College History

Northeastern University

The first degree-granting program was established in 1899 in cooperation with Northeastern University of Boston, Massachusetts. The college was chartered as Providence Y.M.C.A. which provided classrooms, laboratories, and dormitories to its students. The college was located in the downtown area of Providence and was operated as an outreach program of the YMCA. In 1921, the college was formally incorporated as the Providence Institute of Engineering and Finance (PIEF) and moved to its current location in downtown Providence.

Today, the college is home to a diverse student body with a strong commitment to community service and social justice. The college offers a wide range of programs in fields such as engineering, business, education, and the arts. The college is known for its strong sense of community and its dedication to providing a quality education to its students.

The Quill, now in its 25th year

The Quill is the student newspaper of Roger Williams University, published bi-weekly by the students of the university. It provides news, features, and opinion on a wide range of topics, including campus events, local and national news, and student perspectives. The Quill is committed to providing a platform for student voices and promoting free speech and open dialogue.

Appointments Announced

In a memo distributed to the campus, Mr. Oates announced the appointment of three new faculty members to the departments of Psychology, Business Administration, and Computer Science.

The Student Assistance Service (SASS) has undergone major changes and innovations. It is an organization run by and for the students, who hold the position of the director, the assistant director, and the student assistant. The SASS team is dedicated to helping students access the resources and services they need to succeed in their academic and personal lives. They provide a range of services, including counseling, academic support, and financial aid.

The Quill would like to dedicate this year to the memory of its staff members who have passed away recently. We are grateful for their contributions to the campus community and to the Quill.

Dedication

The Quill would like to dedicate this edition to all of our staff members who have passed away recently. We are grateful for their contributions to the campus community and to the Quill.

Food, Informality, Anticipation, and ...........

The Quill is a weekly student newspaper published by Roger Williams University, Providence, Rhode Island, USA, since 1947.

Invitation

The Quill, now in its 25th year, is inviting all students to join us in our first year as a total news service. Published by Student Publications, Incorporated, a private, non-profit corporation, the primary function of the Quill is to serve the students of Roger Williams College. This year more than ever, the editors of the Quill would prefer a "student's newspaper" that will provide all students with the opportunity to express their creativity, journalistic prowess, and opinions in a constructive form. In order to allow the maximum number of students to participate, there will be a minimum staff of five with an invitation to the students to write as "contributors". A contributor is a person who has written at least three articles and can be effective in their role.

The Quill is an independent student newspaper, funded by subscription and advertising revenue. It is distributed free of charge to students, faculty, and staff at Roger Williams College. It is also available for purchase at the campus bookstore. The Quill is committed to providing a platform for student voices and promoting free speech and open dialogue. It covers a wide range of topics, including campus events, local and national news, and student perspectives.
Passionella

The first production of the much famed Coffee House Theatre's 1972-73 season will be Passionella, from the musical comedy "Passionella," by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick. This production is directed by William Grandgeorge and will feature Erin J. McGovern as Lily, Michael Cavanaugh as Flip, Jack Mahoney as the Salesman, Jeff Caruso as Mr. Fallible and a chorus comprised of Gary Gardner, Rick Marzanti, Bob Mingus, Jeff Caruso, Sue Jordan, Liz Haddonfield, F ri e l o w B ow n, Alice Mercuri, Sheila McHugh and Allie Cabak.

The Coffee House Theatre will round out the evenings of the Friday and Saturday with dessert, coffee and tea.

Theatre Students intern with Trinity

Theatre Department of Roger Williams College is pleased to announce the names of those students chosen by The Trinity Square Repertory Company for participation in the newly established Internship Program.

Chosen for the first semester were Dennis Desmanos who will be working in theatre management, Marianne Sairian-Fine who was selected for Public Relations and Eric Jensen who will be acting. Other students are being considered for the second semester.

The program was established by Richard Matthews and William Grandgeorge faculty members of the Theatre Department. Mr. Matthews negotiations with Mr. Adrian Hall, Director of Trinity Square. The program is an optional 15 credit course designed to benefit senior year theatre majors, specializing in the areas indicated plus an opportunity for the interns to experience directly all aspects of Theatre operation.

Trinity Square Personnel have been so enthusiastic about the potential of the internship program that it is engaged in the establishment of this program on a regional basis.

