Financial Aid: How To Grab A Piece of the Action

(CPS) — Don't kid yourself. The competition is tough, the rules are arbitrary, and the one constant is inflation which is steadily eating up the funds.

But though the financial aid game is tricky, it can be managed. And with a little chance you can win a piece of the estimated $4 billion in needy funds available to schools for students.

Confusing enough, eligibility, as well as chances of winning, is based on a substantial, arbitrary, and seemingly all-encompassing factor: the student's financial need.

And even figuring that in, the only sure winner is inflation which is steadily eating up the funds.

Critics of the financial aid system have remarked on the way schools and private sources--and other financial institutions--are acting like an office of the federal government and making decisions on the financial needs of other people.

A comparison of private loans and scholarship opportunities is limited to two areas: the need and interest and the total need.

Interest is only a part of the equation. On top of that is the question of interest that will be charged. If you are involved in an interest-free loan, it is possible that you will be charged interest on Federal financial aid.

But though the financial aid programs are all alike, the financial aid officer at the school you're interested in may not be aware of the financial aid programs available to you.

Since you have left home for college, you have left under the protection of your parents, so you have to take care of your own.
Children, may I have a word with you? I won't take too much of your time, I assure you. Just a moment to ask a favor.

I address myself to the dorm students, who eat in the cafe. The juvenile behavior exhibited there by some of you really must stop. Harrassment of the food service employees, throwing food, trays left on tables, cigarettes extinguished could not be labeled mature.

There are a number of responsible persons on campus, which represents some vice was atrocious because much of your time, I assure you.

Accordingly, the college will introduce a new course in the spring semester entitled, "Small Business Internship", which is open to seniors and selective junior business majors.

Student intern's will acquire practical training by helping them with problem-solving skills in a real business environment. Cases will involve construction, accounting, an insurance agency. It's no fun. Try to help.

Fear and Loathing In Newport

It's 11:00 at the Bavarian Club on Thames St., an hour after the bar has closed and most of the people have left. Some shaggy men and women, with disheveled clothes and long beards, are sitting around tables drinking beer, eating sandwiches and talking. A few people are dancing to old records, and the sound of guitars and drums fills the room. A man sitting at a table in the corner is writing a letter on a piece of paper. He is wearing a black shirt and has a mustache.

The atmosphere is one of chaos and confusion. People are laughing and shouting, and the noise is deafening. A woman is sitting at a table with a group of friends, and they are all laughing together. A man is sitting alone at a table, and he is looking out the window. He is wearing a black shirt and has a beard. A woman is sitting at a table with a group of friends, and they are all laughing together. A man is sitting alone at a table, and he is looking out the window. He is wearing a black shirt and has a beard.

Sports

The University of Detroit is making every home basketball game a special event this season. As part of their program to promote "Titan" basketball, athletic director Bob Calihan has designed 'special nights' for this season's fans. Some of the ideas for these 'special nights' are as follows: 'Spirit Night' - a prize will be awarded to the student group showing the most spirit at the game. "Mr. Tony's Night" - during halftime, two teams of students race against the clock to eat a six-foot submarine sandwich, donated by a local restaurant, "Mr. Tony's." Also, fans will find lucky numbers in programs with prizes being free sandwiches from Mr. Tony's. "Banner Night" - the fan bringing the best sign or banner to the game wins a prize. "Big Foot Night" - a contest to search for the biggest feet among contestants, with a prize awarded from a local shoe store. Other 'special nights' include family night, ladies night, homecoming and superf一时 night.

When asked why the Hawks don't run similar gimmicks, RWC's Director of Athletics Hector Massa, replied, "We don't have that many home games. Anyway, our schedule is wrong. At the beginning of the season, we play a lot of our away games. So when do we play our home games? During inter-session, when no one is here." Mr. Massa went on to say, "I would like to give a special award to Jim McCauley (a dorm student), because he goes to all the games, despite his handicap and all." Jim McCauley is a student at Roger Williams who does indeed go to all the games, despite the fact that he is confined to a wheelchair. It is unfortunate that more RWC sports don't support programs that help their school to grow, such as sports. I wonder what the reaction would be if the administration announced that all RWC sports were to be dropped?

downtown inexpensive. So the next time someone in town you want to impress and feel good about yourself - try out The Rochambeau.

Coming off the bridge towards Newport, just a minute down the connector road to Rte. 114 (watch out for cops - the 35 mph speed limit is low and easily broken and they know it!) stands Nick's Place.

Besides the fact that Nick serves "the best pizza made anywhere", great sandwiches and desserts till I am, the atmosphere is slow and easy. Talk and listen, bullshit with Dominic the bartender or the red-haired cook, RWC's own Brian McDonald. There are electric darts for the sport-minded, and a well-stocked juke for music lovers. Good drinks and Michelob on tap complete the easy feeling. So, what's new? It's in Portsmouth.

Letter to the Editor

Deer Sirs,

I am a student here, and I think that if the time were to pass well (as we have) get to cold, they should see how to cope, or they should not be allowed to pool up fines.

Sincerely,
Heather Emanuel
