Sunday afternoon at 4 pm this year. Due to the space crunch on campus, meeting will be held in "That Place" at least for the month of October.

There was such a tremendous response to last semester's discussion groups that many people on campus have been anxious to begin talking, sharing, and implementing programs to address women's needs on campus.

Interested persons should contact Lisa Lisiecki at extension 2085 to find out how to get involved or for more information.

Rina Sky Wolfgang, Jewish Chaplain at RWC, has office hours during the first and third Thursday of every month. She will be at the campus on Oct. 5, 12 and Nov. 2.
AIDS: What You Can Do To Reduce Your Risk

By Sally Lynowski
Health Educator

AIDS stands for Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, the final stage of a progressive illness caused by the human immunodeficiency virus. People with AIDS suffer from a range of unusual, life-threatening infections and/or rare types of cancer. Since its first recognition as a health problem in the United States in 1983, the general public has largely viewed AIDS as a "Homosexual disease." Most Americans have felt little or no sense of getting the disease unless they fell into certain risk groups: homosexual/bisexual men, IV drug users, hemophiliacs or blood transfusion recipients. However in 1989, evidence shows that AIDS can be transmitted sexually between men and women, from mother to infant before or after birth, and to sexual partners of infected IV drug users. In addition, alone, there are currently nearly 300 reportable cases of AIDS!

In fact, a recent study conducted at colleges and universities nationwide found that 1 in 500 students carries the AIDS virus without ever knowing they've been exposed to it. College staff need to lead this effort to deny this fact, argues that AIDS only affects the homosexual/ bisexual drug users, not the "typical" college type. Unfortunately, these misinformed folks believe that it's who you are, not what you do, that determines whether you get AIDS. The reality is that college students are at high risk because of their lifestyles and approaches to risk reducing sexual behavior. AIDS is not an easy disease to get, and cannot be transmitted through casual contact, such as shaking hands, sitting near an affected person in class, or using a telephone booth. AIDS is transmitted by intimate (sexual) contact and exposure to contaminated blood. Chances are, you won't develop AIDS if you take the following positive steps to reduce your risk!

Reducing Your Risk

The risk of AIDS can be reduced by:
1) reducing the number of sexual partners, whether you're gay or straight.
2) knowing your partner well before having sex.
3) avoiding the exchange of body fluids during sex. Use a condom every time, even if your partner of birth control is used.
4) avoid any injury to the body tissues during sex.
5) not using intravenous drugs or sharing needles includes steroids.

AIDS is not an easy disease to get, and cannot be transmitted through casual contact, such as shaking hands, sitting near an affected person in class, or using a telephone booth. AIDS is transmitted by intimate (sexual) contact and exposure to contaminated blood. Chances are, you won't develop AIDS if you take the following positive steps to reduce your risk!

By Debra Westgate
Staff Writer

"I want to take responsibility for the fact that I may find myself in a situation and I want to be prepared", one female student said.

Ferreira, who holds a blackbelt, has taught martial arts for the past eight years, to groups someday help them ward off an attack. The self-defense class practices some kicks that may someday help them ward off an attack. The class is being taught by John Ferreira, a patrolman with the BPD, being that the class is co-offered by people who pass by seem interested too," said Ferreira who hopes to establish a regular program where students can achieve ranks and become certified.

"The class is going well and everyone is having a good time. And they are learning kicking and grabbing techniques to be used to protect oneself in case of an attack.

Ferreira, who has studied martial arts since age 9, reminds his students that the techniques they learn are to be used only when their lives are in danger.

"The course is designed to prepare people physically and mentally against several different kinds of attack," Ferreira said. "I chose to show the class how to defend themselves if they were attacked by a mugger, an individual and rear and two-handed choke hold.

Ferreira said he would show the class what to do if they were confronted with a gun or knife attack towards the end but for the most part is concentrating on teaching defense to everyday kind of attack situations students might find themselves in.

Some students who signed up for the class said they did so in order to learn how to handle themselves in an event of an attack.

"I want to take responsibility for the fact that I may find myself in a situation and I want to be prepared," one female student said.

Ferreira, who holds a blackbelt, has taught martial arts for the past eight years, to groups someday help them ward off an attack. The self-defense class practices some kicks that may someday help them ward off an attack. The class is being taught by John Ferreira, a patrolman with the BPD, being that the class is co-offered by people who pass by seem interested too," said Ferreira who hopes to establish a regular program where students can achieve ranks and become certified.

"The class is going well and everyone is having a good time. And they are learning kicking and grabbing techniques to be used to protect oneself in case of an attack.

Ferreira, who has studied martial arts since age 9, reminds his students that the techniques they learn are to be used only when their lives are in danger.