Well, I'd like to introduce to this group a new organization called the Administrator's Social Service (A.S.S.). This group is made up of the elite "Socialites" of E.W.C. and are more commonly than not called A.S.S.

The organization is a very exhilarating experience. Their disgust is so great it is hard to tell whether the real A.S.S. is or are the members of the organizations or the people who pay them?

Good luck this year.

"It's the Right Time"

The story, based on Tennessee comedy "Last of the Mobile Hot-Shots," concerns a dying husband who wants his wife to marry a former show girl so their son will have a mother. Jack (Lynn Redgrave) falls into the hands of his black brother-in-law. James Coburn, in a dramatic change of pace from his highly successful role in "The Yellow Birds," is the sensitive aristocrat, Joth Thorganing, with Lynn Redgrave, England's bountiful "Georgy Girl," as his wife. Robert Hooks, renowned for his work with the Negro Ensemble Company and for his role in "A Raisin in the Sun" and "A Taste of Honey," begins anew as the half-brother desperate to inherit the property.

Meaning of Ski Bum

There was a time," says Dick Barrowme, "when 'ski-bum' meant a devil-may-care rascal who was always looking for his next adventure. Aspen to Val d'Isere.

"But now," he, the veteran ski documentar maker said with a touch of pride, "ski-bums are gone forever.

"Of course," Barrowme added, "there's still a few diehards, but they're fast becoming extinct. Today, there isn't even one for the ski bum in the world of skiing.

An amateur camera bug all his life, Barrowme decided to combine his hobbies, and made flashing light until a police car stopped us. I turned azure and orange gaudy caravans (red) and turned us in for indecent exposure. And they were stopping traffic because our vehicle was traveling slowly and making noise. They made it down to the legislature. I guess I've had it. I've had to drop out of school now three times now because of the complications that are involved in the triplicate forms to turn in or that complicated process with the others in the building and the other folks that are going either evicted or married to an individual who is on the TV I picked up at the Goodwill for $22 was color until I invited them in. I think the Wizard of Oz. When we go to Oz like that and everybody is going everybody walked out. According to the Chronicle, I'm not welcome at football, and I'm not happy with the Purples and Yellows (the Blues and the Greens) rather than our team, the Red Sox and the Browns (the Oranges and the Greens).

But, as they say, the grass is always greener on the other side. Some advantages to being colorblind. Can't find my car in the street because, once in combat, I couldn't find the enemy from my own men (later learned that we were the enemy and green men). And I can sometimes predict practically everything that the family for my acceptance of the colorblind nation. But, as I always tell those who can not find their parents that I know no color at all and we are always brought up to think that people with purple skin have all the same rights as we charlotters.

And then there's Mavis, the lovely girl who comes over to sort my socks once a week. You know, Mavis, she said, sorting, "I've never met anyone who can sort socks like you. Them. You got bad feet or something?"

"No, Mavis," I said looking into her big purple eyes. "It's just that I like to do something different, you know?"

Faculty vs. Admin.

"The Last of the Ski Bums," says Barrowme, "is a documentary of our days in skiing.

I shot most of the sequences in the mountains behind the three ski bums featured in the film, while the other three bums were handled by my 14 mm Bolex. He is now content that the general public can see the beauty and majesty of the skiing scene in its true and personal angle.

The Saunders, who did the sound for Barrowme's "The Endless Summer," compiled and performed the original soundtrack.

The Dorm

As of this deadline approximately 450 students moved into the two dormitories. This figure is above the projected estimate optimistically imposed by the trustees. The dormitory capacity is 600 students and there are those in hopes to fill Conners, Residence Hall Director, the process of moving in is generally moving slowly along.

Dear Students,

These days are more than ever it's time to get as difficult to keep campus organizations straight. Also, I wish there's the S.A.G., PAC, SAS etc.

But, as I always tell those who can not find their parents that I know no color at all and we are always brought up to think that people with purple skin have all the same rights as we charlotters.

And then there's Mavis, the lovely girl who comes over to sort my socks once a week. You know, Mavis, she said, sorting, "I've never met anyone who can sort socks like you. Them. You got bad feet or something?"

"No, Mavis," I said looking into her big purple eyes. "It's just that I like to do something different, you know?"
Signing up for Army ROTC in college is no big deal. No major commitment. All we’d like you to do is give it a try. Take the Basic Course during your freshman and sophomore years. See what it’s all about. You’ll find that it’s only a few hours a week.

