COMMUNICATIONS: WHERE?

(NOTE: This article was submitted as a letter to the Editor)

It has come to our attention, quite by accident, that certain individuals within the college community have taken it upon themselves to use the name of the Politics Club for the purpose of promoting the candidates for the Student Senate. This promotion is to be in the form of a "social hour", sponsored by the Politics Club, so that the students might have the opportunity of meeting "their" candidates. We are in no way opposed to this idea, for as students of American politics, we are quite aware of the many facets of our present political system that literally stink. One of these odors is the obvious detachment of our "elected officials" from their constituents. A social hour for the purpose of meeting the candidates is an excellent method of helping to alleviate this problem on our campus.

It seems that the Election Committee for the Student Government, which is responsible for overseeing the entire electoral process, decided to have the Politics Club sponsor this social hour. Flyers were prepared to inform students of this event. These flyers were to be mailed to students and to be read by faculty members in their classes. However, the Election Committee failed to consult with any of the officers of the Politics Club regarding the sponsorship of this affair.

Primarily because of this lack of prior consultation, the Politics Club will NOT sponsor this social hour. In addition, we will not sponsor this event because the Election Committee is apparently opposed to the idea of "participatory democracy" at this college. By this statement we mean that this Committee decided to leave it to the Student Government, once it has been elected and seated, to decide how its own officers are to be selected. The Committee was obviously swayed by certain Senate candidates who also aspire to be officers of the Senate, that the masses, or in this case, the students themselves, are not qualified to elect the officers of the Senate. And we all thought Alexander Hamilton was dead.

There is also the possibility that the name of the Politics Club will be jeopardized by this event. The Club in the past has sponsored (throughout this letter, "sponsored" denotes financial subsidization) students for the Pell and Tiernan Intern Programs in Washington, has sponsored the appearance of Dick Gregory at Roger Williams last spring, and will be presenting speakers at the College this year. The Election Committee seeks to have the Club sponsor this event, in the face of the fact that there are not yet enough declared candidates for the election to be held. Obviously, someone has not been doing enough publicity for these elections.

Finally, the Politics Club, acting as a body, has remained detached from campus politics in the past; however, club members, acting as individuals, have involved themselves. It is conceivable that Club members will be candidates for the Student Senate this year; hence, it would seem that if we sponsor this event, we would be publicizing our own candidates. If the Club does become involved in the academic politics of Roger Williams College, we will do so of our own volition, not at the advocacy of some other group.

If we might make a suggestion at this point, it would be that the Election Committee and those candidates for the Senate sponsor this event themselves, or perhaps, those people who profess to be the "temporary" Student Government sponsor the social hour.

Lest there be any doubt as to our feelings on this matter, let us again state that we are not opposed to the idea of a social hour per se; we are, however, vehemently opposed to the methods subscribed to by the Election Committee in their presumption that the Politics Club would sponsor this event once public notice was made of it. It may be only a matter of principle, but principle is one point we will not compromise on. Last week-end, 250,000 people refused to compromise their principle and went to Washington to face down a threat of violence from the Attorney General and his boss. On a much smaller scale, we too stand fast.

A QUILL EXCLUSIVE

A Future Theatre Dept.

"Entertainment is essential to art; when the theatre does not entertain, it has failed in its very first objective. "A distinct cultural focus for the campus is provided if such a department functions smoothly.

There is no question in this reporter's mind that Mr. William Grandgeorge shall guide such a cultural contribution with masterful hands. Roger Williams College certainly needs an indirect public relations effect which should reach the community of Bristol. (or shall I say, the "silent majority" of Bristol). This able department could give a reflection, so bright, of an institution which has a working group of people who are creative and intelligent. Here, the community shall be overwhelmed with enthusiasm, for it appears obvious that such an artistic achievement shall flower all seasons of the year.

According to a timetable Mr. Grandgeorge has revealed, it would now be appropriate to discuss the projected calendar beginning with the academic year 1969-1970;

There shall be 6 semester courses offered. The first freshmen enroll with the possibility of eventually majoring in theatre. Three major productions to be presented. Numerous small productions presented. (Summer of 1970) Roger Williams Summer Repertory Theatre opens.

1970-1971

A second faculty member shall be employed. Fourteen semester courses shall be offered. 4 major productions shall be presented. The Philosophy Department begins to offer the course; The Philosophy of Art.

1971-1972

A third faculty member shall be employed. 16 semester courses shall be offered at the Bristol campus. 4 major productions presented. Small productions to be presented, to be directed by students. Art Department begins to offer course: Western World Architecture.

The London Program begins;

20 junior class majors study in London. 1 faculty member goes to London, two 1/4 part-time instructors employed in England. 6 semester courses offered in theatre. 4 semester courses offered in other subjects. 1 major production presented by London students (for touring purposes).

1972-1973

A fourth faculty member shall be employed (full time faculty now complete). 18 semester courses offered on the Bristol campus. First group of majors graduate. 5 major productions presented. Senior Independent Projects presented throughout the term. English Department begins offering the course: Playwriting.

1973-1974

Artist-in-Residence Program begins.

19??-19??

(Added to whatever year sees the opening of the Fine Arts Building)

Roger Williams Touring Company founded.

