3-12-2012

Newsroom: Senator Reed on Ocean Planning

Roger Williams University School of Law

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.rwu.edu/law_archives_life

Recommended Citation

This News Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Archives & Law School History at DOCS@RWU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Life of the Law School (1993-) by an authorized administrator of DOCS@RWU. For more information, please contact mwu@rwu.edu.
Senator Reed on Ocean Planning

U.S. Senator Jack Reed (D-R.I.) spoke at RWU Law about how Rhode Island's Ocean Management Plan is emerging as a model for similar plans nationally.

From WPRI, Channel 12: Senator Jack Reed at RWU Law

3/12/2012 5:31:38 PM

ANCHOR: U.S. Senator Jack Reed is pushing for a Regional Ocean Planning Policy in the Northeast -- much like the one Rhode Island has already put in place. This morning, Senator Jack Reed was in Bristol, promoting the benefits of that collaborative at Roger Williams University School of Law. He says Rhode island's Ocean Management Plan has been an extraordinarily effective tool, and is now recognized as the national model to begin to deploy wind resources off the coast of the United States.
REED: "This is a thoughtful, scientific-based approach to siting these facilities, to avoiding conflicts with fishing grounds, to avoiding conflict with transit routes of ships, to picking the best possible locations to maximize wind and minimize impacts on other industries."

ANCHOR: The Northeastern Regional Council has received $1.46 million in federal funding to implement that new policy right here in New England.