

Roger Williams University

DOCS@RWU

Life of the Law School (1993-)

Archives & Law School History

9-12-2016

Newsroom: Veteran ProJo Columnist to Join RWU 9/12/2016

Roger Williams University School of Law

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.rwu.edu/law_archives_life

Part of the Higher Education Commons, Legal Education Commons, Mass Communication Commons, Organizational Communication Commons, and the Public Relations and Advertising Commons

Recommended Citation

Roger Williams University School of Law, "Newsroom: Veteran ProJo Columnist to Join RWU 9/12/2016" (2016). Life of the Law School (1993-). 569.
https://docs.rwu.edu/law_archives_life/569

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Archives & Law School History at DOCS@RWU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Life of the Law School (1993-) by an authorized administrator of DOCS@RWU. For more information, please contact mwu@rwu.edu.

Newsroom

September 12, 2016

Veteran ProJo Columnist to Join RWU

Providence Journal political columnist Edward Fitzpatrick will become the new Director of Media and Public Relations for Roger Williams University next month.

BRISTOL, R.I., Sept. 12, 2016 – Providence Journal political columnist Edward Fitzpatrick will become the new Director of Media and Public Relations for Roger Williams University effective Oct. 5, the school announced today.

Fitzpatrick joins the University after 28 years as a reporter, editor and columnist, including 16 years at The Providence Journal and eight years as its political columnist. He grew up in Greenville, R.I., graduated from Mount St. Charles Academy and from Syracuse University with a degree in journalism and political science. He previously worked at the Hartford Courant, the Albany Times Union and The Saratogian.

"I've been watching a compelling story unfold at Roger Williams University, and I am looking forward to being part of this ambitious effort," Fitzpatrick said. "Far from the ivory tower, the University is meeting Rhode Islanders where they live – in places such as Central Falls and Pawtucket. As a native Rhode Islander, I find that approach inspiring. As a journalist who has chronicled the state's challenges over the years, I find that approach most welcome."

In Fitzpatrick, RWU has found a powerful partner for communicating its efforts to a wider audience.

"We recognized that we needed a strong and unimpeachable voice to carry the message that RWU is building the university the world needs now, through a set of programs and initiatives quite unlike what people have historically expected from universities," Roger Williams President Donald J. Farish said. "I can think of no better or more respected person to deliver that message than Ed Fitzpatrick."

RWU Law Dean Michael J. Yelnosky expressed similar confidence in the choice.

"Not only is Ed a well-respected journalist with deep ties to this community and a compelling communicator, he knows a lot about the law school," Dean Yelnosky said. "He has worked with many members of our faculty and staff over the years while putting together stories that touch on legal topics. I look forward to working with him in this new capacity."

Indeed, Fitzpatrick joins the University at a time of dramatic transformation. Just last week, President Farish dedicated the University's new Providence campus at One Empire Street – which includes RWU Law's Experiential Campus, housing clinics for the state's only law school and providing free services to those in need. The 76,000-square-foot site underscores the University's rapidly expanding array of partnerships with groups such as the Latino Policy Institute, HousingWorks RI and Grow Smart Rhode Island, as well as highlighting the School of Continuing Studies' efforts to make education more accessible and help train the state's future workforce.

"It's a new model – a private university with a public purpose," Farish said.