"The course is designed to prepare people physically and mentally against several different kinds of attack," Ferreira said. "I chose to show the class how to defend themselves if they were attacked by a mugger, an individual and rear and two-handed choke hold.

Ferreira said he would show the class what to do if they were confronted with a gun or knife attack towards the end but for the most part is concentrating on teaching defense to everyday kind of attack situations students might find themselves in.

Some students who signed up for the class said they did so in order to learn how to handle themselves in an event of an attack.

"I want to take responsibility for the fact that I may find myself in a situation and I want to be prepared," one female student said.

Ferreira, who holds a blackbelt, has taught martial arts for the past eight years, to groups someday help them ward off an attack. The self-defense class practices some kicks that may someday help them ward off an attack. The class is being taught by John Ferreira, a patrolman with the BPD, being that the class is co-offered by people who pass by seem interested too," said Ferreira who hopes to establish a regular program where students can achieve ranks and become certified.

"The class is going well and everyone is having a good time. And they are learning kicking and grabbing techniques to be used to protect oneself in case of an attack.

Ferreira, who has studied martial arts since age 9, reminds his students that the techniques they learn are to be used only when their lives are in danger.

"The course is designed to prepare people physically and mentally against several different kinds of attack," Ferreira said. "I chose to show the class how to defend themselves if they were attacked by a mugger, an individual and rear and two-handed choke hold.

Ferreira said he would show the class what to do if they were confronted with a gun or knife attack towards the end but for the most part is concentrating on teaching defense to everyday kind of attack situations students might find themselves in.

Some students who signed up for the class said they did so in order to learn how to handle themselves in an event of an attack.

"I want to take responsibility for the fact that I may find myself in a situation and I want to be prepared," one female student said.

Ferreira, who holds a blackbelt, has taught martial arts for the past eight years, to groups someday help them ward off an attack. The self-defense class practices some kicks that may someday help them ward off an attack. The class is being taught by John Ferreira, a patrolman with the BPD, being that the class is co-offered by people who pass by seem interested too," said Ferreira who hopes to establish a regular program where students can achieve ranks and become certified.

"The class is going well and everyone is having a good time. And they are learning kicking and grabbing techniques to be used to protect oneself in case of an attack.

Ferreira, who has studied martial arts since age 9, reminds his students that the techniques they learn are to be used only when their lives are in danger.

"The course is designed to prepare people physically and mentally against several different kinds of attack," Ferreira said. "I chose to show the class how to defend themselves if they were attacked by a mugger, an individual and rear and two-handed choke hold.

Ferreira said he would show the class what to do if they were confronted with a gun or knife attack towards the end but for the most part is concentrating on teaching defense to everyday kind of attack situations students might find themselves in.

Some students who signed up for the class said they did so in order to learn how to handle themselves in an event of an attack.

"I want to take responsibility for the fact that I may find myself in a situation and I want to be prepared," one female student said.

Ferreira, who holds a blackbelt, has taught martial arts for the past eight years, to groups someday help them ward off an attack. The self-defense class practices some kicks that may someday help them ward off an attack. The class is being taught by John Ferreira, a patrolman with the BPD, being that the class is co-offered by people who pass by seem interested too," said Ferreira who hopes to establish a regular program where students can achieve ranks and become certified.

"The class is going well and everyone is having a good time. And they are learning kicking and grabbing techniques to be used to protect oneself in case of an attack.

Ferreira, who has studied martial arts since age 9, reminds his students that the techniques they learn are to be used only when their lives are in danger.

"The course is designed to prepare people physically and mentally against several different kinds of attack," Ferreira said. "I chose to show the class how to defend themselves if they were attacked by a mugger, an individual and rear and two-handed choke hold.

Ferreira said he would show the class what to do if they were confronted with a gun or knife attack towards the end but for the most part is concentrating on teaching defense to everyday kind of attack situations students might find themselves in.

Some students who signed up for the class said they did so in order to learn how to handle themselves in an event of an attack.

"I want to take responsibility for the fact that I may find myself in a situation and I want to be prepared," one female student said.

Ferreira, who holds a blackbelt, has taught martial arts for the past eight years, to groups someday help them ward off an attack. The self-defense class practices some kicks that may someday help them ward off an attack. The class is being taught by John Ferreira, a patrolman with the BPD, being that the class is co-offered by people who pass by seem interested too," said Ferreira who hopes to establish a regular program where students can achieve ranks and become certified.

"The class is going well and everyone is having a good time. And they are learning kicking and grabbing techniques to be used to protect oneself in case of an attack.

Ferreira, who has studied martial arts since age 9, reminds his students that the techniques they learn are to be used only when their lives are in danger.

"The course is designed to prepare people physically and mentally against several different kinds of attack," Ferreira said. "I chose to show the class how to defend themselves if they were attacked by a mugger, an individual and rear and two-handed choke hold.

