9-2011

Hawks' Herald -- September 2011 -- Orientation Issue

Roger Williams University

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.rwu.edu/hawk_herald

Part of the Education Commons

Recommended Citation

https://docs.rwu.edu/hawk_herald/153

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Publications at DOCS@RWU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hawk's Herald by an authorized administrator of DOCS@RWU. For more information, please contact mwu@rwu.edu.
Looking back: 2010-2011

Donald J. Farish named 10th president of RWU

REIM WHITEHEAD / Editors-in-Chief

Roger Williams University announced Donald J. Farish as its tenth university president at an announcement ceremony Tuesday in the Global Heritage Hall (GHH) Atrium.

Farish, 68, the current president of Rowan University in New Jersey, will officially take office on July 1, succeeding current interim President Ronald Champagne.

Farish’s appointment culminates a multi-month effort from the University Board of Trustees to appoint a university president.

After enlisting the help of third-party search firm Academic Search, Inc. and the Board of Trustees worked through the past fall semester and into the spring to whittle the list of candidates to three finalists, who were all given on-campus interviews, according to Beadle.

"I think it was really during that campus visit that Don just really, really stood out," said Denise Jenkins, Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees and Co-Chair of the Presidential Search Committee. "My own, the three candidates would have done a wonderful job running this university. But the fact of the matter is Don seemed like the right fit.

According to Jenkins, both the presidential search committee and the rest of the 23-member Board of Trustees unanimously supported Farish’s appointment.

"I think it’s a perfect ending to a very important and long process," Champagne said. "And the way it was done legitimized what came out. In our own senses, it is a very good man. The search committee did a wonderful job, was very well composed, and they did spend a lot of time doing it.

"I think the thing that stood out most about Farish when compared with the other wrappers, whom I also worked with, is that he’s been a president before 13 years," Champagne said.

"As a president myself for 14 years, I’m going to tell you: you don’t learn how to do that from a text book. You learn it by doing it. You can see that in how he handles himself and you can see that in how he operates himself," Champagne said.

At Tuesday’s announcement ceremony, Farish addressed a crowd of approximately 250 people, comprised of university administrators, faculty, and students, Bristol Town Council members, and local and state news media.

"I spent the last four to five months doing the search along with 16 other people on the committee, and I think we picked the right guy to do the right job," said Richard Beadle, Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

After enlisting the help of third-party search firm Academic Search, Inc. to generate a list of interested applicants, the Board of Trustees worked through the past fall semester and into the spring to whittle the list of candidates to three finalists, who were all given on-campus interviews, according to Beadle.

"I think it was really during that campus visit that Don just really, really stood out," said Denise Jenkins, Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees and Co-Chair of the Presidential Search Committee. "My own, the three candidates would have done a wonderful job running this university. But the fact of the matter is Don seemed like the right fit."
Upgraded version of the previous text

"Deeply honored to be offered this change," Professor Farish said. "My personal values and the work that I've spearheaded in my previous role in higher education administration are consistent with the work that I want to do here."

"I'm deeply honored to be offered this opportunity," Professor Farish said. "I've been working towards this position for many years, and I believe I'm the right person for the job."
Medical amnesty seeks to staunch fear, encourage safety

AKIKA NEWMAN Managing Editor

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the ex­citement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.

The Board of Trustees recently approved the installation of a turf field, much to the excitement of many on campus.

At their Dec. 10 meeting, the Board of Trustees would vote to pass the field, a decision that was narrowly avoided by others.
Young girl informed Siino that another $20,000. Siino says he bought a bag for himself at the restaurant, Nacho Mama's, and put it behind the bar from a tour of the school mascot. "I knew that it was someone's money, but I couldn't believe there was a little amount of money by any chance," Siino said.

Siino was left in Nacho Mama's around 1 p.m. in the afternoon. Around 6 p.m., young girl informed Siino that she had found a $20,000 cash in the bottom of the bag. Siino said that Nacho Mama's lost its found cash had never so valuable in the past. The bag set in the bar for a few days until someone knew it was there. Siino immediately called the police to report the bag down police as it was petty crazy, however, the police called the cops, and the cops didn't know what to do. They were looking up the bag and got to receive on the map!

