Second semester is only half over and the Theatre Department is already flat-busted from low attendance, equipment purchases, and the use of one telephone. Nothing is left of the $9,043 budget. Theatre Department Head William Grandgeorge now the Budget Committee for $1,000 and was turned down. Consequently, the Theatre Department is scrambling more than usual.

"I'm not surprised we ran out of money," Grandgeorge said. "I knew we'd be back in October when only fifty-one non-theatre majors attended. 'As You Like It', the most expensive performance to date. Oh, non-theatre majors have to pay admission.

"RWC students don't have the initiative yet to crave Shakespeare, but we'll keep putting Shakespeare on and they'll develop a craving for it," Grandgeorge said, explaining the low attendance. "We're not depressed around here, everything is functioning normally. Theatre just happens every year because the budget committee always gives me less than I ask for at the beginning of the year." Grandgeorge said.

Theatre Department spent much of its budget this year striving for authenticity instead of cheaper imitations. "We needed words for "As You Like It," Grandgeorge said. "Instead of buying wooden swords for eight dollars we purchased real ones for $28. Looking ahead for when we have a fencing class. Authentic costumes are also expensive. 'You just can't find Victorian materials anymore, so we buy some other stuff and dye it until we catch the exact shade.'

The theatre major is one of the most expensive at RWC, as students

Third degree Black belt, Ray Lannon, Chief Instructor for the RWC Taek Woon Do Club, who can split concrete bricks with his head, break boards while blindfolded and punch through three inches of concrete—admits that learning the ancient Korean art of self-defense was not easy for him at first.

"When I started I was terrible," Lannon said. "I would come to class and other students would say why doesn't that Ray Lannon quit, he's too good. And it wasn't until I was a blue belt or early brown belt that I came into my own. This is why I feel that anyone who works hard enough and has patience can do well."

Lannon started in another form of Karate before he started in Tae Kwon Do. The reason I picked Tae Kwon Do is because it's the only style that is a complete style in itself. It's a hard style, a competitive style, there's competition involved, it also has forms that make it taejitsu. Whereas other forms of Karate only put emphasis on one certain thing, or technique, Tae Kwon Do covers all the bases.

Nike student only suspect by police in recent bomb incident

By Jane Scott

Following separate police- and college investigations, and much controversy, the case of the pipe bomb recently found under an RWC dorm student's car remains unsolved and unresolved.

Chris Parker, the Nike residence student who found the undetonated pipe bomb under a blue sports car parked in front of the Students Center on Thursday, March 6, is presently the only suspect the Bristol Police have in the case.

Reports say the police came to this conclusion due to the fingerprints found on the explosive device.

Dean of Students Karen Haskell said, "An investigation is now underway to try to find out who is responsible". Haskell is running the investigation.

Haskell said, "I pretend not to disclose my methods of investigation," and added, "We the Bristol Police and the college are not conducting a joint investigation."

On March 6, Chris Parker reported walking past an automobile and seeing a strange object, which he picked up and later figured out was a bomb. Haskell said, "Parker turned it over to his RA, Raul Love, and the college investigated. At that time, he was told it could take up to three years for his case to reach the courts if he wished to press a trial by jury."

Haskell continued, "In accordance with that police investigation, Parker was arraigned in district court on Friday, March 21 with the charges of possession of an explosive device. At that time, he was told it could take up to three years for his case to reach the courts if he wished to press a trial by jury."

A Security Awareness Day is tentatively scheduled for April 23. Possible events include movies, lectures by members of the Bristol Police Department, a speaker on self-defense, and a talk by an insurance agent about theft.

The idea of the program evolved out of staff meetings held by Dean of Students Karen Haskell.

"The purpose of the Security Awareness Day is to inform and educate people on general security awareness Day is to inform and educate people on general security principles, ranging from thefts to attacks, " explained Housing Director and Chairman Barbara Love.

"People should be aware of dorm security. They should be aware of the preventive measures and know what to do in certain situations. Hopefully, after the Security Awareness Day, people will be more informed," Love said.

Some basic preventive measures that should be adhered to by students include using the lighted path when walking to North Campus, keeping doors and windows locked, and keeping wood at the base of sliding glass doors. Love said.

