

The star of Earth
Lays itself down upon
Dirt and speckled grass

Bringing warmth to trees
And wonder to all
Fill your eyes with its sight

A green world
spread out before us
Bound by the infinite

Glistening with patchwork gold
Rusty oaks soar through the sunlight
And bask unknowingly in their glory

So breathe in what surrounds you
And find a light upon this path
Take root in this rich soil

And reach far
For Your branches make heaven
And blossom for all to see