Summer: Roger Williams Educational Theatre Institute founded.

It should be noted that the possibility of re-arrangement exists as a constant reality, however, what has been discussed in the above is indeed fact.

What has been created, up to this point, seems very inspiring for a future alumnus of Roger Williams College. I could imagine going to Europe from Bristol, some sunny afternoon, and possibly attending a major production presented by our own Roger Williams College Repertory Company. Such a vibration from London to Bristol would certainly have a high quality of resonance. The point being that as a cultural contribution to the arts, a sense of pride for such an accomplishment is worth silent applause within one's mind. My impression of programs such as this reflects a sort of contentment with those among the academic and administrative community. It would be worth backing such a program on the part of interested students within the Roger Williams College academic community.

Brief Characterization Of The English Program

A great variety of viewpoints is present among the members of the English staff concerning the aims of an English program and the means to achieving those aims. A student majoring in English at Roger Williams College may therefore expect to encounter the full gamut of approaches — from that of the traditional scholar on the one hand, to the that of the free-form teacher on the other. There is a general agreement among the staff members that our program be liberal enough to provide each student a large choice among the courses he can take in satisfying his major requirement. Active encouragement is also given that as many students as possible participate in initiating and planning new courses. Moreover, student representatives are elected to attend meetings with the English staff and to participate fully in its deliberations.

The Faculty Is Interested In You

An important English meeting opened to all was held November 18 in the large lecture hall. The purpose of it to encourage the students to voice their opinion and give suggestions for future English courses. In other words they want everyone to be an actual part of life and its function at Roger Williams College. The faculty was indeed very interested and showed a great concern for all students, they graciously listened to all suggestions.

A few of the suggestions by various were as follows:

1. Seminars on Poets and Novelists
2. Fundamental teaching methods of English
3. Courses in Short Stories

4. Independent Group Studies
5. Formation of an English Club
6. Public Speaking Course

An excellent opportunity was given to all English students, primarily English majors, to voice what they would like to see injected into the curriculum. Many of them were also complemented upon.

Following the suggestion period complaints were also heard. The meeting was then turned over to the English Student Representatives. Any further suggestions to be made can be introduced on paper and backed up with signatures, then given to anyone in the English Department.

DON'T LOSE YOUR DEFERMENT

In January, 1970, by executive order, the draft laws of our nation will be changed from the archaic system that is in effect now to a more humane one. The draft laws that we now live under establishes the period of eligibility for the draft from ages of nineteen to twenty-six, or even to the age of thirty-five if one is deferred during the former period. The revised draft law that President Nixon now proposes lessens this age of draft eligibility to one year, i.e., from the nineteenth to the twentieth birthday for the man who has no deferment, and the entire first year after a deferment has expired for the man who has been deferred.

What this law means, in effect, is no man can escape from the draft without a permanent deferment.

A potentially dangerous myth appears to be spreading among some of the male students, namely, that the proposed changes in our draft regulations to call nineteen year olds first will allow our students over nineteen to drop school with no chance of being drafted. This is definitely false, and any student who has this impression should be informed before he takes any actions he will regret.

Thus, anyone who has had a II-S deferment since July, 1967, will be placed in the lottery with the nineteen-year-olds as soon as they no longer have the deferment.

If you have any problems concerning the draft, please see Mr. Ellman in SM-35 or Mr. Blackburn in CL-71. They will be happy to help you in your plight.

DON'T FENCE US OUT

Last Friday I was asked to leave a "hush-hush" faculty meeting. Why? The Administration's only object was to persuade the Providence faculty to co-operate in maintaining a new student advisory system.

Was it ethical to reject a student from such a faculty meeting merely on the basis of a so-called invasion of privacy? Is the faculty running some sort of back room politics where the spy (student) may learn some true nature of the enemy (faculty)? Of course not. So why should any topic, complete, incomplete, controversial or otherwise be held from the eyes and ears of the student body?

True, our faculty and Administration are dedicated professionals. But, in accordance with their professional views, I feel they should become far more aware of their responsibilities in establishing a more wholesome and trusting relationship between themselves and their students. Yet, how can this occur when the student is never given a chance to find out what makes his faculty tick?

Would the presence of this writer at that particular meeting be all that distracting to those involved? I hardly think so. All right, maybe it was none of my business at that meeting Nov. 14. But, as I see it, if the school is ever to grow, its students must be allowed to intervene with their faculty's organizational interests with, of course, some professional limitations exercised.

Still, the question naturally arises as to where that line shall be drawn. Certainly not a student who is simply searching for a few facts on how his teachers govern themselves.

Letter to the Editor

As Christmas approaches, the war goes on, in spite of the Peace Movement. Almost more Americans have died since Mr. Nixon took office than before. In his November 3 speech the President said all the troops were coming home soon, elsewhere in the same speech he refers only to combat troops. For neither withdrawal does he set a time schedule. While President Thieu assures us the Vietnamization of the war will take many years. Who to believe? And do we even consider anymore what all this means for the people of Vietnam?