Love has set up a committee consisting of representatives from different sectors of the campus. After the first meeting, the committee was divided into three sections to investigate the problems on campus, in the Maze and the apartments. All have similar problems which must be dealt with differently.

Members of the planning committee include members of both Dorm Government and the Senate. Raul Love, Chief of Security Carl Wake, Physical Plant Director William Not, Dean of Students Karen Haskell, and various students.

Doing it just for kicks

For some people just being a black belt is enough for them. For Lannon, it's a different story. "It's a type of thing where you have to work hard. And Lannon teaches his classes. he does everything with exact precision, excellent timing, and is very commanding. He works his classes hard and he works himself hard too. The question is, is he driving to become Master? A Master is awarded when one reaches his seventh degree black belt. "I really don't know what my aim is." I just want to keep on doing Taekwondo as long as I can. I get a great deal of satisfaction out of it."

Three scholarships offered to Rhode Island residents

By Jane Scott

There are three scholarships now available from the RWCC financial aid office and they are open to all college students. These three scholarships are being offered by various Rhode Island organizations. Application forms may be picked up in the Financial Aid office in the Administration building.

For any Rhode Island resident, the Rhode Island Bank National Bank is offering a $600 scholarship. First priorities are given to sons and daughters of hospital staff. Second priorities are given to sons and daughters of firemen or police officers of Rhode Island.

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Providence is offering a $300 scholarship. Applicants must be female residents of Rhode Island and entering their junior or senior year in college during September of 1980. Awards are based on scholastic record, financial need, and personal background. The application, an official transcript, and one letter of recommendation should be mailed by April 15, 1980.

The Women's Advertising Club of Rhode Island is awarding its annual scholarship. This year's amount is to be announced; last year's award was $500. Eligibility requirements include being a student enrolled in college who plans a career in advertising, commercial art, communications, marketing or retailing. Awards are based on career objectives, academic achievement and faculty recommendation. The application deadline is May 1, 1980.

There are also several scholarships specifically available for graduates of Haverhill High School in Massachusetts. Those applications are also available in the Financial Aid Office.

Cord members lobby for 18/20 split recently at the state house

By David Levis

The Committee on Responsible Drinking has decided to continue lobbying for the 18-20 split, despite a faction that is proposing an 18-19 split.

On Monday, March 17, Wendy Stephenson, a RWC student senator, and a member of the Committee on Responsible Drinking, along with high school students from all over R.I., met at the Statehouse to protest the possibility of raising the drinking age in Rhode Island.

"The high school students are making our proposal for the 18-20 split," Stephenson said. "They realize that our proposal is the best possible choice."

We wish to lobby against the raising of the drinking age to 20, and we realize that there is also going to be a change in the current law. It is foolish to convince them not to change the current law, that is why we are lobbying for the split," said Stephenson.

"Majority whip Revans is not going along with us," said Stephenson. "He's supporting the 18-19 split. It is the opinion of many that we will have bargaining power against the bill calling for the raising of the drinking age to 21. There would be a compromise, most likely the bill calling for the age to be raised to 20.

"We have decided to stay with our proposal of the 18-20 split. It would be foolish to change our minds now," said Stephenson. "We would have to go back to our school's governments, and change our resolutions. That would be too time consuming."

"It was a tough decision not to go along with Revans, but we have to stick with our original decision," said Stephenson. "A few of the Cord members were considering going along with Revans on the 18-19 split, but we have to unite ourselves if we hope to be successful."

"The 18-20 split has many advantages over the 18-19 split," said Stephenson. "A major problem now is the border crossing from Mass. to R.I. It's incredible. The 18-19 split will not stop this, but I feel the 18-20 split will.

"We are looking for support from the whole RWC campus," said Stephenson. "Students can write letters to legislators and congressmen, go to the Statehouse and talk to senators, or call the Governor. Any one of these would definitely be a great help."

At the moment, six bills have gone to the state legislative committee: raising the drinking age to 19; raising the age to 20, the 18-19 split, the 18-20 split, the grandfather clause, and raising the age to 21.

Soaking our our sudsy beers

When a free course in Classical Concerts falls while on-campus rock concerts thrive, it is symptomatic of a College in trouble. The function of College is not to give late adolescents one last fling before they enter the world's market places as so many seem to think, and without a strategic plan to support an institution designed to turn out people who know facts which may or may not result in employment.

