Keynote Address by Sheryll D. Cashin
Professor of Law, Georgetown University Law Center

The Agitator's Daughter: A Memoirist's Reflections on Building
Dr. King's 'Multiracial Army' for the Poor

In her keynote address Sheryll Cashin, Professor of Law at Georgetown University, will discuss the Poor People's Campaign of 1968 and the central role her parents played in organizing it. She will talk about what the Campaign was about, the values Dr. King and others brought to it, why it is not celebrated today, and where we are today with antipoverty issues.

Professor Cashin teaches Constitutional Law and Race and American Law, among other subjects. She writes about race relations and inequality in America. Her new book, The Agitator's Daughter: A Memoir of Four Generations of One Extraordinary African-American Family (PublicAffairs, 2008) traces the arc of American race relations through generations of her family. Her book, The Failures of Integration: How Race and Class are Undermining the American Dream (PublicAffairs, 2004) was an Editors' Choice in the New York Times Book Review and a finalist for the 2005 Hurston/Wright Legacy Award for non-fiction.

Friday, January 23, 2009
12:30 – 2:30 p.m.
Room 283
Movie and Discussion

This event, co-sponsored by the Multi-Cultural Law Students Association will feature a screening of the PBS documentary "Waging a Living."

A discussion facilitated by Liz Tobin Tyler, Director of Public Service and Community Partnerships at the Feinstein Institute, will follow.