But, yes Virginia, there is a Santa Claus — the Peace Movement! It is concerned about a war which all agree has been a mistake. Unlike our leaders, who have proven to be helplessly mired in this splendidly dirty little war, the Peace Movement has tried. It stopped escalation and saturation bombing, it supported Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy, it kept Lyndon Johnson from a second term, and it convinced a majority of Americans (Gallup-Poll) that the war is wrong.

Now is the time for all to apply pressure on Mr. Nixon. His war, because presidents made this war what it is, not the American people, and Richard Nixon is now president. If only more concerned Americans would break the bonds of silent apathy and speak for peace, then maybe our leaders will have to listen. Think of the Peace Movement as a pressure group attempting to bring about political action. Labor unions, businesses, the Pentagon, foreign countries, local and state governments, and even individuals spend time and money lobbying in Washington to get what they want. Why not the Peace Movement?

And for what better cause? True, the Peace Movement is often noisy, sometimes unruly, and composed largely of young people. On the other hand, it's open and honest highly idealistic, its ranks filled with our country's finest, as American as apple pie and Benjamin Spock, and working very hard because it has a very important mission to fulfill. As with Santa Claus, December has to be big month for the Peace Movement. Who else really cares??

In Roger Williams College there are a number of students each year as there will be in 1971, who will complete their required courses by January. I learned recently that degrees are not handed out in January but only in June. As a student who plans to graduate in January, I feel there are cases where the school might give the degrees out in January.

VIEWPOINT

It really isn't like me to write an article like this because most people consider me one of President Nixon's silent majority. However, an incident has occurred at Roger Williams College that puts doubt, disgust as well as fear into my life. What the hell happened at 2 a.m. on Saturday, November 15th at the Harriet Bradford in downtown Bristol?

First there is doubt in my mind that this is America (. . . "land of the free . . . home of the brave" . . .), when a task force of Law (ha ha) officers, breaks into a student's room and destroys both the hotel's and the students property looking for something that wasn't even found i.e., pot, pills.

Secondly, I'm disgusted with the way a student's right to courtesy has been grossly violated, at least if you only suspect (not prove) someone of a crime, don't start kicking him around like a pig if he asks what you want. And if you demand respect, you must give respect (attention Bristol Police). Why not ask the student whose ankle is swollen from being kicked by the fat cop, if he respects police more now. He wasn't even a suspect in the raid, he was only concerned in helping a fellow student.

Thirdly, I'm disillusioned with the action the school took to protect future raids. After all the right to privacy is being paid for to the tune of $300 a semester. Is this the way you protect us?

Finally, I'm in a state of fear at my dormitory. After all, everyone is supposed to be innocent until proven guilty right? Well why am I so afraid to keep Aspirins and One-a-day Vitamins in my room. I believe that if the state of Rhode Island wants to declare a police state, it should do so. At least I'll know, and can leave the place before I'm shot. It's really sh---y when a cop enters your room with his gun drawn. What the hell is going on here? There are guys here who haven't studied for three days because they're afraid the cops will plant something in their rooms during a raid. Is the school going to protect me or what? If so please reply to this article so I will know that you're earning your money.

Matt Miller

As all eyes focus on the detached reality of the astronauts walking on the moon, headlines soar two inches high announcing the fact, everyone ignores the small by comparison news fact that the United States killed or wounded total in Vietnam has just soared above seven-hundred thousand (700,000 families, homes, children, wives, and hopes completely destroyed forever) as a result of increased action this last week. The great silent majority to quote the words of the chief "representative" of the people, just sit back in their comfortable chairs worrying about whether to watch Red Skelton or Julia and ignoring most reality or simply rationalizing to themselves that everything is all right or it does not concern them. Thanks to the "silent majority" we have had many great moments in history, such as the rise of those leaders of the masses who unquestionably and blindly followed them such as Hitler, Napoleon and others. So just continue ignoring the reality, Silent Majority, I'm afraid it won't go away as neither will the "noisy minority", which hopefully will not disappear either . . .

To become a teacher in New York City, which I plan, you are required to show your degree upon taking the teacher examination. I feel this is one in many cases where the degree is needed to get a job.

I feel that if the school does institute this idea, it would show it's willingness to change with the times, as well as adopt to some of the student needs.

Letter to the Editor

In a previous edition I had the strange opportunity of reading an editorial regarding apathy; on part of some students, against the Vietnam war. It was pointed out that our poor servicemen in Vietnam were being put to the battlefield while their wives were "SHACKING" up with other men. My first reaction to such journalistic achievement was one of sorrow as well as disbelief for the writer's point of view. Somewhere the mind apparently had forgotten about those apathetic students who might be concerned about comforting the wives of servicemen who are now widows, or possibly students who might have brothers or cousins abroad. Why just the word "Shacking", in its proper prospective, brings forth the memories of high school proms from the years 1955 to 1959, and seems hardly appropriate to use in the year 1969.

I shall define apathy according to a Thorndike-Barnhart Dictionary. (Apathy; "lack of interest or desire for activity, indifference, lack of feeling). In this particular case it would appear as though indifference projects itself as the major victor, for with regard to such an award winning editorial, I hereby declare myself as indifferent to such a verbalist. If this is evidence of the pulse of student involvement against the Vietnam war, I shall no longer devour my time to children of peace for they are totally concerned with following faddish hobbies, and mostly themselves.