That’s not going to get in the way of classes, study, sports or other activities. At the end of your sophomore year you’ll know for sure.

If you decide to go on with the ROTC Advanced Course you’ll be paid $100 a month during your last two years of school.

You’ll also be earning your degree and commission at the same time. It’s even possible for you to go on to graduate school. Then serve as an officer later. Check out ROTC now.

Army ROTC. The more you look at it, the better it looks.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations. The school systems and state departments of education which use the examination results are listed in an NTE leaflet entitled Score Users which may be obtained by writing to ETS.

served primarily veterans through its G.V.D. as an Evening Division.

It became evident that to establish this program on a more stable basis it would be necessary to replace the certification plan by an associate degree-granting plan. Approval for this program was secured from the State Board of Education and approved by the office of the Secretary of State in August, 1948.

Again following the Korean War as veterans returned, they sought the services of the Institute but in smaller numbers.

Roger Williams Junior College. Those involved with the College soon became aware that in order to expand both its educational program and its facilities, the College would need to solicit funds on its own. Since the Greater Providence Y M C A was a member of the United Fund, it was not possible for the College to solicit funds. Because of this and many other factors, it was decided to sever relations with the Y.M.C.A. and apply for a State charter as a two-year, degree-granting institution. In February of 1948, a charter was granted by the Secretary of State, and Roger Williams Junior College was born.

In 1958, because of increasing competition, the college administrators realized it was decided that the College should no longer offer the associate degree program. Thus it was abandoned and in its place a new five-year program was offered. In 1964 the Liberal Arts Program replaced the General Program, and the College, in addition, achieved its Associate in Science degree, began to offer the Associate in Arts degree.

Executive had grown steadily from 35 students in 1961 to something over 3,000 in the Fall of 1977.

Two major state-wide plans for the development of public higher education were in progress in 1959, including a program of state-supported community colleges. The plan for study and development of educational consultants reviewed the College's educational status during the 1959-60 academic year. The report was widely discussed with College trustees and officers. From this report emerged a number of recommendations were made for greatly strengthening and improving the college management and educational programs.

It was committed by the Trustees to undertake a carefully designed program to bring Roger Williams to a position of strength in order to make the College a significant and unique contribution in the economy of higher education.

Since becoming a State accredited institution the College has had three administrative heads. Mr. Robert L. Gauvey from 1959 to 1966 as its Director and in 1966 when the school became Roger Williams Junior College, Mr. Gauvey was its first president.

On July 1, 1963, Dr. Ralph E. Gauvey became the second president of the college coming from the presidency of Brown College in Ohio. The Trustees' charge to Dr. Gauvey and the challenge he accepted in becoming President was to develop and execute a bold new plan for developing the College including the establishment of a permanent home for the college. This new campus, the largest single problem facing the College was creating a new campus. One of the College Trustees, Mr. Lloyd W. Kent, an architect, serving as chairman of the Trustees' Planning Committee, chairman of the 1960 consultants to the College, Mr. Edwin P. Hallock, to initiate planning studies with the College and the feasibility and requirements for a new campus.

Beginning in 1964 a long series of public planning studies were undertaken keeping in mind the legislation in the higher education field. The passage of the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1964, Roger Williams in a particularly aggressive position to seek assistance for construction of academic buildings on a new campus.

The Goal for the Future

The decision of President Gauvey, 1964-65 saw a clarification of goals guiding the College's planned growth and development. Having served the community for many years as the only two-year oriented college in the State, Roger Williams found itself in the process of facing the problem of establishing a state supported college in 1964. As business, technical and engineering programs are offered by the new college, Roger Williams may well be just moving to a position of strength in order to make the College a significant and unique contribution to the economy of higher education.

At this point in Roger Williams' history, the College returned to its fifty year goal, requiring that it must be a lively experiment in education.

In March of 1963, Roger Williams Junior College applied for and received from the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools the unique status of "recognition of Candidacy" for accreditation. In the words of the New England Association, this means that Roger Williams Junior College "is developing on a sound basis in accordance with the standards of the Association and seems to have the potential to meet our accreditation requirements during the next five-year period." Work is constantly going on to upgrade and strengthen this position with an eye to eventually receiving full accreditation as a regionally accredited institution. With this focus in mind, the College is moving to increase the out-of-state enrollment; providing counseling and administrative staff and faculty; developing and improving curriculum; continuing to search for new ways of teaching and learning; and developing and improving new facilities for living to carry out the developing goals and objectives of the College.