Ferreira said he would show the class what to do if they were confronted with a gun or knife attack towards the end but for the most part is concentrating on teaching defense to everyday kind of attack situations students might find themselves in.
STUDENT FROM PAGE 5
What does it mean to be a "college student"? Does it mean wanting to learn, or talking about wanting to learn? Or, does it mean, going out and learning? I guess it's your decision.

BULB FROM PAGE 6
lightbulbs or was it a group of about four or five highly skilled technicians who worked from dawn til dusk, like little magic elves, to complete the project. Whatever or whoever was responsible, I thank them. Now I only worry about what will happen when the bulbs need to be changed.

WOMEN FROM PAGE 3
cience teacher and moved to what she described as a "bad" area in Providence. Morancy said she decided to run for State Rep. in order to improve the conditions around her. "More women are needed in the government," Morancy said, "laws and politics must come from those who experience it. Politics is service."
Lederberg, a former teacher who is now a Senator for R.I., believes that politics are a part of the educational process. "Politics shouldn't be separated from anything," Lederberg said.
When campaigning for office, Lederberg realized that the people in politics make decisions that affect her. "What we can and cannot do is decided by other people," she said. Lederberg said that the community must become involved in politics, especially women, in order to maintain the people's laws and regulations. The government will only improve, Lederberg said, if we take the time to improve it. She added, "If you can't run for office, choose who will." A brief question and answer session followed the discussion.

The Advisory Board are representatives from the class who offer their time and energy to plan, arrange, publicize and attend fundraisers. Meetings are open to any member of the Junior Class and are held on Wednesdays from 6 to 7 pm in the Student Commons. Upcoming events are:

- Transportation to the Head of the Charles to watch the crew races, on Sunday, Oct. 22.
- Hypnotist Ken Weber returns on Thursday, Oct. 26 and Halloween Telegrams on Tuesday, Oct. 31.
- The Junior Class will also sponsor the concession stand at "A Nighting with Adam West," on Friday, Oct. 13.

Also coming up is The Snowball Semi-Formal at the Newport Marriott on Oct. 15.
EARN $$$
Looking for a fraternity sorority or student organization that would like to make $500-$1000 for a one week on-campus marketing project. Must be organized and hard working. Call Elizabeth or Myra at (800) 592-2121

MONKEY BUSINESS
The on-campus gift shop.
T-shirts, ties, boxes & stuffed animals.
Reasonable prices. Dorm.
1 Rm 706, Allison Randall.

Help Wanted
College/Campus Representative Earn tops, Flexible Hours. Fun.
Enjoyable. Rewarding, up to $20,000 Per Year. By Helping Friends Receive
Grants/Scholarships. For
Info Please Call:
(213) 965-2115

ANTI-APARTHEID RALLY
Sat. Oct. 13 8:30 P.M.
in the student union.
LIVE REGGAE BAND
"Mythic Jammers"
FREE ADMISSION FOR ALL
Cultural gifts for sale
(T-shirts, posters & jewelry) free ice cream movie & munchies.

FOR SALE
White 1977 VW bus
w/camper top. $1800
For info call 254-1934
Ask for Pam

FOR SALE
Excellent at Price!
Beautiful 14k gold overlay necklaces with matching bracelets.
Only $20 for each set.
Call Andrea 253-0849

TYPING
Need something typed? Need it typed fast?
Need the job done right?
Let's do your typing.
Jobs. Will type anything
up to 7 pages with two days notice. $2.50 per page. Will spell-check & deliver it to your room. You pay when you have the finished product. Call Michelle at 253-0646 leave msg.
or call x2229.

DON'S ART SHOP
543 MAIN STREET, WARREN RI
245-4583

Gallery
Art Classes

Art & Drafting Supplies

ROGER WILLIAMS COLLEGE
STUDENTS...

10% discount 'til end of semester with student ID.

THE BEST PART-TIME JOBS ANYWHERE!

- $8-9 an hour!
- Ideal for college students!
- Full benefits for part-time work!
- Potential promotion to supervisory position, before graduation!

When it comes to part-time work, nobody offers college students more than UPS! Right now, we have opportunities for part-time Package Handlers in many of our Eastern Massachusetts facilities. Benefits include full medical, dental, profit sharing, vacation time, personal days, and much more!

UPS has locations in Watertown, Norwood, Brockton, Sagamore, Dennis, Dartmouth, and Warwick, R.I. For application information, contact your Student Employment Office or call (617) 762-9911.
The Roger Williams College
Student Activities Council
Invites you to spend:
"An evening with Adam West"
The Original Batman

Friday,
October 13, 1989
in the
Paolino Recreation Center

Doors Open @ 7:00pm
Showtime @ 7:30pm

General Admission tickets for RWC
Students and their Guests:

$3.00 each in advance.
$6.00 each at the door.
- Limited Seating -

Advance tickets On-Sale:
Monday, Oct. 9th thru Friday, Oct. 13th in the Student Center Lobby:

11am - 1:30pm
4:30 - 6:30pm

For more information, Call (401)253-1040 Ext.2076 or 2228.
The Roger Williams College

Student Senate

cordially invites

the

College Community

to its

Induction Ceremony
on

Wednesday, October 11
at

8:30pm
in the cafeteria.