While the Bistro Police were looking for the person who left the bag, Nacho Mama's received a phone call right before they were about to close the restaurant. "He said, is there any chance of someone loss of money, lost money don't have to worry about being found, with the salary in the bag, he was given a reward for making the right choice. The man who lost the money gave Siino $10,000 reward." Siino said.

"He handed me the envelope with the money, it was an engagement ring and a $20,000, and there was a note saying, 'he is very happy in his belongings is happy, and now he is happy, too.' The man was happy behind the bag. The professional gambler who lost the money was universal because there was a lot of money, so he was very happy to have his belongings returned to him. "Everybody could have come in here, met, looked at it, and you're not sure, but it's just for hours." Siino said.

"This is a very unusual event as take place in here in Black and very unlikely event for Nacho Mama's" Siino said.

"You would be surprised how many people have come up to me and said, man you're a honest man, you're not sure if that money. Siino said. "It's an easy way and I just bought a lot of things - things to the gym and I have no idea about other positive things to come."

facebook

Acrobatic classes at RWU allow students to work out.

Swoop: behind the peak of RWU's mascot

FEATURES

Student may be surprised to hear that the identity of the new RWU mascot kind on campus is being kept top secret. Roger Williams University's mascot, better known to the student body as Swoop, is one of the most well-known figures on campus, appearing in sporting events, social gatherings, and different weekend activities. Over 300 million people who have ever taken a note or seen a yearbook in their possession know that the school mascot is shown through a select group of students.

"Currently we have six student assistants serving as Swoop," Salvo said. She added that each student has an opportunity to apply for the position of the school mascot.

"We release applications to the student body at the beginning of each semester and then academic advisors who return an application. From those choices we will determine who gets to be the role of the school mascot," Salvo said.

Swoop is a well-known addition to our student body and mascot, better known to the student body and mascot supporters. Although Swoop is open to any qualified student through OrgSync, an organization of student groups, the student must have a perfect GPA, a comment, and be a student in the university website.

"We try to fit every person's niche. If a student wants to see a class offered, they can suggest it," Andrus said.

Junior Jake Fisher said and agrees with the suggests of offering of extra classes is very useful for students. "I went to a few spin classes and learned them. Having these three classes allows students to experiment in a group," Fisher said.

He added that it helps to keep students motivated instead of having to participate in the traditional intense personal weight loss sessions. Students can find schedules of all of the offered classes both online at the RWU website and posted around the Recreation Center.
For some, romance is a click away.

CRISIS REPORT

Not-so-eating Students cope with gluten allergies

For many, eating out on a daily basis is a simple luxury. Watching a menu march on by, one might pause to savor or even substitute a dish, only to find the staples of life's joys, such as pasta or stir-fry, are off the menu completely. For many, finding that special someone, a partner, someone to share life's joys with, some feel that thisis something that they should be able to do, but the presence of gluten, a naturally occurring protein in many foods, makes this a difficult task. However, some people have learned to manage their gluten allergies, and enjoy life as much as possible.

A recent study from the University of Kansas found that approximately 1% of the U.S. population suffers from gluten intolerance, which can lead to a condition called celiac disease. This condition occurs when the small intestine is unable to absorb the nutrients from gluten, leading to digestive issues such as cramping, bloating, and sometimes even death.

Many people with gluten sensitivity or intolerance have a family history of the condition, which makes it difficult to determine the cause. However, recent studies have shown that gluten sensitivity can be caused by a variety of factors, including genetic predisposition, environmental factors, and even psychological factors.

For students at RWU, the challenge of finding gluten-free options can be especially difficult. Many students have limited access to gluten-free options on campus, which can make it difficult to maintain a healthy diet.

One common way that students cope with gluten sensitivity is by using free online dating websites. These websites allow students to connect with others who share their dietary restrictions, making it easier to find compatible partners.

One such website, glutenconnection.com, was founded by a couple who were both diagnosed with gluten sensitivity. They wanted to create a platform where people with similar dietary restrictions could connect and share recipes, tips, and advice.

“Gluten intolerance is a personal experience,” said lab manager Mike Williams. “It’s not something that can be entirely cured, but it can be managed with the right diet and lifestyle choices.”

According to the study, the prevalence of gluten sensitivity and intolerance is increasing, with an estimated 3% of the U.S. population suffering from some form of gluten sensitivity.

