RWU Law Programs Saluted in Major Report from the Legal Services Commission

Posted by David Logan on 10/12/2012 at 04:46 PM

We are very proud of our public interest programs, and a recent report from the Legal Services Corporation (the national organization that oversees the delivery of legal services to the poor) underscores why: we were saluted not once, but twice. First, for our graduation requirement of 50 hours (cited along with Columbia, Penn, and Harvard) and then for our unique Pro Bono Collaborative <http://law.rwu.edu/pbc>, which links our law students, leading RI law firms, and community organizations that serve the poor. Here is a link to the full report.
