Joe Faria is a one-man university without walls (remember the steppe—an ex-Creative Writing Professor; he's a wolf of the steppes). He's a poet who derives his inspiration from the wind he meets on Christmas Eve or from watching Rommel drive through the desert on "War at War"—an Anzio immigrant who, when he talks, his articulation makes you think he even looks and acts like an artist carrying his poetry in a handmade shoulder bag from Emporium India, dressed in blue corduroys that his auburn hair is like a walking poem. An ex-Creative Writing Professor; he's a wolf of the steppes.

Dorm Government Strives For Independence

Joe Faria and Son Joey

by Mark Siwowz

Dorm Government is tired of being a non-representative body on RWC. They are tired of being dependent on the student Senate for funds. In an interview with Bob Gabordi, Vice-President of Dorm Government, the Quill learned of the organization's plans to establish a new method of funding the dormitory students' activities. Gabordi explained that the dormitory students contribute $12,500 to the Student Activity Fee, which is given to the student Senate for distribution among clubs. Of this money Dorm Government received $350. They would like to see $2,500 of dorm students' activity money go to Dorm Government to establish their budget. They are tired of receiving a traditionally small budget from the Student Senate. According to Gabordi, "something's wrong somewhere."

Joe Gabordi made the point that Dorm Government doesn't want to fight with the Senate. "We're not trying to engage in a power struggle with the student Senate," his opinion is that Student Senate has given them too much financial authority granted to them under their own constitution. He believes that there is no place for premarital checks and balances between the two forms of government. This proposition was brought up at Dorm Government's weekly meeting Monday, Feb. 17 at 8:30 p.m. Nothing in the way of legislation could be enacted because neither Dick Yakovonis nor Bill O'Connell were present at the meeting. Under the Dormitory Government constitution, a meeting is illegal and unofficial if the housing directors are not present.

Closing Gabordi said that he believes that he represents Dorm Government's body and executive committee in his opinion of the organization's plans. "I think they (the student senate) have neglected us and it won't happen again."
Sensual Repression — Everybody Hangup?

Many of you are unaware of the gay population at R.W.C. and have misconceptions about homosexuality and bisexuality. Other than the one or two more visible homosexuals, gays seem to be non-existent on campus. I suggest not.

Homosexuality is somewhat of a joke amongst members of the heterosexual community (I can hear you snickering as I write this). There should be an organization of gays to inform, and to change student views from that of straight society's, whose generation believed "faggots" were limited to hairdressers and interior decorators.

Blacks (UBSE) and women (Women's Center) have organized to aid themselves and enlighten others, and have received funding from students. Why not gays? I am the first to admit R.W.C. really doesn't need another club, but perhaps a group could be founded to act without club status.

If gays on campus don't feel repressed, there is no need for such an organization. My guess is this is not true, so if anyone is interested in doing the work, the Quill is willing to make office space available to such a group.

(Don't) Help Yourselves

This past year, as always, Mr. Bill Nott (Director of Maintenance) has graciously lent to students such articles as shovels, axes, hammers, etc. This practice may end rather abruptly. It has been reported that two shovels have been borrowed without permission from the maintenance shack. When the vacationing Mr. Nott returns, it is pretty certain that he will put a halt to such lending. You, however, can prevent this.

Anyone with information regarding the shovels is urged to contact anyone in the maintenance shack (or "boiler room"), or "The Quill." They don't want to reprint the "borrowers"; they merely want their tools returned.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,

I have a question, and I wonder if anyone can answer it. It concerns the Student Union building. Look at the name. It is a STUDENT building. It was paid for, directly or indirectly by the students. Students from this school's COH program helped in the creation of it. However, students have no say in how it runs, on the rules and regulations that govern the building. Why not? Unfortunately, Elizabeth Lopes A Grant Rogier Williams College is among the seven privately supported colleges and universities in Rhode Island to recently receive a grant from the Sears-Roebuck Foundation. The foundation presented a check for $3000 to Dr. Ralph E. Guey, president of the college.

The Rhode Island colleges and universities are among the almost 1,000 private, accredited two- and four-year institutions nationwide which are sharing in $1,300,000 in Sears Foundation funds for the 1974-75 academic year.

