Newsroom: Elorza on Providence's Latino Population

Roger Williams University School of Law

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.rwu.edu/law_archives_life

Recommended Citation
https://docs.rwu.edu/law_archives_life/210

This News Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Archives & Law School History at DOCS@RWU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Life of the Law School (1993- ) by an authorized administrator of DOCS@RWU. For more information, please contact mwu@rwu.edu.
Elorza on Providence's Latino Population

Professor Jorge Elorza speaks to WRNI's Elisabeth Harrison about how Latinos took root in Providence, R.I., and what could be in store for this growing population.

WRNI, Rhode Island's NPR Affiliate: “Providence: Mi Ciudad”

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (WRNI), Jan. 24, 2011: Today, WRNI begins a week long series on Providence rising Latino community. We'll look at the mark this group has already made on political life, health care, media and even fast food. But we begin with a conversation on how Latinos took root in the city and what could be in store for this growing population. WRNI's Elisabeth Harrison spoke to Jorge Elorza, a law professor, Providence Housing Court judge and co-chair of the Latino Policy Institute at Roger Williams University.

To listen to the broadcast, click here.