A College or University is designed, or ought to be designed, as a setting where chaos is transformed into order in the minds of its students and faculty. It ought to be a place where scholars meet to ask questions never asked before, or if asked, never satisfactorily answered. If it is not, our students and scholars begin the process of discovering where they fit into the cosmic whole. There are Colleges and Universities at which these things happen. At Roger Williams College we have the standing plan.

At Roger Williams College we do not have classical concerts. Mike Swanson's classical concerts course failed; Will Aytom takes his programs to perform at Providence College. In a similar vein, when a distinguished Catholic theologian offered a course on what people turned out to hear him. Before the first day, people canceled, for the first warm days of spring, classes are half empty. Student enrollment in courses and courses in reaching students are at best adequate.

The previous College has failed, or is in the process of failing. We are not a center of intellectual inquiry, we are not attempting to create order out of chaos.

Where are our students who play classical violin, piano and cello? Where is their potential audience? Even Jazz does not flourish here. Only Rock n' Roll!

We're our chess team which once finished first among all East coast college teams? Why does Roger Williams College have no debating society? Why is television no longer banned? Why is the library service only reluctantly deficient?

All these questions suggest symptoms of malaise which infest our little "Shitnot symphonies" might be an apt motto.

To the Editor:
This is a letter in response to the article in the March 13, 1980, Quill concerning the Student Senate's anti-draft petition and possible concerns of the Senate on having an anti-draft rally or providing transportation to one. What is being done is that students are being asked to change their minds. This is a symptom of the true situation in this country.

Spotlight: Newly formed Equestrian Club looks to intercollegiate status

By David Levin

The RWC Equestrian club, which has been in existence for less than a month, has set as its chief goal entrance into intercollegiate competition later this spring.

Founders, President Monica Brown, Vice-President Name; Bartis; Lois Schuyler, and Wendy Stephenson, would like to make the Equestrian club part of the school's varsity sports program. "I hope that next year we will be funded by the Athletic department and recognized as one of the school's major sports," Brown said. "This would enable our club to grow into a successful organization, which in turn would bring much attention to the college."

"I feel this is a great idea," Stephenson said. "It would not only attract new students to RWC, but would also add a varsity sport that few colleges have in their program."

The club has a membership of twenty RWC students who take riding lessons at Ferry Cliff stables. The school currently owns our own horses, which was donated last semester by David H. Mann. "We hope to have more horses for the club next semester," Brown said. "We would like to receive donations as donations rather than cost RWC any money. The club now uses our home, Silbury Ring, plus horses owned by Ferry Cliff stables."

"If we can get more horses strengthening the club, we will be able to hold intercollegiate competition at RWC (Ferry Cliff Stables)" Stephenson said. "This will bring a lot of money to the college."

The club, hoping to bring in dedicated students, is planning on having a riding demonstration at RWC this spring. "I don't think everyone knows exactly what the club is about," Brown said. "The demonstration would not only prove to RWC how serious we are about intercollegiate competition, but will also let the community know what our club is all about. I'm hoping it will bring many new students to the club."

If anyone would like to become a member of the club, they can contact the club at 724-5110. or the Student Senate office. The cost is five dollars per month which includes an hour of instruction each week.

GRE scores and answers now available

Nearly 40,000 students throughout the world, other than the Graduate Record Examinations Aptitude Test on Jan. 12 can now obtain a copy of the questions and answers of the correct answers. Although sample tests have been available for many years, this is the first time that the questions and answers of the GRE have been disclosed immediately following a national test administration.

The Graduate Record Examinations Board which sponsors the test released March 15 a 40-page booklet containing the questions that were counted toward the actual scores, a list of correct answers, instructions for obtaining "raw" scores and a table for finding scaled scores reported for the test. The booklet also includes a description of the test and explanations of the kinds of questions asked.

To date, less than 250 individuals from across the nation have ordered the material. Order forms for the booklet and answer sheet were mailed to all test-takers with their score reports in early February.

The booklet costs $2 per copy ($3.75 if sent to countries other than the United States, Puerto Rico, Canada or Mexico). For $3.50, students in the United States and Puerto Rico who request a copy can obtain a photocopy of their answer sheet.