In the above, I have not spoken for or against the Vietnam war, nor have I spoken against this particular individual with regard to his Aristotelian logic.

PUBLIC STATEMENT

I have been informed by fellow students that a certain female student on the Bristol Campus has been spreading a false rumor. To be specific, I am supposed to be writing an article on the actions of staff and faculty members after school hours.

I am not writing anything of the sort, reason being that the lives of staff and faculty members after school hours is their business and not mine.

If this female student continues to press this issue I will be forced to take actions to protect my character from being slandered and defamed.

VIEWPOINT

WHO CARES?

When Roger Williams College at Bristol opened its doors to the students, and this campus became a living body, it became susceptible to all the problems that go along with a college campus. One specific problem has become more predominant than any other, that problem being apathy. Apathy is defined by Merriam-Webster as "lack of emotion or interest; indifference." That being the case, I can safely state that this college is engulfed in apathy. Therefore, I pose this question: how has this apathy affected our college life?

The basic answer would seem to be that for us, Roger Williams College students, to continue to build our school in all aspects, we must work to do so. To achieve these goals of furthering the college's standards, whether it be academic, social, or whatever, the student must get involved. Therefore this apathy problem defeats the entire purpose of the students advancing our campus. It is absolutely senseless to say that there can be advancement when "lack of emotion, interest, indifference" is in the mind of our fellow classmates.

It seems that if our students have this type of attitude, the college will be filled with people going to classes, studying, and graduating with no involvement of any sort. If this is what is to be expected, our campus will be the most apathetic society ever experienced.

As mentioned previously, even the social aspects of the school must be worked on to continue to grow and improve. In my opinion, the apathy directed towards college social functions would be the least of all the different areas. The reason for this belief being that everyone likes to be entertained. The response to our social activities will prove my opinion . . . invalid. From movies to folk-singers, the college has experienced poor turn-outs as the students show their "lack of interest." Many social functions have been affected by this situation, including the clubs being organized at school. It has almost reached the point of "The Apathy League will not meet tonight because of lack of interest."

I feel that three certain areas should be discussed in their relationship with this apathy: 1. student-faculty committees, 2. organizations, such as the previously mentioned clubs, and 3. the student government. Although I've not gone into depth, the ideas are given, proving that all three different fields of college life are being affected and hurt by this apathetic situation.

Evidence of the apathy concerning the student-faculty committees was the fact that ninety percent of the originally scheduled elections were cancelled, because the lack of students that attended. The reason for the poor attendance was attributed to poor communications concerning the meeting. Don't believe it . . . apathy.

Organizations have had their share of the student disinterest. Many find it impossible to function because of the lack of support. Many, such as The Quill or the yearbook, continue but can't raise the interest or participation that there should be . . . apathy.

Our student government is an extremely pitiful area. Apathy is right at home in this subject. It was recently announced that those who had intentions of running as student council candidates sign up in the Dean's office. The elections have now been delayed a second time because not enough candidates registered, the reason . . . apathy.

There are so many aspects of the problem of apathy on our campus, and I, who have touched upon only a few, have become one of those writers who discusses, but offers no solutions. If I had to predict the future situation, it might be a valid statement to say, "The students are even becoming apathetic towards the apathy, but then again . . . who cares?"

Jack Mahoney: Point of Order

COPS

There is a definite bigotry on college campuses today toward the police. Ever since Columbia and Berkeley, the police have been the scapegoats for such social institutions as inequity of the laws and racial hatred. Many different names, such as pig, fascist pig, and quite a few that are unprintable have been shouted, screamed, gasped, and whispered at the members of our society who have the dubious task of upholding the laws and keeping order. This is really not strange, though, in a country that has hung signs such as "Help Wanted — Irish Need Not Apply" in factories and stores, a country which has turned its back on terrorism and burning crosses in the South.

The first point that must be made is that police do not make the laws. They have the same vote in electing legislators as any citizen who has reached his majority. The task of the police is to uphold the laws. Therefore, if the task of the police is not the making of the laws, why should they be punished for the laws they uphold?

Second, the police are a product of our demo-socialistic system of government. While people are being paid for doing nothing, which in this case refers to the rich as well as the poor, the policeman on the beat is generally underpaid. This fact, plus one that is a bit less tangible, i.e., the risk of walking the streets in a uniform, is a basic reason why the caliber of the police is not higher. In order to get good men in great enough number to fill a police force, a city would have to raise salaries, enlarge the force as a whole to lower the number of dangerous assignments for one man, and provide a better public relations image.

This is not to say that there are not police who have risen above the norm of these underpaid, favorably underpublicized civil servants. Some people would doubt this, but there are actually a great number of good policemen, the ones who don't break heads in the paddy wagon and cameras during demonstrations. These same people find it hard to believe that a policeman only wears his uniform eight hours a day, and they truly believe that any man in a uniform is bad, for the simple reason that he is wearing the uniform and, "once a cop, always a cop".