News Briefs

RWC Students Go to Washington

Four Roger Williams students have been chosen by the Political Studies Department to participate in the annual Washington internship program. Two students will be assigned to work in the offices of Senator Claiborne Pell and two will work with Representative Edward Beard.

The internship allows students to observe the political machinery in motion. The program is announced annually during the Spring semester and is open to all students, although preference is given to seniors with a concentration of political studies courses or a high interest shown in politics.

The one-week internship (Feb. 24-28) will allow students to visit and observe various government function and institutions. The students selected to participate in the program this year are: Monica Egressi, International Studies; Jean Ferreira, Senior-American Studies; Eugene LeBon, Senior-Business Administration; and Brian Phillips, Senior-Political Studies.

Trustee Appointed

Philip A. Anderson, of Barrington, was elected a trustee of the college at a meeting of the Board of Trustees December 12. Mr. Anderson is president of the East Providence School Department.

In their first year, Daughters of Bookstores have published five novels and have plans to publish thirteen annually.

When co-founders Arnold and Parke Bowman advertised for writers through feminist magazines they were soon swamped with manuscripts.

"Our very existence encourages women to write," hypothesized Arnold. "In the beginning they sent us novels they'd already written. Now they're sending us books they're writing for us—writing because we exist."

Music Dept. Presents Concert

The Roger Williams College Music Department will sponsor a concert of music from the 12th-16th centuries by the Bristol Consort on March 1 at 8:00 p.m. in the College Library, Bristol.

A consort, as defined by director James Bartram, is a set of the same instrument made by the same maker in the same vocal ranges. A consort is also a group of musicians playing harmonious instruments. The Bristol Consort has six members including Nancy Ayton, Jane Will Ayton, viola da gamba and recorders; James Bartram, recorders and pavilions; Peter Stur sewer, recorders, Mary Spalding, recorders and flutes; Philip Stiles, recorders.

The consort is open to the public at no admission charge.

Budget Committee Requests Expenditure

The budget committee requests a list of all club's expenditures for the first semester and your proposed program for the second semester. We encourage any effort on your part to plan fund raising activities. Reports are needed before Wednesday, February 20, to be compiled for a Budget Committee report.

In the wake of the Cambodian Incursion and the Kent State Disturbance, the college, that in May 1970, was a near disaster area. One by one speakers stood forth at the microphone, shouting radical encouragement on the green between the library and the oldeties (a, Fine Arts Center). Seven hundred students listened, stamped and bellowed. The college was closed for the remainder of the year by the students. That, same spring (April 1970) a smoke-in (or -out) was executed on the library steps. Administrators and police stood helplessly by taking names as the students encircled the quadrangle with their enormous foxes.

That same year (May 1970) political left-wing workshops occupied students' time in library space. Students blocked halls and doors. Rock bands blared outside the building as students, (blasted it) out of their brains danced and rolled about the grounds in their double sleeping bags.

That same year, the student newspaper, the Quill, was read front to back sheet and the student senate was politically weighty voice on campus.

Socially, to wit: these manifestations were diagnosed as being the visible part of a noxious student ad faculty movement for control, which Rehabilitation: was easy to break, granted the blessing of limited tenure among students. We set out in a well-guided course.

After scattering the focal points were eliminated, political criteria such as Charles Cost and Oren Jarinkes disappeared quite conveniently from the face of Roger Williams.

Rehabilitative: this had the effect of rendering impotent and subsequent landerous ramblings of less práctico academic demogogues; this, in turn, inspiring frustration, that feeling of impotence redoubled and subsequent blessed apathy among the entire academic community.

To wit: we had destroyed the need to communicate among this community. To wit: The Quill, where and when one can be found, has degenerated from, as aforementioned, a well-written, dangerous vehicle for academic vehement weekly publication that attracted the most heretic student minds to, as aforementioned, an occasional publication, pedisided over by one of the group that forms the cadre of creativity, a residue, hardly, so thin as to be transparent.

