

Roger Williams University

DOCS@RWU

Law School Blogs

School of Law Publications

9-28-2012

Dean Logan's Blog: Tradition of Public Interest Pot-lucks Continues

Roger Williams University School of Law

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.rwu.edu/law_pubs_blogs

Recommended Citation

Roger Williams University School of Law, "Dean Logan's Blog: Tradition of Public Interest Pot-lucks Continues" (2012). Law School Blogs. 125.
https://docs.rwu.edu/law_pubs_blogs/125

This Document is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Law Publications at DOCS@RWU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Law School Blogs by an authorized administrator of DOCS@RWU. For more information, please contact mwu@rwu.edu.

Dean Logan's Blog

Tradition of Public Interest Pot-lucks Continues

Posted by David Logan on 09/28/2012 at 04:02 PM

One of the fun, and unofficial, traditions at RWU Law is the Potluck Dinners at the home of Laurie Barron, the crackerjack head of our Feinstein Institute for Legal Service. Once a semester, some of the many RWU students committed to Public Interest Law gather at Laurie's home way out in the Tiverton boonies for an evening of food, fun, and fellowship. Here are a couple comments from attendees at the fall '12 gathering:

“
The Potlucks at Laurie Barron's house are never dull! Always a great time to mingle with fellow law students and faculty members in a very informal setting.
”

- Tunde Adepegba

“
As a 2L, this was actually my first APIL potluck, and it was definitely a success. I met many of the nice people who coordinate the Feinstein Institute, and many of the new students who participated in this event. Best of all, I enjoyed great food all prepared by my peers, and left completely full and satisfied!
”

- Layi Oduyingbo

Here are some pics from that fun evening.