In 1966 for the first time the College had new location for out-of-state students: one in the Crown Hotel in Providence, and in 1969 a new location for out-of-state students in the Rhode Island College of Law in downtown Providence. The College moved to Broad Street, the new building new physical facilities in which to carry out the developing goals and objectives of the College.

In June of 1967 the College was granted the authority by the State of Rhode Island to confer associate degrees upon students satisfactorily completing two-year courses of study and to confer bachelor's degree upon students satisfactorily completing four-year courses of study; and to grant such honorary degrees as are usually granted by the bachelor's degree-granting institutions, and was given the right to confer degrees, including the Master of Science degree, by the Roger Williams College. This degree constitutes the formal division and transfer to another four-year college or university; if not, the student may choose the new option of continuing at Roger Williams College by transferring into the senior division and working toward the bachelor's degree.

Senior division programs are now under study in the following areas:

- Social Welfare
- Teacher Education
- Engineering Technology
- Humanities
- Conservation

Union?

What Union?

The idea of a Student Union Center has been under study since the first proposal for the Bristol Center. There seems to have the potential to meet our accreditation requirements during the next five-year period. Work is constantly going on to upgrade and strengthen this position with an eye to eventually receiving full accreditation as a regionally accredited institution.

The original completion date for this building was between September and January of this school year. It wasn't until the end of the school year that the administration was to discover that if this building were to be erected by these designers instead of a traditional architectural corporation, it would cost the college approximately an additional $250,000.

This Hag developed when the college went to HUD for money; HUD would not allow the school funds for the building unless it was designed by a traditionally oriented firm. Therefore the plan was scrapped.

A new and more conventional plan was then developed by Fenton G. Keyses Associates, which would result in the final form for the center.

The center had not been constructed out of a more permanent type of material than the previous plan called for.

According to Roland F. Stager, an assistant to the

Noel Knocks DeSimone

Warwick Mayor Phillip W. Noel in a fiery release made on Friday, Sept. 4th branded his opponent's proposal that the state Lottery be used to keep local property taxes down a "Crust baks on the Rhode Island Homemower..."

Governor revealed the results of a study which showed that a Rhode Island Lottery could bring an estimated 6.7 to 8.3 million dollars in tax revenue to the state.

The study showed that Rhode Island Lottery could bring an estimated 6.7 to 8.3 million dollars in tax revenue to the state.

"In fiscal 1973 Rhode Islanders and says $685 million dollars in property taxes. Even if the most optimistic predictions come true, Lottery Revenue will be equal to only about four cents on the property tax dollar," the Mayor stated.

Noel went on to say: "Two out of three families in Rhode Island will buy a car in the next year. I have proposed that the first priority for Lottery Revenue goes toward the sales tax on auto-tires. This would save the people of this about 3.5 million dollars. I have also suggested, we should look to other areas of sales tax reform. One example is the remission of the sales tax from children's clothing.

He added, "The cost of this move is less than the most conservative estimate of how much a lottery would raise. Noting that the local property tax is unfairly burdened, I urge the legislature to pledged to address himself to this issue during his campaign.

In closing the mayor remarked, "I have not made to the people of Warwick sweeping promises that I cannot keep, and during this campaign I will not stop to raise false hopes among the people of Rhode Island. I am only asking the people to support a cheap attempt to win votes. The people have a right to expect openness and candor from a man who wants to be their Governor."

"Without heroes, we are all plain people who don't know how far we can go."

Bernard Malamud, The Natural

In our lives, we admire our heroes, whether outstanding athletes, business moguls, celebrities, or any other type of person who has made an important contribution. We admire their exploits, their achievements, and their triumphs. But what do we admire most about our heroes? Is it their strength, their courage, their integrity, or their desire to succeed? These are all characteristics of our heroes, and they are all admirable qualities. But what makes a hero truly heroic? Is it their ability to achieve greatness, or is it their willingness to risk everything for a greater cause? I believe that the answer to this question is both. A hero is someone who is willing to risk everything for a greater cause, even if it means sacrificing their own personal desires. This is what makes a hero truly heroic. And it is this willingness to sacrifice that is the most admirable quality of our heroes.