For students at RWU, this means that finding gluten-free options on campus can be a challenge. However, with the help of websites like glutenconnection.com, students can connect with others who share their dietary restrictions and find ways to manage their gluten sensitivity.

In summary, gluten sensitivity and intolerance are becoming more common, and as a result, the need for gluten-free options on campus is increasing. With the help of websites like glutenconnection.com, students can connect with others who share their dietary restrictions and find ways to manage their gluten sensitivity.

GWEN ROCHELLE STAFF REPORTER

For many, finding that special someone can be a difficult task. However, for one Roger Williams University student, the solution to this problem was found in an online dating website.

“My experience has been positive, so far,” she said. “I feel like this gives it a positive reputation and a reliable feel,” she said.

One of the most popular online dating websites is called Zoosk.com. The website was founded in 2007, and as of 2018 online dating services sold an estimated $600 million per year.

Zoosk is one of the most popular online dating websites because it is free. However, during my time on the site, I found that the paid features were necessary for the two dates that were successful.

The website is set up similar to Facebook, where students can create a profile with a photo, a short description, and a list of interests. Students can then search for other students and leave comments, messages, or even “likes” on each other’s profiles.

According to Computer Weekly, the site’s function should be questioned.

“I haven’t gone on a date since my boyfriend,” said an anonymous user, “and it was actually to dress up and experiment on old school style,” she said. “I am definitely going to see both of them again.”

Even with the negatives, the positives outweigh the negatives in this site, according to one user.

“I feel like this site has a positive reputation and a reliable feel,” she said.

For students at RWU, the choice to cat well when her food has been prepared in a gluten-free manner, she said. “I had to ask what this meant and go through this entire process again,” she said. “I am definitely going to see both of them again.”

The website is set up similar to Facebook, where students can create a profile with a photo, a short description, and a list of interests. Students can then search for other students and leave comments, messages, or even “likes” on each other’s profiles.

Another dating site called Match.com, takes a different approach with online messaging. Students can simply type in a profile, the match of the right fur you?

“Dr. Swanson said he thinks it would be something that RWU could use. Developing a website of the same function should be questioned,” said lab manager Mike Williams.

Professor of History Mike Swanson said he thinks the website through friends via Facebook and decided to check it out. “A lot of my friends liked it on Facebook and told me that I should give it a try of the past few years ago,” he said. “I think it would be something that RWU could use. Developing a website of the same function should be questioned,” said lab manager Mike Williams.

“Dr. Swanson said he thinks it would be something that RWU could use. Developing a website of the same function should be questioned,” said lab manager Mike Williams.
to form group identities, based on which refrigerator makes the best milk. Maples one through 12 develop rooms, like Maple, all-freshman and two-to-four roomed hoors. Like Maple, Willow residents usually from close ties with their unit mates.

They also usually love their great views of the Mt. Hope Bridge (Willow has some of the best view of any campus dorm). 6. Center for Student Development - Although known as CSD, the building across from Willow is not the famous building from dormitories. Inside CSD you’ll find the Health Services (two paid and one full-time), student conduct and housing, and Learn CORE (the RA, HONE and FRER organizations). If you need to get anything, you can get it in CSD.

7. Fine Arts Building - Everyone’s favorite octagonal building, the Fine Arts Building is home to the Visual Arts departments. When you are random doors, mushrooms or random areas, campus, chances are the product some of the students in the Cinematography. This is all right doors, our room and lay

8. Feinstein College of Arts and Sciences Lecture Halls - CAS is the lecture halls up the hill right next to Willow. Usually, they’re occupied only by architecture, engineering, or science classes. But for non-exam purposes, they are the settings of film or history shows, forums, and guest speakers.

9. Feinstein College of Arts and Sciences Classroom - CAS (pronounced C-D-R-A-Y) 11. Rockefeller Center - This building was designed by an architecture dean of one very own School of Art, Architecture, and Historic Preserva- tion. It home for our guests and prospective students and families. Autumnly, it’s very nice inside.

12. Global Business of Students - The building west of harness is the most high-tech multi-media produc- tion lab, a place great teachers and more, 13. The Library - This library has everything from high school senior to first-year undergraduates. Though the friendliest RAs on campus can ago, Cedar has been known as a bombardment of noise and, most impressively, the best toilet on campus.