This line of reasoning is truly unfortunate, because it springs from ignorance. This is not to say that the people who have these beliefs are willfully ignorant because generally they are not. The news media has a great effect upon the minds of men, because that is the way most people are informed about what happens in our society. Unfortunately, the media sometimes becomes a bit sensationalistic in that to impact knowledge one must first grasp the attention of the person that is to be reached. Therefore, a murder or a rape or a story of "police brutality" will receive attention and copy in a newspaper before a story telling of a man just doing a good job. This, as was said, is truly unfortunate, for in this way the police as a whole is indicated by the public for, perhaps, the crime or even misunderstanding on the part of one of its members.

The point is granted, therefore, that the police work in an unfavorable atmosphere; i.e., an atmosphere of uncertainty and animosity. The point is also granted that there are some bad policemen. But must all policemen be crucified because of a small minority of their members? Think about it. IN TWO WEEKS: SDS

Students Who Voted

O you Providence students who voted for your class officers and Senate, how many of you attend your meetings? When you voted for these people, you were also pledging your support! But where's your support when they need it?

The class President, together with officers, committees and a few helpful friends are arranging dances weekends and other activities. Very few people attend these meetings, in which they too can help make plans. It's very difficult for only 5 or 10 people to plan something for his whole class, not knowing what they really want!

Maybe you have some good ideas? Maybe you know of a good band or of a good place to have a dance? Planning a dance involves many difficulties. For example; the seniors are having a mixer called "Happy Hour" with Paul Wayne & Murphy. Did you know that for at least a week they had nowhere to hold the dance? These few seniors looked day and night for a suitable place to hold this dance and finally found one. The main problem was the free beer for an hour.

Last year they had a similar dance in Cranston and had control of the bar. They couldn't get this same place again. Everywhere they went, you couldn't have your own bar or receive a cut from their bar, which made the free beer available to get you, the students to a dance.

Don't turn your officers down and avoid their meetings — they're only doing this for your benefit. They are your elected leaders and you are their followers. thanks to your vote.

To the Campus Student

Four weeks ago, you read an article in the Quill regarding the Student Senate. In this letter I notified you of the Committee chairmen selected by the Senate to co-ordinate student functions. You were also told the number of people who would serve on these committees and "you" were asked to approach the chairmen on these committees.

To date "you" have not approached these chairmen. Therefore, the committees are understaffed and the objectives of these organizations is the will of the individual rather than the majority. Then, "you" the majority, complain about what's being done. My friends, the fault is yours, you are the electorate; you are the majority; you are the boss; try showing it. If after reading this, you find yourself a little upset, then act. Involve yourself. Thirteen people cannot run the show. We can and do try, but it is not representative. Therefore, I can only suggest that YOU involve yourself and give of yourself in order to please yourself. Get going baby; it's your bag. I hope you will now find some time and interest to better this campus by working along with your Senate. We need your help!

Campus Comment: The Fight Has Just Begun

As I look back to the peace march on Washington last week, I am troubled by the many attempts which were made by the so-called democratic government of the United States to discredit the organizers, the participants, and the march itself.

From the start, Nixon and his cronies sought every way possible (short of shooting all the marchers) to discourage the many opponents of this damn war from converging on Washington, D. C. At first, the government refused to approve a permit for the march. A token march by a few hundred was recommended instead. Then, when the permit was finally granted, Nixon called in thousands of cops and soldiers to ring the march. He also infiltrated his agents among the many demonstrators. This show of armed force helped to create a very tense atmosphere in Washington.

Instead of hurting the anti-war march, these events only made the dissidents more determined. On Saturday, the biggest anti-war march in this nation's history took place. The police chief of Washington, D. C. put the number of demonstrators at 250,000 in a move to dampen the success of the march, but many people who were at Woodstock during the summer said that this crowd was almost double the 350,000 to 500,000 at that fantastic rock festival. During the march, Nixon completely ignored this massive display of opposition to the war by watching a football game on the television in the White House.

Well, Mr. Nixon made his point. Me showed his non-desire to listen to us. But before we are done, we will make him realize that the people are behind us. Before we are done, this American aggression will be ended. In December, more anti-war protests will take place, this time on a local level. I hope everyone will get out and demonstrate their opposition to the war by attending one of these gatherings. Let us show Nixon that we are dedicated and together in a universal belief. STOP THE WAR!

Construction

In November 18 edition of the Quill, there was mentioned of new construction to take place at the Bristol Campus. It stated that a bid would be awarded for the construction of a new dorm and as the funds became available a student union will be constructed.

I agree that this is what the Bristol campus needs. But what above some news of construction at the Providence campus (?). Has the administration any news to give us Providence campus students? Are there any plans for our campus? P. J. Levesque

ASK LENNY

Question: Is Gary DiIorio being investigated?

Answer: No! Just because honest Gary is treasurer of the Senior Class doesn't mean he is dishonest, Gary, you're as straight as the government.

Question: Where did Mr. Friedel attend College?

Answer: Lance University.

Question: Lenny, if you can't write anything nice about Dean Long then don't write anything at all. Do you have any comment? D. L.

Answer:

Question: What is basically wrong with people in our society?

Answer: They tend to destroy rather than create.

Question: How can we find out who the Feds are on the Bristol campus?

Answer: Check those people receiving A's in their classes which they have never attended. We'll get you, Mod Squad.

Question: Is there an International Club at Roger Williams?

Answer: Yes, they're around.

Question: Why were approximately 30% or more of the Senior class in Providence given new teachers for advisors rather than old teachers who can help them out better? G. W.

