

“Celebrating the spaces we live in”

We walk upon Mother Nature’s surface,
Sharing the land with thousands of other living creatures.
No one person owns the land,
As it was created for all.
What we take from the Earth, we must give.
What the Earth gives, we must celebrate.
We should recognize the beauty of the Earth we stand on,
Recognize the beauty of the life beneath us.
We are simply small creatures,
Born amongst the bountiful life of our Home.
From the crashing waves of Mt. Hope Bay
To the clovers that sprout up amongst the grassy fields,
We are surrounded by immense beauty.
It is time we acknowledge it,
Because there is not much time left.
This beauty will soon be replaced,
Destroyed by pollutants and trash.
It is time we learn to live amongst Nature,
Time we learn to save and give back to our planet,
Time we celebrate the beauty of the planet we live on.