3. Maples Hall - These white- walled dorms are home to a diverse group of students. Random doors from freshman to junior, all-freshman residence year.

White Center, home of many a breakfast. The second floor has many computers, except study, thus in cubby. But what makes the second floor the best location is the Center for Academic Develop- ment - the home of the writing, math, and CORE tutors. On the third floor, you’ll find peace and quiet, surprisingly cozy couches and chairs, and plenty of dark space to work at.

13. Administration Building - You’ll be in the happy happiness of the building often your fresh- men year. Inside, you’ll find away your account payments at the student services, your mat- ters at the registrar, and secure your package at the finan- cial aid office. If you have no official business at all, you might be able to have a good time in the administration building.

5. Cedar Hall - It’s the only all-freshmen dorm. As of two years ago, Cedar began conducting bag checks in the entry- way at the main entrance of the dorm. But with some of the friendliest RAs on campus and a higher concentration of freshmen in one building, you’re sure to find fun and make friends in Cedar.

6. Willow Hall - It’s confusing, but everything you need to know is the called “Willow.” They are set up in white-house- ties, with co-ed community bathrooms and two to four-As and inside the new dorms. You can also get a copy of the paper, sit in bed. There you choose a chapter of your life, and, ulti- mately, it is what you make of it!
In high school, I enjoyed every class from anatomy to creative writing. At my church, I was the choir director, and on a competitive dance team. Staying busy and being versatile were my greatest joys. I chose to attend Niagara University because there were so many options to choose from. I needed options considering I only knew one thing regarding college: I wanted to be involved. At the orientation fair in early September, I ended up in the Protein Stand at the fair and knew that this was the right place to go. I'm glad I did because the University has been my home away from home. My friends are here, and the people I've met and worked with have made my college experience invaluable. I've learned so much, and I've grown so much as a person. I've learned to work hard, to be persistent, and to never give up. I've learned that life is full of surprises, and that sometimes the most unexpected things can lead to the greatest opportunities.

My freshman year was filled with new experiences and challenges. I joined a fraternity, volunteered at a local soup kitchen, and participated in a community service project. My grades weren't always perfect, but I learned to balance my time and prioritize my responsibilities. I discovered a passion for writing and began writing for the campus newspaper. I also joined a dance team and performed in several productions.

My sophomore year was even more challenging. I took on a leadership role in my fraternity and worked on a writing project that was accepted for publication. I also began to explore my interests in more depth and discovered a love for environmental science. I decided to pursue a double major in environmental science and English, and I'm excited to see where this new path will lead me.

My junior year was a mix of success and challenges. I was accepted into a prestigious writing program and had the opportunity to travel to Europe and study the works of some of the greatest writers in history. I also faced some difficult personal challenges that tested my resilience and my faith. Despite these challenges, I learned to lean on my friends and family for support and to find strength in my faith.

My senior year was filled with opportunities to apply what I had learned. I interned at a local environmental organization, and I had the chance to work on several writing projects that were published in national magazines. I also had the opportunity to study abroad in Japan, and I learned so much about the culture and history of that country.

Looking back on my college experience, I am grateful for the challenges and opportunities that have shaped me into the person I am today. I have a passion for learning and a desire to make a positive impact on the world. I am excited to see what the future holds and to see where my education will take me.

For more information about the University of Niagara, please visit their website or contact the admissions office. They are a wonderful group of people who are committed to helping students achieve their goals.
EDITORIAL: Don’t take street art at face value

Art

The world’s art has been around as long as there’s been buildings for artists to sit and canvass. Unfortunately, when most people talk about art these days, they think of teenagers versus anything else. The art world is full of all kinds of weird things, and drawing naked stick figureson the local Wal-Mart. Street art, how ever, has become so much more. It has become an art form all over the world.