Rehabilitation, to wit: Student senate a powerless, impotent body, our political meetings, no outdoor journalism, no togetherness. Even the dormitory students, a natural community, have been forced apart by re抓紧, paranoia, and that blessed agent apathy.

Rehabilitation, an image: A sea through which we pilot our college students, makes for calm, action for rough seas. There are some who prefer the excitement and suggest that a calm sea is bad for the reflexes of the crew; luckily they are practically nonexistent.

Rehabilitation by force, to wit: our faculty has learned to give our kind whip, to make token tokens in behalf of the dishonished comrades but to take no action—as if we didn’t know what we were doing—or we were sending into exile! The art is to keep the faculty on its toes and back at the students controls with the quadrangle with their vicious foxes.

The problems have not been solved. Problems still exist on the campus. Alumni from that class of 1970 have not repudiated to kindle the flame that means bankruptcy to us: "Why college?" "What is the college doing for you with all that money you spend?" These are two of the more moody expressions of this variety I have heard in recent weeks. These questions are dangerous. They must be quelled.

Now is the time to crack the whip. The majority have been made into private pets and eaten despair. They are not a threat.

The threat still lives, even the thought. We must double our security systems! We dare not let minds from the Black Age create another! We must keep faculty in more fear of their jobs! We must seek weaknesses in administration that can be joined with our ideas! We must exploit this near-apathetic mood for total victory.

Only then will this college be truly stable. Only then will we rest in the knowledge that we helped preserve higher education.

The Team To Beat
by Sue Davitt

Something is happening here, and you don't even know what it is. The Roger Williams basketball team is undergoing a dramatic change.

At the beginning of the year, the Hawks seemed sluggish and many a pass ended up on the stick of the wrong team. It was an inexperienced team, the majority being freshmen. They were losers, hardly worth paying attention to.

Now suddenly, they have begun to "get it together". They won three games, including a triumph over Hawthorne (whose loss to RWC was only their second this season). Talent has materialized in Paul Proulx, Jim Whiffen, goals Jay O'Neil and freshman Bob Pen-dergast. Concerning Pendergast, Head Coach Ray Maker has said, "He is undoubtedly the greatest athlete presently here."

Coach Maker has, despite the Hawk handicaps, managed to put together three admirable wins and a highly spirited team. Maker is still undergoing a rebuilding, recruiting program; and he's doing a damn good job.

There are three games left: on Feb. 24, they go to the University of Maine, Portland-Gorham. On Feb. 26, they're home against Haw-town, and on the 28th they're home against Southern Massachusetts University.

If you've missed the Hawks up to now (or even if not), check them out. Chances are you'll be in for a good, exciting game of hockey. You'll also be able to see why the Hawks will be, in the near future, THE team to beat.

INTRA MURALS

Names are now being taken for men's and women's intramural basketball and softball. There will be two leagues in each sport (men's and women's).

Hector Massa, Director of Athletics, has said that he hopes for one team from each unit, "nor at least one from each dorm."

There will also be a computer team, if possible. Basketketball games will be played in front of dormitory number 2, and softball will be in front of the administration building.

Individuals may also sign up and will be placed on a team by the athletic department. Officiating will be done by the varsity basketball players (who are ineligible for basketball intramurals), and are available as coaches at the team's request.

All interested persons are urged to contact Hector in the athletic office, between towns A and B, in dormitory number 1.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Once again, the Bristol Y.M.C.A. is open to all Roger Williams College women. Women may use the gymnasium and pool every Wednesday night in a program that began last Wednesday, February 19. The gymnasium will be open for this purpose from 5:15 until 6:45, and the pool will be open from 7:00 to 8:00.

The center urges all to register by Friday, February 26.

CHESS CLUB NEWS

The Chess Club is on a winning streak! The team is presently in third place in a field of seven and only two games behind Rhode Island College, the division leader.

Facing the team to first place is George Picorelli with a 5-1-0 record. Tom Holstein and Ron Scully are working hard to improve their 2-1-1 standing and Brian Sarvetnik and Art Tetreault are determined to catch up to the leaders.

An all-colleges championship is being planned by Picorelli of the science-math division. He urges all to register by Friday, February 26.
