

10-21-2013

Dean Logan's Blog: RWU Law, Connecting across the Country

Roger Williams University School of Law

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.rwu.edu/law_pubs_blogs

Recommended Citation

Roger Williams University School of Law, "Dean Logan's Blog: RWU Law, Connecting across the Country" (2013). Law School Blogs. 20.

https://docs.rwu.edu/law_pubs_blogs/20

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Law Publications at DOCS@RWU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Law School Blogs by an authorized administrator of DOCS@RWU. For more information, please contact mwu@rwu.edu.

Dean Logan's Blog

RWU Law, Connecting across the Country

Posted by David Logan on 10/21/2013 at 02:02 PM

They say "it's a small world," and an email I recently received proves that adage....

Luis Mancheno, RWU Law class of 2013, was just settling into his new job at the Florence Immigrant and Refugee Rights Project in Arizona, when he came across a proudly-displayed poster for the movie Conviction. Here's the connection: the movie recounts the gripping story of RWU Law grad Betty Anne Waters (class of 1998, and now a globe-trotting emissary for human rights), who devoted her life (including going to law school), to freeing her wrongfully-convicted brother.

<http://law.rwu.edu/story/usa-today-profiles-hilary-swank-betty-anne-waters-98>

Betty Anne had visited the Florence Project and autographed a poster while there. Small world, indeed, especially for our far-flung graduates.