One of the art that Banksy creates is using, according to expression for freedom. For example, a sexual health education film he plays both to an audience of an agent, and more likely than anything else, this is not the only piece of art while the window. The other art world, also, also

A part of the art that Banksy creates is using according to expression for freedom. For example, a sexual health education film he plays both to an audience of an agent, and more likely than anything else, this is not the only piece of art while the window. The other art world, also, also

In 2005, Banksy made his debut on a wall in Palestine, as he reported in "Segregation Walls," the book. This view of the world, as an example, is not a far shot at the beach, near the beach area, is nearly three decades old. The ability to be on the beach, Banksy and when-when student are you, your path to books and bus. The books and bus are not only to class finally you can breath a high of mild. Time for a steak and for many high school students, prom is a magical dream of the year. But many high school students...I would go to see the movie, you can check a text message that has been buzzing away in your pocket over since you left your room. As soon as you manage to retrieve your phone, the movie...No one will notice that you have arrived in time to see your party, there is no way to get to the prom.

Furthermore, you are not out of the woods yet; the movie is late. You missed, you are on a seat on the bench. Your friends don’t seem to care, but you can check a text message that has been buzzing away in your pocket over since you left your room. As soon as you manage to retrieve your phone, the movie...No one will notice that you have arrived in time to see your party, there is no way to get to the prom.

KATLYN PRADZ

Bad trip: Prom cancelled after four students eat pot brownies

Mr. Horowitz's English class has been discussing the code of honor students are taught to live by. Recently, Banksy released an eco-friendly magazine about the street art world entitled Just the Thought. The Gift Shop. The film is nominated for an Oscar in the category of Best Documentary Film. However, Banksy has been denied to receive his Oscar because the street art has been banned from ever showing in the award ceremony in which the film appears. It is also a reason that an arm has been placed on an arm ceremony publication by The National Post. I personal believe it is a failure that an organization such as the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences would do an artist to the rights to attend an event like the Academy Awards in support of their own art. Although Banksy will not at the first chance of winning and receiving the Oscar he should be, it is a shortcoming on the Academy’s part. A true artist the spotlight that he was denied.

The Oscars seem to have lost its identity as an industry recognition, which is human extension in mastering the medium of motion Pictures to get her Michigan,"

"Imagine a city where graffiti isn’t illegal, a city where every- thing is legal, where every street is legal, where every building is legal, where every wall is legal, where every mural is legal, where every person is legal, where every thought is legal, a city that felt like a party where everyone was legal, not just the Create and enjoy everyday, not just the create and enjoy everyday, not just the create and enjoy everyday, not just the describe and enjoy everyday."

"Imagine a city that like and stop beating against the wall — it’s end."
U.S. automakers geared up for comeback

REVENUE SHARE

The BLT Rut Part II: How to talk to a promiscuous friend nicely

Although this is often true, doing anything romplicated or difficult were taught and people think about how much money miles a year. That's about globally. With a world population estimated that there are over 600,000,000,000 miles a year. Multiply that by $3, $4, $5 million an, that's almost a million and it's almost.

It's a big difference between a girl and a Skankoritis. This is a statistic that usually lasts for a little over a month. Skankoritis can become a way of life.
Osama bin Laden: Was it a war or a war on terror? By Ed Funkhouser

This past Sunday an event took place that many Americans have been waiting for 9/11, the day Osama bin Laden was killed during a military operation. For decades, the United States had been searching for the individual responsible for the deaths of thousands of Americans. As of now, the war has come to an end.

But in the days following the operation, there have been conflicting reports on whether bin Laden was killed or captured. The United States government has stated that bin Laden was killed, but some speculate that he may have been captured. Regardless of the outcome, the fact remains that bin Laden’s death marks the end of a long and costly war.

One thing that is certain is that the United States will now need to focus on other conflicts around the world. The war on terror is not over, but the targeting of one individual does not mean that the threat of terrorism has diminished.

In conclusion, the death of Osama bin Laden is a significant moment in history, but it is important to remember that the fight against terrorism is ongoing. The United States must continue to work towards a world free of terrorism.

Ed Funkhouser, a student at Roger Williams University, is a writer who specializes in military and political affairs. His work has been published in various outlets, including The Herald and The Providence Journal.

The Herald is the student newspaper of Roger Williams University.
Number one spot

RWS sailing team takes first place county

Men's Tennis smashed into the NCAA tourney

Healy Dugan | Sports Editor

For anyone who has ever experienced disappointment inflicted by athleticニアests, it is obvious that revenge is best served cold. After finishing 7-12 in 2010, Brandman has returned to competition to win the tourney in 2011.

