This afternoon, Angela Winfield, CDO for the Law School Admission Council (LSAC), delivered the 17th Annual Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Keynote Address, generously supported by Nixon Peabody, LLP.

Winfield defined MLK's four primary leadership qualities as love, hope, pride, and persistence, and spoke of how we can all apply those qualities to our own work to "find the leader within," and carry his work forward.

Winfield closed with a quote from Dr. King: "When you combine the toughness of the serpent and the softness of the dove, a tough mind and a tender heart, that to me is what moves mountains and makes change."

A graduate of Barnard College of Columbia University and Cornell Law School, and a member of the NY bar, Winfield previously served as Assoc VP for Inclusion and Workforce Diversity at Cornell. She sits on the board of directors for Reader's Digest Partners for Sight Foundation, and Success Beyond Sight.