Answer: Beats me! If you're not getting proper answers to your questions, go see Mr. Jakobiak, who'll confuse you even better.

Question: Do you ever write your own questions?

Answer: Sometimes. I made this question up.

Who's New at Roger Williams College

Welcome Mr. Carl Antonelli. Born in our great City of Providence, Mr. Antonelli teaches Electrical Engineering laboratory/graphics and Electrical Engineering/Mathematics. Mr. Antonelli is a graduate of Brown University (Sc.B. — Electrical Engineering). His graduate math work was completed at Rhode Island College, and he took courses in education at Providence College.

Mr. Antonelli is active in business and political life. Beside being a Certified Fallout Shelter Analyst, he is a Registered Professional Engineer — by National Exam.

"The emphasis on the measurement of a student's intelligence and learning speed, instead of the emphasis on teaching and achievement is a major fault on the part of all colleges," said Mr. Antonelli. In addition, he said, "Colleges tend to be our greatest stigmatizers, by keeping long and enduring records of all the failures who may have 'passed' their hallowed walls."

Mr. Antonelli had this to say about his impression of Roger Williams: "The spectrum of opportunity at Roger Williams appears to be greater mainly because of the NOBLE effort on the part of the administration to establish highly flexible educational programs, with the students' needs desires put above all else."

Miss Claire M. Theriault is our only new female instructor. Also a native of beautiful Providence, Miss Theriault teaches Accounting I and Secretarial Sciences. She is a graduate of Bryant College (B.S.) and the University of Connecticut (M.A.).

Miss Theriault's impression of Roger Williams is a favorable one for many reasons, but for one in particular. It is that the College is not simply growing, but advancing. She feels that it is unusual to find that teachers and students are encouraged to make suggestions for changes in the curricula in order to help the College keep pace with the times rather than jealously guarding "tradition."

Business Club

Among the newest members of the Business Club, it is rumored that one member is a girl. Interested? This is one reason why you should join besides all of the activities the Business Club has going.

The visit of the Honorable Attorney General Mr. Herbert F. DeSimone is scheduled for December 4, 1969 in the Rhode Island Room of the YMCA building.

The Business Club's next special activity will be a visit to New York City for a tour of the New York Stock Exchange. While in New York City, the Club will be guests of a few large business firms. This tour will be designed for the Club's members to explore the stock market and have a first hand look at the effect the market has on the economy.

The Club also plans to sponsor a Christmas party for the elderly, Thursday, December 11 at 11:00 A.M.

This year's budget for the Business Club was in excess of one thousand dollars.

In the future, the Business Club's functions will be restricted to members only. Anyone who is interested in becoming a member should show up in Room P-2, Thursdays at 11:00 A.M. New members are always welcome! There will be a special meeting A.M. in Room P-2.

STEWNEWSVIEWS

The YWCA has seen a lot of action these days and so have certain young couples parked outside. Has anyone been surprised by pedestrians lately? I compliment a Roger Williams grad on the Force of Barrington for a job well botched. Mr. Grandgeorge has his problems too. The singers sing off key or is it the piano is untuned? One of the Quill Staff is extremely angry over the actions of a student on the Bristol Campus. The word is that Dave Hochman has finally found a secretary. Would you believe Kong King — I mean King Kong? . . . would you believe Ma Kettle then? Which one of our distinguished Editors blew his mind on a can? Oh yes, did you know that Jim Hendrix wrote his song "Gypsy Eyes" about a certain young lady, unofficially associated with the Quill, who has this "LATHER"-ous desire. As my closing, I wish to say hello to the handsome and charming Jerry Lattimore . . . Hi there Jerry baby!!!

Unfaithfully yours,

Loretta Kiddy

"I would like to praise the Bristol Police Force for their brilliant and well mannered actions in destroying nineteen peoples lives . . . there actions remind me of the gestapo in Germany."

Peter Greenberg

"I thought the Pigs were real bright in busting people for aspirins and contact capsules."

Robbie Thomas

"I thought that it was very ridiculous and it was not fair to do."

Peter Marayer

"Why don't they go out and grab some of the burglars, child-molesters and vandals instead of hasseling kids with prescription drugs."

Gary Aldrich

"Roger Williams spends a great deal of time trying to entertain the people of Bristol, I would like to thank the Bristol Police Dept. for entertaining us."

Jim Maguire

"Having previously witnessed drug raids, this had to be the most un-organized and un-intelligent drug raid ever conducted. The entire situation was a complete farce of justice."

Gerald Wilson

"I think it stinks!!!"

JAL

"I'd hate to be in their shoes! Feel bad for them!"

"It's not too cool! So also is an informer."

Harry Raubens

"A police officer's duty is to keep order and investigate crime, but I think this did not apply to what happened at the Inn, rented by the school, it was the administration's responsibility and duty to keep order there. Considering it was private property, the cops had no right to destroy or ruin this private property such as tearing down four out of six doors, in other words, it was an invasion of private property."

