

Law Library Briefs

Roger Williams University School of Law Library

No. 3, November, 2002

Spotlight on Foreign Law

Looking for European Union, United Kingdom, or Human Rights Act of 1998 materials? The LawTel electronic database service is worth checking out. Need to know about online sources for other foreign legal systems? Take a look at the Guide to Law Online.

Research Tips From the Experts:

LawTel

The LawTel electronic database provides access to a variety of European Union, United Kingdom, and Human Rights Act of 1998 materials. LawTel EU materials include cases, legislation, commission reports, treaties, press releases, and an index to articles published in several European legal periodicals. Article abstracts are available. LawTel UK has cases, legislation, and an articles index to numerous legal publications with abstracts available. LawTel's comprehensive information service on the Human Rights Act of 1998 provides case comments and commentary on the Act. A search engine allows keyword searching of the LawTel site.

This site is accessible only from a Law School computer workstation or by using the Law Library's proxy service (instructions are located at <http://law.rwu.edu/LawLib/instructions.html>). Access to this web site is limited to members of the RWU Law School Community. To access LawTel, go to the Law Library's home page at <http://law.rwu.edu/LawLib> and click on "Research Links." Scroll down to "Consortium and Subscriptions Sites," select LawTel from the pull-down menu and click on "Go." For further assistance, ask the Librarian at the Reference Desk.

Guide to Law Online

This highly useful resource is prepared by the Law Library of Congress, Public Services Division. This is an annotated guide to sources for foreign online government and legal information. It also includes selected links to useful and reliable sites. Wherever possible, these links include sources of full text materials. Links include official government sites, materials directed to attorneys, and materials provided for the lay public. The Guide is available at <http://www.loc.gov/law/guide/index.html>.

Finding a database on LexisNexis

LexisNexis users may have noticed that the "Search Sources" directory on LexisNexis has been redesigned. You must now select from either the Legal, News & Business, or Public Records tab under "Look for a Source" to access the databases within that area. Only the links to the most frequently used databases by LexisNexis users are displayed. Click on the "View more sources" links to access additional databases. If you are having difficulty locating a database, use the "Find a Source" feature by clicking on the "Find a Source" tab. Make certain the "Match terms in long names" is selected. Type in the title of the source and click on "Find" button. You can also browse through an alphabetical listing of databases. If you need help with finding a database, ask the Librarian at the Reference Desk for assistance or speak to a LexisNexis reference attorney via the red courtesy telephone located in Training Lab 1.