Complimentary copies of the test booklet are being distributed this week to graduate school committee heads. At the same time, ETS said it would welcome comments related to the content, validity or appropriateness of any of the test questions, brought by graduate schools or their students. The release of test questions and answer sheets meets the requirements of the New York State Admissions Testing Law of 1979, which went into effect Jan. 1.

The law requires that questions and correct answers for any standardized test used in connection with admission procedures to colleges and graduate schools (other than a specifically exempted achievement test used in public short-term after the test is administered to students in New York State, Students who take the test in New York State may obtain a copy of their answer sheet.

The GRE Board decided to expand this service. Hence, the test questions and correct answers are being made available worldwide in test centers throughout the world.

A booklet containing the questions and answers used in the April 26 and April 28 GRE administration will be available in June.

Following enactment of the New York State law, the GRE Board made several refinements in its New York State testing schedule.

Alfred S. Sussman, chairman of the GRE Board and vice president for academic affairs at the University of Michigan, said the changes were made "as rapidly and with concern for test quality.

Keg hunt

Missing: two empty quarter kegs. Lost April 1 on the RWC Fulton campus.

Identification: Drawings of an Easter Bunny on one side and an egg on the other side of the kegs. If found, return to Scott Bauer or Dennis McLaughlin. They can be reached through the Student Senate office at 255-2532.

Rewards: A full quarter keg to the person who turns in any of the empty kegs.

Clues will be offered. The first will appear on April 1. They will be put in mailboxes and posted outside the Student Senate. They will appear through April 4.

Good luck and happy hunting.

Coffeehouse Corner

By Mark A. Lauzon

LUNCHTIME CONCERT by Oliver Wynick, presented at RWC Coffeehouse Theatre.

Directed by Robert Anderson.

CAST: He; DENNIS PERRAULT; She; PAULA VINZI.

Max; JIM GRIGGS.

The best way to describe the RWC Coffeehouse production of "Lunchtime Concert" is "new." A new director, a new actor, a new kind of one-act, and a new approach were introduced. Unfortunately, some of the "new" does not work out.

The play deals with the lives of He, She, and the Man. She is an evidently dressed old woman with a feeling that if she were to disappear off the face of the earth, her presence would be greatly missed. He is a person who lives with her and continually keeps reminding her that she is wrong.

The relationship between these two is a strange one. It rises from passion to threats of murder.

The Man is a birdwatcher who is introduced to this absurdity by accident—and ends up being the most absurd of all.

The play was boring, with little potential of moving anywhere. The actors tried hard to bring us into their world, and maybe they tried too hard. Paula had a tendency to break character, but amused us with her storytelling. Dennis had a tendency to start, but also had his moments. Jim was very good as the birdwatcher and kept our attention on him.

The biggest problem with this show was the length, it being much too long for a coffeehouse one-act. The characters at times were uninteresting and the general mood of the show was poor.

Almeida gangsters come back, win

By Jeffrey Tucker

The tension in the championship game of intramural basketball was so thick it could be cut with a knife. Both teams battled on the court, and when the smoke cleared the Almeida Gangsters had beaten the second floor by a six point margin, 43-37. The game began with Almeida getting the opening tap. Both teams continued to play tough. Almeida played a close man-to-man defense and the second floor played a 2-3 zone.

The second floor’s offensive game in the first half was guided by Doug McMullen or Roger Carroll to either side of the three biggies, Paul Sandborn, Greg Roop and Rich Collinou.

Almeida’s defensive attack was led by George Williams and Keith Magr. Almeida put on a half to three quarter court press. Also, Almeida’s offensive worked the ball in for the shot close to the basket. James Banks, Marty Pontonausek and Mike Lucas also helped neutralize the boards.

The score at the end of the half was Almeida 21 and the second floor 17. The second half started with the same intensity as the first half, but Almeida -- with five minutes gone -- was able to put on a full court press in which their quick guards were able to run up a quick 12 points.

But, the second floor did not come all the way to quit. They battled back to within seven points and Almeida had to call a timeout.

Then, both teams knowing that the game was on the line, put in the starters back in and after a few calls going against the second floor, and Almeida’s staff recibed, the second was unable to come back.