Peter Holden

"It appears that Robert DeAngelis and his task force are becoming increasingly frustrated in their attempts to subvert the inspired movement of free will that is steadily growing in this country. His sexually maladjusted paranoia is resulting in increased unadulterated harassment of Barrington-Bristol areas freaks. Furthermore, the practice of "planting" evidence is not unknown; in connection with the type of evidence seized in the recent raids ("Contact cold capsules, Robert?) it seems that police are scraping the bottom of the barrel for excuses to hassle people.

Knowing the mentality of the typical "man in blue," chances of significantly influencing pigs attitudes towards drug use approach hopelessness. One feels, however, that they could at least extend the courtesy of allowing people time enough to answer the door before busting it in during a raid.

Brain Dennis

"This is another unfortunate example of a group of professional prohibitionists actively preserving their jobs. It is becoming aggressively clear that drugs are not really the issue, but a more basic issue of freedom and life expression is at stake. It is now common knowledge to nearly everyone that drugs such as marijanna are not lawful to the individual or to society. The legislators know this, the police know this and the public knows this. So why the campaign against drugs? The answer is simply, drugs are associated with youth and dissent. It is not a campaign against harmless drugs in an already drug entrenched society but another weapon of our fascist govt. in its continuing policy of repression. The students that were busted did not possess anything more copious than cold pills and nasal spray. Again drugs were not the issue.

The positive action taken by the school is most leavtening. It would be fortunate if the students could respond to this with a show of unity not only in this matter but in all matters pertinent to a school situation. The school is working for you. Now you should follow the lead and work for and with the school. Involvement is where it is at. RWC can and will be a community in itself and a functioning part of the Bristol Community and the state. Take part in it.

Vincent Azzarone

"He would rather give information 2-3 weeks from now when the situation calms down."

Casablanca

The movie "Casablanca" played to an overflow crowd of six people in the large lecture hall on the Bristol campus last Wednesday night. The much heralded movie, starring Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman, didn't quite live up to its rave notices.

In a role that many consider to be one of his finest, Bogart lives up to his reputation. Miss Bergman also gives a fine performance, and both are supported ably by the rest of the cast.

The story, while still good, has perhaps lost some of its appeal due to overexposure. Movie reruns and late show viewings on television have familiarized most people with lines like "Here's looking at you, kid." Also, the version shown Wednesday night had portions cut from it which detracted considerably from the viewing pleasure.

There has been a big revival of Humphrey Bogart films on college campuses in recent years, much like W. C. Fields revival. For those who love Bogart at his best, the movie "Casablanca" is a must. For those who don't care one way or the other about Bogart, the movie is a good love and intrigue story, but nothing earthshattering.

Letter to the Editor

I am writing this for the election committee and hope that at this late date you can put it in a box somewhere in the next issue. We have been having a slow response in getting candidates for student council so the committee has determined as follows:

1. The election schedule has been revised.
2. The Dean of Students Office is anxious to receive declarations

Happy Thanksgiving

The following is a list of what members of Roger Williams should expect to eat or see, come Thanksgiving. Only in jest, of course. Lenny wishes all a very happy Thanksgiving.

Mr. Grandgeorge — a loaf of Wonder Bread.

Mr. Smith — a man-eating shark donated by the Senior Class.

Mr. Blackburn — a bald eagle donated by the barbers' union.

Mr. Jacobiak — a meat loaf.

Mr. Ficorilli — a bore (pig of course).

Mr. Donovan — a box of Milk Duds.

Mr. DeFano — a full course meal made by Stella Doro herself.

Dean McKenna — a cake sent by Bill Kyriakakis in the shape of a van.

Dean Goldberg — a bottle of Mogen David Wine.

Mr. Hallenbeck — a prayer led by Gilbane himself.

Mr. Harris — a well-done elephant.

Mr. Greenstein — a bowl of hot chicken soup.

Mr. Nelson — two nerve pills and a glass of water.

Dean Zannini — a box of Maypo. (Now.)

Dr. Hebert — Lobster Sauté.

Mr. Cartwright — one of his best steers.

Mrs. McDonough — a quiet meal, with all her home phones disconnected.

Mrs. Camara — a turkey already embossed.

Mr. Davis — a bottle of Bud, and another Bud, and another Bud, etc.

Mr. Sasso — a chicken, and a bottle of the best Sherry.

Mrs. Rames — Escargot.

Mrs. Walsh — the Great Pumpkin.

Mr. Wall — a fruit cup.

Mr. Verstandig — a tossed salad.

Mr. Langelo — a box of Cracker Jacks.

Dr. Gauvey — a lollipop.

Mr. Wilkey — a bottle of Excedrin.

Mr. Shepherd — a lamb chop.

Mrs. Kellogg — a corn flake.

Mr. Balsama — a well-done spider.

Coach Drennan — a Hawk.

Mrs. Brown — a loaf of Tip Top Bread.

Dean Long and Dr. Caridi — the students and faculty, I'm sure, would like to give them the typical bird of the holiday. (Enjoy it fellows, you deserve it.)

The Bristol Students — a lot of trees and grass.

The Providence Students — a free pass to a new parking lot for when we return.

from candidates for the student council. There have not been enough declarations for freshman and sophomore class representation. The new deadline for submission is three o'clock, Tuesday, November twenty-fifth.

3. Coffee hours will be sponsored by the Politics Club between eleven and one o'clock on December eighth. This is to introduce the candidates in person to the student body.