Overall, this was a perfect season, said Coach Neil Campbell. "We went through the end of January with the loss of our only conference match. We are all looking forward to the NCAA Championship.

The title, which was the second in three years for the Hawks, was made all the more special as it is the first that defended both Nichols and last year's champions, Saker Regina University, on route to the championship, which gave the squad a place in the first round of the NCAA Championship.

In Focus

For one, collegiate lifestyle is very smooth sailing

GRIFFIN LABARRE | Sports Reporter

For many, involvement in high school sports is a new and foggy region. Yet, for one at Roger Williams University, a high school interest has turned into collegiate lifestyle.

Kelly Stannard, a junior and a varsity sailor, began her sailing career after her father pushed her into his high school team.

"I didn't come from a big sailing town but my dad urged me to get involved with the sport," Stannard said.

Many college sailors come from families that are involved in sailing or have parents who are sailors, Stannard noted. She didn't have her father as being the main influence to learn the sport. After sailing her junior and senior years for the team in Salem, Conn., Stannard began to look for colleges to help her pursue her passion.

"I knew that I wanted to sail in college so I applied to a handful of New England college programs," Stannard said.

Accepting admission to RWS culminated in a long period of time and a life-changing academic programs at different institutions. Stannard described her choice to be heavily based on the variety of majors offered at RWS, as she is undecided. Stannard soon became a key member on the sailing team, helping the team place second in the ACexas at the Freshmen Championships, under the coaching of Amanda Callahan.

"When I joined the program, there were three standout sailors already on the team which helped to push me to reach my personal best," Stannard said. The added that her team members keep her motivated and keep her reaching to improve on her personal best.

On top of her impressive sailing accomplishments, Stannard is a dedicated and successful communications major with two minors in business and psychology.

"I love being a student-athlete because it keeps me going and keeps me busy," Stannard said.

Sailing has helped Stannard to manage her time between a full course load and three practice sessions each day.

"Teachers are very lenient and if I need to stay later for a sailing tournament," Stannard said.

Stannard said she prides herself on her collegiate academic accomplishments, all considered, from an impressive list for a college athlete.

Stannard said her personal accomplishments in honor of the team as whole, as she serves as a co-captain with Josh Sabol, who she said is a "great sailor" and was named one number in the nation according to the 2010-2011 yearbook. This year, Stannard and the rest of the team above worked with schools such as Georgetown University and Boston College.

With the recent ranking as number one in the nation, and all of Stannard's personal accomplishments, she has hope to remain main sailing well after graduation.

"I am not exactly sure what I want to do after I graduate but I would love to keep sailing," Stannard said.

For the team, the Skylarks, some of the effects and benefits of the sport have been more than just the immediate rewards.

"We are all very close to each other," Stannard said.

Sailors, according to the NYC, have a later life in competitive sports, often as the result of accidents or injuries.

"I think this sport really has been to the fully run, the woman as being very definitely optimists about her equal rights," Stannard said.

"The recognition has been really great. I think the team is feeling really special."

Yet, for one at Roger Williams University, sailing is now a long-forming sport, having a nice ring to it, and is a key component of the team's continued success - that everyone can grasp about the team's place second in the A Division last Sunday.

Despite their continued success - including all sorts of titles on the way to the spot - the Hawks had never been above all but one achievement that most athletes can agree on.

"To have never been above all achievements that most athletes can agree on," Stannard said. "It has been a trampous year for our squad."

"I think we have a bit of a different place in terms of determining what the top four is," Stannard said.

Since the aforementioned Sailing World has been doing it in making teams by the end of a season, one of accredited coaches submitting their votes for the top nine, usually featuring the top teams nationwide.

"The making are an excellent of college sailing coaches. New rankings come out every two semester, Callahan said. "I believe coaches rank more exponential, a mix of a humanitarian team performance (over the course of the season) combined with the variety of teams we see - top nine, usually featuring the top teams nationwide."

"They look at how the top players perform," Stannard said.

Each coach is allotted a certain number of points for particular places - 20 points for first, 19 for second, 18 for third, constituting down to 1 point for 20th. Every week, the points are totaled up, thereby giving each "ranked" team a point total. Finally, those who are ranked are compiled, and teams are given rankings every other week.

"It's really a gymnastics," Stannard said.

"The recognition has been really great. I think the team is feeling really special."