This year’s intramural competition was the hardest fought ever. The upwind spirt made the intramurals fun and not to forget.

All the teams who participated deserve congratulations.

In this corner...

By Roger Carroll

One person, more than anyone else, was responsible for any successes that the intramural program just might have had not for his efforts of Mr. Ed Randolph there might very well have been no season at all.

Tuesday through Thursday evenings, and all day Sunday, Ed was at the armory making sure things ran smoothly. This was the pattern for better than three solid weeks. Eddie was always there and to watch, he was the most part. However, Ed worked alone. His hat off to you Eddie.

Those who played in the league were up to think for a minute: what would the league be like had Ed not displayed such unqualified dedication? No doubt things could have been improved this year, but they could have been a whole lot worse, too. And if some people don’t start taking an active interest in the league in a capacity other than as players, things might be worse next year.

What I am trying to say is that this league needs advocates like the President of the United States needs advisors.

There was a lack of referees. This is because players like myself (If am not alone) tend to bark at the officials over non-appearance calls. A few rule changes could easily eliminate this, but unless players band together to come up with some reasonable suggestions as to how to improve the league, things might go really bad.

If I were Ed Randolph, I wouldn’t lose a muscle to help next year’s league unless the players showed me they want to help themselves.

However, I think Ed’s dedication this season indicates how much love and respect he has for the game of basketball.

Congratulations to the Almeida Gangsters for their victory over the second floor team. They are a classic example of how circumstances prevent me from commenting further on this matter.

Congratulations guys. I would also like to thank my own teammates for their time performances. It is a battle to put a squad together.

And now, the answer you’ve been waiting for with baited breath.

The Boston College men’s rugby team, won the ‘69 World Rugby Cup in the United States. The team was captained by the Ed Sullivan Show (sic) and said, “You Gotta Have Heart. Ironically enough, this is from the Broadway musical “Damn Yankees.” Take that George Steinbrenner!

Golf opens new season of action

By Jeffrey Tucker

Fore -- it’s golf season once again at RWC. The new RWC golf team started practice this week with 29 hopefuls trying to make the team. The Golf Hawks have seven returning lettermen, including this year’s captain, Camilo Vargas and Ray Fuller.

“This year’s team will be better than past years,” Vargas said, “because there is more competition for starting positions and more personalized instruction from Coach Bob Miller.”

The RWC Golf Hawks have two warmup matches against Brown University and a tri-mont nand Franklin Pierce and New Hampshire College. The Golf Hawks then play two invitational matches at the Salem Invitational, April 26, and the Dow Invitational at Yale.

New Haven, April 27, The Golf Hawks will be playing all of their home matches at the Swansone Public Course.

The next meeting of the golf team is open to all interested students. It will be held Monday, March 31. Time and place will be announced later.

Coach Miller is also offering free Frisbee Wazoo warm up

By Martin Pontonausek

The RWC Frisbee Wazoo is off and returning to their Rhode Island State Championship crown for yet another year. The Wazoom, in their sixth season, are working to extend their incredibly successful record.

The Eastern Division, of which the Wazoom are a member, consisted of 54 teams last fall and has grown to 865-2471/2472 intramural golf lessons in the calender on Mondays and Thursdays. The lessons will be moved outdoors when weather permits.

Coach Miller would like to see anyone interested in the position of Frisbee Wazoo contact either Danny Fuller or Carlos Vargas.

The RWC Frisbee Wazzo are off and returning to their Rhode Island State Championship crown for yet another year. The Wazoom, in their sixth season, are working to extend their incredibly successful record.

The Eastern Division, of which the Wazoom are a member, consisted of 54 teams last fall and has grown to no for the spring season. The "agronomical growth in the eastern division is due to the fast-moving competition this year.

Ultimate frisbee combines the excitement of basketball, soccer and football into one game. The objective is to prevent the opposing team from catching a frisbee before it hits the ground. The frisbee is turned over to the opposing team if a player drops it, if it is thrown out of bounds, or if a player hits the ground. The Wazoo improve their skills each day in front of the Student Union at press.

RWC has scheduled the following games for the spring season:

- Bryant
- Uconn
- Yale
- Wesleyan
- Providence College - April 10
- Boston College - April 13
- Dartmouth