4. The revised date of the election is December tenth.

"Gerry Wilson Evaluation of The RWC Upcoming Season"

Pete: Do you think the team is ready to start the season?

Jerry: Yes, the team is in good physical condition and they are showing a great adaptation toward Mr. Drennan's system of basketball.

Pete: How does student turnout at the games affect the team?

Jerry: Helps team's spirit and drives the team to a greater incentive. Having learned from past season games, when only around 10 people showed up to support their team, expresses the attitudes of student body towards athletics.

Pete: What do you think of the coaching staff?

Jerry: I believe the coaching staff has improved greatly over last season, with the addition of the "much-talented" Coach George Butler. Since it is almost impossible for one coach to run the team, I believe that this year the coaching staff will be in full command of the game at all times.

Pete: Do you feel that everyone on the 1969-70 basketball squad will have a chance to exert their talents?

Jerry: With the present setup of having only eight men definitely on the varsity team, with the remaining 13 taking part in the J.V. games, I don't believe that all these players will have the chance to make the necessary improvements and excel in all their talents."

(This is the first of a series of interviews with basketball players that will appear in future editions of this newspaper.)

Hunting and Skeet Shooting

In my last article, I spoke on the subject of wildlife photography. In this weeks column, however, I would like to talk about two subjects; hunting and skeet shooting.

On the subject of hunting, I would like to make it clear, that I still do go hunting. I hope that my recent article "A Farewell to Arms", didn't confuse anyone into thinking that I had given up hunting entirely. I admit that over the past four years, the majority of my time has been spent on filming wildlife, but a great deal of these wildlife pictures were actually filmed records of my own hunting experiences.

I stated in my last column that the chief reason for extinction in various species of animals was a "total lack of conservation". Hunting, believe it or not, is a part of conservation, for it enables us to thin out species of animals that might otherwise become overpopulated. If one type of animal becomes overpopulated, it begins to rob food from other species and in its desperate search for food, it upsets the entire cycle of nature. Certain species of animals have already reached this alarming number in populations, and as a result have no seasonal or daily bag limits. In the state of Massachusetts, for example, Starlings, Bluejays, Crows, Red Squirrels, Fox, Skunks, etc., may be shot year round with no daily or seasonal bag limits.

The point I am trying to make is that it is perfectly alright to hunt, in fact more humane towards animals to hunt, as long as you obey the laws, and observe daily and seasonal bag limits.

If you enjoy waterfowling, and have a Massachusetts hunting license, the hotspots this week are the tip of Gooseberry Island, Westport, and Barnstable Marsh, Barnstable. Salt water ducks, scotter, Eider, and Old Squaw, and fresh water blacks and mallards, have been reported in abundance in these areas. Also large quantities of Canadian geese have been seen in the Sandy Neck area of the Cape.

I can personally account for the large quantity of ducks in the Westport area, for on Monday, a friend and I took six from the Westport Marsh.

On the subject of skeet shooting, Pete Greenberg, our sports editor, has informed me that a growing concern has been expressed for the formation of a skeet shooting club here at Roger Williams College. Skeet shooting is rapidly becoming one of the most popular sports in America today and is enjoyed by women as well as men. It is a fast, action packed sport that sharpens reflexes and increases coordination. I think that the formation of a skeet shooting club at R.W.C. is an excellent idea, and I urge anyone who has any ideas on the subject to contact Pete Greenberg or myself at the Quill Office.

Basketball Co-Captains

Athletic Director Thomas A. Drennan announced today the election of Steven Montecalvo and William Abbott as co-captains of Basketball for the 1969-70 season.

Abbott, a resident of Providence, graduated from Central High School where he played for coach Jimmy Adams. One of the most improved players in the area, Bill has been a member of the Hawks for 2 years. After he became a starter last season, Bill averaged 14 points per game. Montecalvo was captain of the 1966-67 Mount Pleasant High School Squad in Providence. A high scoring guard for the Kilties, his coach was Jimmy Ahearn. Last season, as a starter for the Hawks, Steve had several 20 point games.

Roger Williams open its season on Tuesday, November 25, 1969 at Bristol High against Gordon College of Massachusetts.

Pre-Game Evaluation

Roger Williams College is approaching their final week of pre-season training before their debut Tuesday, November 25.

Their training has been very conclusive to all major aspects of developing a well balanced team. The team has participated in a number of scrimmages so that they will develop the feel of playing as a unit. The initial problems such as timing, cohesion and playing patterns are reaching the average perfection with each practice session. The coaching staff is employing a number of intersquad scrimmages which allow the variation of a starting five possible. All the players now can feel relatively comfortable regardless of who the other four players on the court consist of.

Speed is an asset of the team effort. There are a number of players who execute the fast break with precision. Along with the speed, rebounding will be highlighted, since the average height of the team is approximately 6'3". In comparison with last season's team, whose major problem was to employ a stabalized effective defense, this season's team will try to overcome the obstacle by the formation of new, and variations of old defensive play-patterns.

Although it is still early in the season, but late in pre-season training, it is relatively safe to say that Roger Williams College has an abundance of talent, and when developed fully, they will be one of the strongest teams in the class they are participating in.