A reception will follow the ceremony.

Students this is your chance to meet your Student Senate Representatives!
Dear Paul, Let's head for the mountains...tomorrow! Log cabins, waterfalls, burning fires and cognac. See you there.

Debbie and Amy of Dorm 2. The fun has just begun, and hell is just around the corner. But despite all that battling, you gals are good friends. C-Ya The boys who are "watching you."

Jen, I can't believe how bad we are! Typewriter anyone? - Jess Jimbeam was stolen by Debbie in the townhouses.

Sue, I really miss you- school's not the same without you! - Jess

Sandy, Will you please keep it down at night. I can't sleep. The male upstairs.

Paul, of Unit 12. You think you're pretty good at pool and you've beaten me at tennis, well, who has a girlfriend! Gotcha!

Michele, Will I be adding another one to the list soon. Mark was here.

Lisa, do you think Sean is up for a sheet beat? Mark

Mark, can we talk. Claire

Unit 6 Josh, Check before you enter a stall for now on, ok kid. C-Ya The Boinker.

Emma, who's bed are you sleeping in tonight?

Hey Josh buddy, Where are our Jens C-Ya Defab

PB - Don't forget the nylon rope! - JL

Hey Lara, Shhh! Luv, Your Unitmates

Shlonger, Get a life!!!

Galile

Hey Justine and Lisa, you guys are scumbags. Love Mark.

Hey Deno - More trips to Boston, so we both can come home smiling!! Bam Bam

Todd, You are my Love and my Life. You are my inspiration. SB

Chris, Thanks for the Stones ticket. I love you sooo much!!! Your HoneyBunch XOXOXO

Larry F. - I'm not into that kind of man. Guido

Duncan and Michelle-Good Luck! We have faith in you guys! Love, Wendy and Jen

Dave, Hi, here is your personal. Now I want one. - M.

Chris, Happy birthday early and only 10 days until we're on our way home. Can't wait. How about you? - Your Ride.

Jess, Be careful with your toys. You wouldn't want anyone to get hurt in the process of adding one to the list, would you now?

Defab, You got no Poob! Brrr! C-Ya!

To all those people who tried to beat me in pool (especially Josh from Unit 12) Nice try and try again in a year. Pretty Boy Floyd

Hey Goodie, How's your batch? Lax 13

Please keep our swing area clean. All the trash just totally sucks. Thanks - Concerned

Unit 353, Batch Brigade

Hey Barnyard Bizzare Fans, See you all on the farm, bring your blankets.

Sandy and Laura of Unit 12 really like to ride those horses! Keep on riding!

I give my gratitude to the poor souls who are stuck in never ending 24 hour QUIET Zone. A fellow Unit 12 member

Dear Brookie, Hope you have a nice day and a great week, come sailin'. We miss ya "R"

Hey Sweetums on fourth floor south. Keep your eyes open Rael

Shoebuff - More snowboarding weekends without any dislocations. I love you bro. DJ

Mike the RA in Unit 4 Beware of 415 - this is the final warning so watch your back
Think of The Boston Globe as a daily reminder that your new roommate isn't the weirdest person in the world.

The Boston Globe

The Boston Globe
ON YOUR CAMPUS
AT 45% OFF THE NEWSSTAND PRICE.

ROGER WILLIAMS COLLEGE

FALL TERM
Daily & Sunday $17.00 Fall Delivery Alan Whitten
Daily Only $9.00 starts Oct. 16 Box 643
Sundays Only $8.00 Roger Williams College
5 Days Mon-Fri $7.50 —Via Campus Mail—

No delivery during school holidays or final exams.
All subscriptions are payable in advance by semester.
Students with curving starting dates may have their subscriptions prorated.

YES, I want The Boston Globe on campus!
If you prefer Credit Card payment to The Boston Globe.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CREDIT CARD</th>
<th>Exp. Date</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>VISA</td>
<td>Exp. Date</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

STUDENT NAME _______________________
Campus Address _______________________
Class Year _______________________
Home Address _______________________
State ____________________________ Zip ____________ Home Phone _______

Signature _______________________

—Daily & Sunday
—Daily Only
—Sunday Only

Cardholder Name _______________________
Exp. Date _______________________

Instructor _______________________

Alan Whitten
Box 643
Roger Williams College
—Via Campus Mail—